Window Rattling Tremor

A minor earthquake shook southern Vancouver Island and part of the B.C. mainland at 6:51 p.m. Friday, but it did little more than rattle windows.

In the Victoria area no injuries or damage was reported to police.

Ron Hyndman of the Pacific Geoscience Centre said the quake, which measured 4 on the Richter scale, was centred about 20 kilometres north of here at a depth of 40 to 50 kilometres.

Hyndman said there may be aftershocks of lesser intensity, but said officials do not believe is precedes bigger quakes.

"It does not appear to be related to any activity in other parts of the world," he said.

Early this morning in California a similar minor quake shook the ground south of San Diego, again causing no damage.

The tremor was centred more than 300 kilometres from Santa Barbara County, where a quake measuring 5.1 on the Richter scale injured more than 60 persons last Sunday and caused more than $12 million in damages.

VANCOUVER TRANSIT STALLED

Bus Drivers Ignore LRB

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bus service here was stalled today as drivers continued a strike in defiance of a B.C. Labor Relations Board order to return to work.

The Amalgamated Transit Union, which has advised its members to obey the order, and B.C. Hydro were to meet with the board again today.

The strike, involving a group of drivers at Hydro's Oakridge depot, began Friday in a dispute over operation of the spare board.

No buses were running out of the Oakridge depot today, halting all service in Vancouver and affecting Richmond, South Delta and White Rock.

A Hydro spokesman said buses were running in North Vancouver, Surrey, Burnaby and Port Coquitlam.

Hydro has threatened to take the issue to the B.C. Supreme Court if the drivers do not return to work.

Ed Peck, vice-chairman of the LRB, said the board was waiting for an application from one of the parties before calling a hearing.

The board ordered the drivers back to work late Friday.

In the contract, the union gave up operation of the spare board, which assigns some drivers to routes, to the company.

But drivers claimed the company was ignoring seniority in assigning duties.

Al Ashton, president of the ATU, said Friday the work stoppage could spread throughout the whole system if the spare board issue is not resolved immediately.

A dispute over the spare board sparked a week-long strike last spring.

The union executive had agreed Thursday to abide by the corporation's interpretation of new rules, reached in contract negotiations earlier this year, until arbitration settles the matter, but Ashton said his members would not go along with this.

"Our members are not prepared to wait that long," he said. "We would have rather tried to resolve the problem that both sides have at the LRB hearing. We asked the company to continue the old rules until we get the arbitration. That seems a reasonable alternative to no bus service."

Ashton said the spare board dispute is a matter of interpretation, with the union arguing that the old method of seniority is better than Hydro's method of selecting drivers by allocation.

The drivers said the incident began when one senior spare board man went in to the Oakridge office to ask for a shift and a supervisor told him he could not choose his route.

The driver said he would not work if management would not let him choose a route, and the other drivers walked out in sympathy.

Hydro spokesman Harry Atterton said Oakridge lost about 30 per cent of its rush-hour supplementary bus service Friday and this slowed down the schedule of buses still operating.

Rush-hour bus service was disrupted when about 100 drivers walked off the job at 1 p.m., stopping about 85 special rush-hour buses from leaving the Oakridge centre.

Bus drivers gathered around the depot gates, but they claimed they were not picketing the site.

British Bases Bombed

MOENCHENGLADBACH, West Germany (Reuter) — Eight bombs exploded at British Army bases during the night in the biggest attack against British forces in Germany in peacetime, a British military spokesman said here today.

The explosives were placed on the perimeters of eight different barracks in West Germany, causing extensive damage but no casualties.

British military and West German civilian police were investigating the bombings. But there was no immediate word on who had carried them out.

No advance warning was given and no one has admitted responsibility, the spokesman said.

Senior officers at the headquarters of the British Rhine Army (BAOR) here speculated, however, that the bombs had been left by radicals opposed either to Britain's commitment to the western NATO defence alliance or its military presence in Northern Ireland.

The spokesman said Friday night's bombings were the biggest co-ordinated peacetime attack against British forces in Germany, where Britain maintains 55,000 soldiers as its major contribution to NATO.

"There have been isolated incidents before but never anything as comprehensive as this," he commented.

Six bombs went off within minutes of each other around midnight at barracks here and in nearby Duesseldorf.

Three School Buses Collide

Times News Services

HAMILTON — Forty-nine children and camp counsellors were injured Friday and 28 taken to hospital when three school buses returning from a YMCA day camp collided near Freelton, about 20 kilometres north of here.

It was the third accident in Canada in the last two days involving buses carrying children.

On Thursday, three children were killed and 11 others injured in separate bus accidents in Quebec and New Brunswick.

In Friday's mishap, about 150 children in three buses were returning from a camp at Hoover Park, about one kilometre from the site of the accident, when the chain-reaction collision occurred.

Camp staff on the buses said the lead bus in the convoy slowed to make a turn on a rural road and the driver of the second stopped to avoid hitting the first bus.

The third bus then went out of control on the gravel road as it tried to stop and hit the back of the second bus, pushing it into the first.

Raj Bhuller, the driver of the third bus, told camp officals and police that the brakes on his vehicle had failed.

Meanwhile, Quebec Transport Minister Lucien Lessard announced Friday that beginning Sept. 1, all buses operating in that province will have to undergo commplete mechanical inspections at least every three months.

Two weeks ago, 40 persons, most of them handicapped, died when the bus in which they were riding plunged into a lake at Eastman, 115 kilometres north of Montreal.

'In a Tight Corner,' Smith Ready to Talk

BULAWAYO (UPI) — Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith, admitting "we are in a tight corner," Friday edged closer to negotiations with the guerrilla-backed Patriotic Front and said "we are not opposed to a conference" as proposed by Britain and the United States.

But, he said, the two powers must come up with an acceptable conference agenda before a final decision is announced by the biracial transitional government produced by the March 3 "internal" majority rule agreement.

His remarks were the most flexible he has delivered to date regarding the negotiatons Britain and the United States have been trying to arrange since April.

He spoke to reporters one day after tribal Chief Jeremiah Chirau, one of the three black leadears who sit with Smith on the government's executive council, came out in full support of the all-party conference idea.

"I haven't had an opportunity of speaking to Chief Chirau myself to find out exactly what he has in mind," Smith said.

But he said the executive council frequently discuss the Anglo-American proposal and "we're all pretty much the same in our thinking.

"We are not opposed to a conference. We are a little on our guard that we could go to something that could turn out to be a farce."

"We want to be sure it's not going to be destructive... and leave us in a worse position than we are now."

Smith said his government is trying to determine through contacts with visiting British and American diplomats what the agenda of a conference would include.

CAR PLATES LEAD POLICE TO PAIR

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Two men were arrested Friday after a robbery in Seattle Thursday that netted $100,000 in diamonds, rubies, opals and other assorted gems.

Police in Seattle said the manager of Phil's Jewelry Store was showing a diamond to a customer when the man grabbed a pouch containing about 500 gems and ran from the shop.

The manager chased the man but was unable to catch him. Another witness, however, saw a man drive off in an orange Volkswagen with B.C. licence plates.

The plates were traced to a man in this city. New Westminster police and RCMP raided a home here Friday morning, arresting two men and seizing a cache of gems.

Davis Verdict Delayed Until September 11

VANCOUVER — Vancouver county court Judge J. J. Anderson will hand down a verdict Sept. 11 on charges that former Social Credit transport minister Jack Davis, 62, committed fraud and theft.

The date was set Friday by Judge Anderson at the end of Davis' three-day trial on an indictment charging he took $1,074 that belonged to the government by fraudulently obtaining refunds on airline tickets purchased for travel on government business.

After hearing prosecution and defence arguments, Judge Anderson said he wouldn't make the decision right away "in view of the matters I have to look at and consider."

He said he didn't want to delay a decision and "can well imagine the feelings of an accused person in these circumstances," but "on the other hand, I would like the opportunity to read all the material I have been given and to consider it and to give it far more than casual thought."

Summations Friday by defence lawyer Allan McEachern and prosecutor John Hall boiled down to whether or not Davis had a legal right to the refunds under a law and order-in-council governing cabinet ministers' allowances and expenses.

The case marrows down to the meaning of the law after McEachern entered a statement of admission by Davis

107 Candles To Twinkle On Her Cake

Everybody has birthdays but there aren't too many people who can put 107 candles on their cake.

But Mrs. Bridget Morry, will do just that this Tuesday.

Some perspective: The year Bridget was born, Stanley located David Livingstone in darkest Africa, B.C. joined Confederation, Charles Darwin produced his controversial Descent of Man and artist James Whistler painted his mum.

Born in Newfoundland, Mrs. Morry moved to Victoria in 1900. She brought five children with her and then had five more here.

"I didn't have too much time for anything else after that," she recalled in an interview at the Royal Jubilee Hospital.

"There was too much work to do with 10 children around."

After 107 years does she have any advice for young people, any tips on how to take care of themselves so they'll live to a ripe old age as well?

"No," she says with a smile, "you know it all."

"I never put anything on my face."

Mrs. Morry says she can't really attribute her longevity to anything in particular — it just happened to her, and she almost sort of wishes it hadn't.

"It's too long for anyone to live," she said. "It really is.

"The Queen never sent me a card this year. I guess she thinks I'm gone — I should be."

But a lot of people, including the nursing staff that takes care of her, are glad she's still around.

"She's a lovely old lady," said one of the nurses. "A darling."

Bridget's a darling, her nurse says

Beer Talks Monday

Mediator Clark Gilmour will meet with brewery and union officials Monday in an effort to get negotiations going again in the strike-lockout that has shut down most of B.C.'s beer industry.

Meanwhile, a union spokesman said that brewery workers may picket the Pacific National Exhibition (PNE) which opened in Vancouver today, because of stocks of beer.

John Langley, spokesman for the Union of United Brewery, Cereal, Flour, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers, said Friday pickets will probably go up if the PNE can't prove its stocks of Canadian beer were delivered before the breweries closed.

He said no action is planned before Monday or Tuesday.

The PNE has been selling Canadian beer in its three drinking outlets all summer, and officials claim the beer is part of a stockpile made in anticipation of the strike-lockout which began with a strike at Carling O'Keefe in May.

A spokesman said Friday that remaining stocks of Canadian beer would last about five days and United States beer delivered since the breweries closed might last an additional five days.

In Victoria, a liquor distribution brand spokesman said Friday that B.C. liquor stores will get 2.7 million dozen bottles of beer from the U.S. in the next 15 days.

He said the latest shipment will bring the total amount of beer imported from the U.S. since the beer industry dispute began to seven million dozen bottles, which represents only about 40 per cent of the normal market demand during the summer months.

Accelerated School Eyed for Gifted

RICHMOND (CP) — The provincial education ministry is planning a program to allow gifted students to complete school a year early, Education Minister Pat McGeer said Friday.

McGeer said an accelerated program, which will be more challenging than the regular curriculum, will be available to all grade levels a year from now. His department is also working with the universities and colleges on a policy to admit exceptional high school students a year early, he said.

"The gifted have been wasted intellectually in this province, and it's not good for them or for society," he said. "We want to have the type of program that will challenge these children and which will help them become leaders of the province."

In an interview, McGeer said the new program will provide a sufficiently challenging program for bright students and allow them to advance at a faster rate.

"We want to be certain that youngsters that have the ability aren't just mouldering in the school system," he said. "So they will be required to put out as much mental effort as necessary to master the program."

"If these people can master the academic material and move ahead, that will be done too, although we're not looking for a class of 11-year-olds to enter university."

McGeer said there is now no over-all accelerated school program in B.C., although some schools allow students to advance at a faster rate in certain subjects.

"So the gifted are almost ignored in B.C.," he said. "One to five per cent of the school population — between 5,000 and 50,000 students — are being wasted."

McGeer said it will be up to classroom teachers to decide which students can handle the advanced program. The program will involve increased homework, more drills in school and advanced courses, he said.

"We are also considering the elimination of a year of high school for those who can manage an accelerated program," he said.

"We now have a committee working on the articulation of secondary and post-secondary programs, and quite a bit of progress has been made where students can get the type of high school program that would allow them to go one year earlier into universities, colleges or other institutions."

BCR Strike Vote

VANCOUVER (CP) — A joint union council representing 2,200 B.C. Railway employees said Friday it is being forced to hold a strike vote next week because management does not want to negotiate.

Boost Given Pipeline

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — A House-Senate compromise reached Friday on the natural gas bill has put the $10-billion Alaska Highway pipeline back on the road — but obstacles still line the route ahead.

A majority in both House and Senate committees dealing with the bill reached a compromise which will let the Carter administration push the bill on the House and Senate floors, making it possible for approval before the end of the year.

But this is by no means guaranteed, as critics are mounting a powerful lobby.

Two senators, James Abourezk (Dem.-S.D.) and Howard Metzenbaum (Dem.-Ohio), have pledged to filibuster the bill when it reaches the Senate floor.

And a powerful coalition of consumer, labor, business and environmental causes is backing the fight on the grounds that the bill will give huge non-taxable profits to the pipeline companies without compensating either large or small gas consumers.

Without Carter's natural gas bill, the backers of the Alaska Highway pipeline cannot be sure of a firm price for gas moving from Alaska's North Slope through Canada to U.S. markets.

And without a firm price on the gas they cannot negotiate contracts with North Slope gas producers.

Contracts with the producers are, in turn, needed before financial institutions can be approached to finance the pipeline.

Backers of the pipeline, Northwest Alaska Pipeline in the U.S. and Foothills Pipe Lines Yukon Ltd. in Canada, say planning for the pipeline is running about six months behind schedule at present, and if the bill does not pass Congress this year, the cost of construction could rise as much as $1 billion.

Good Cause to Strike, Postal Workers Claim

OTTAWA (UPI) — The president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers has criticized a suggestion by Postmaster General Gilles Lamontagne that a postal strike be prohibited and says the union has "very good reason to strike."

"Under the law we don't have just the right to strike, we also have the right to negotiate," Jean-Claude Parrot said Friday. "So far the government representatives have shown no signs that they are ready to honor our legal right to negotiate.

"All they have done is propose rollbacks in rights we've acquired under previous collective agreements or push the status quo," Parrot said. "Members of the CUPW have a very good reason to strike."

He said Lamontagne had reversed his previous opposition to restricting the right of postal workers to strike.

"It's impossible to know what Mr. Lamontagne is doing," Parrot said. "He constantly contradicts himself."

The CUPW broke off mediation talks earlier this week and asked the mediator to prepare his report. The union would be in a legal position to strike one week after release of the report.

The union is pressing for a shorter work week "because of the widespread unemployment and because of the adverse effects of technological change," Parrot said, but described Lamontagne's claim that the CUPW wanted a two-and-a-half-hour work day as "nonsense."

Lamontagne had said Thursday "the union continues to ask for a 30-hour week with pay for 40 hours, one hour of paid lunch, two hours of rest and a half-an-hour of travel time between rest and work areas, representing a two-and-a-half-hour work day."

Parrot said the union of inside workers had suggested a number of different ways to reduce the work week "but to exaggerate these proposals and take them as cumulative is to totally falsify the union's position."

FOR MUSEUM

B.C.'s Provincial Museum has been awarded a $40,300 federal grant to enable it to continue the registration of its collections in archeology, ethnology and ornithology.

In announcing the grant, Secretary of State John Roberts said it is being awarded on the recommendation of the board of trustees of the National Museums of Canada, under its registration assistance program.

The program provides financial and technical assistance to ensure that objects and collections of national heritage significance are efficiently recorded.

Customs Officer Suspended

VANCOUVER (CP) — Customs Supt. Walter Coleman, a 27-year veteran with several commendations to his credit, has been suspended from duty pending the outcome of an investigation into allegations of corruption among customs officers on the Vancouver waterfront.

Coleman's Burnaby home was raided Wednesday by National Harbors Board police and customs investigations armed with a search warrant.

Acting collector of customs Hugh Cameron said Friday: "I have been given enough evidence to warrant taking away his job but that doesn't mean he's guilty."

Four other customs officers whose homes were raided at the same time are still on the job, Cameron said.

Cameron said no employees of customs broking firms are under investigation.

It was earlier reported that employees of stevedoring, shipping and customs broking firms were being investigated.

EXTRA OPENING AIDS TROLLERS

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's troller fishermen, angry about closure of sockeye salmon fishing off the west coast of Vancouver Island, are getting a break with reopening of much of that area as of midnight tonight.

And the Johnstone Strait area, which closed earlier this week to gillnetters as well as trollers, will open for two days Sunday evening.

Fisheries department officials said Friday the openings have been allowed because of an increased influx of sockeye, and because the unusually warm weather in the area is now cooling, so sockeye no longer are delaying in the area, but are continuing their return to the spawning grounds.

The areas were closed because the Adams River run of sockeye was at much lower levels off the island than expected, creating fear there would be a significant shortfall in escapement to the spawning grounds and thus a threat of reduced future runs.

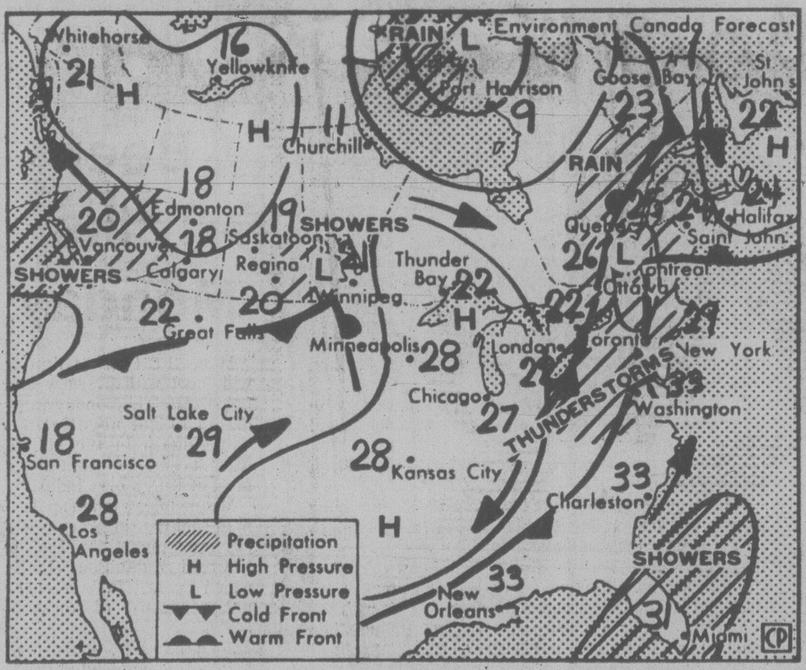

Map valid until midday Sunday

A weather disturbance has moved along the B.C. coast and has passed into Washington State. Cool unsettled air lies across most of B.C. in its wake. Thus mainly cloudy skies will occur today together with a few showers over most districts. Over the Interior there is a risk of isolated afternoon and evening thundershowers. Little change is expected on Sunday except for the north coast where some improvement is forecast. Temperatures will continue cool.

ENVIRONMENT CANADA WEATHER OFFICE 10 A.M. FORECASTS

Valid Until Midnight Sunday

Greater Victoria: today mostly cloudy with a few showers. Sunday cloudy with sunny periods. Highs both days near 19. Lows tonight near 10.

Greater Vancouver, Lower Mainland, East Vancouver Island: today mainly cloudy, a few showers. Sunday cloudy with sunny periods. Isolated showers mainly near the mountains. Highs both days near 19. Lows tonight near 11.

North and West Vancouver Island: today cloudy, a few showers. Sunday cloudy with a few sunny periods. Highs both days near 16 except 18 inland. Lows tonight near 10.

Extradition Denied

HAMM, West Germany (Reuter) — A former Nazi SS corporal who was convicted of war crimes in the Netherlands nearly 30 years ago cannot be extradited to Holland because he is a German citizen, a West German court ruled Thursday. Siert Bruins, 57, was born in the Netherlands, but fled to Germany at the end of the Second World War.

Budgets In Red

A number of government departments have already overspent their budgets, necessitating special cabinet warrants for further expenditures totalling almost $3.8 million.

The forests ministry's road development and maintenance program required an extra $3.2 million in addition to its $6.5 million budget approved by the legislature earlier this year.

And the resource management program in the same ministry was issued an extra $550,000 to its $8.4 million budget.

The universities section of the education ministry was issued a warrant for $37,500.

Biggest Beer Headaches Are on the Order Desk

It might seem at times that there isn't much beer out there during the current beer strike but don't blame the employees of B.C.'s liquor distribution branch.

The LDB boys — despite a steady barrage of obscene phone calls and a shotgun threat — have been working long hours and performing over and above the call of duty to try and spread what beer is available around as fairly as possible.

A report on the situation prepared for the branch says the staff in the LDB and public distribution warehousing companies have been working 12 to 18 hours a day, six days a week to supply the B.C. market.

The dispute started May 26, with a strike at Carling O'Keefe and expanded June 8 with a lockout at Molson's, Labatt's and Columbia Breweries in Creston.

"Despite millions of bottles of beer coming in, special licensee orders to handle, and store distribution to sort out; the branch has had relatively few hassles," the report says.

The report also says: "Anyone who gets his jollies from listening to obscene phone calls should apply for a job on the beer order desk at the LDB.

"No doubt staff taking the phone orders will have to be deprogrammed once the beer dispute is over in order to free their heads of all four-letter words they have heard during the past few weeks.

"They deserve a medal for keeping their cool while temperatures rose at the other end of the line."

The study states that colorful phone calls are not the only hazards faced when working on the beer desk.

One irate licencee walked up to the order desk and announced that if he couldn't get his beer when he needed it, he would come back with a shotgun and reorganize the staff.

"Branch security staff has other thoughts about this."

One licencee flew in from the Queen Charlotte Islands to personally ensure his order would be processed quickly. Orders are filled on a first-come, first-served basis.

Unfortunately, the report notes, the certified cheque he brought with him was insufficient and he was still short after using all the cash he had.

"Staff fished into their pockets and came up with the extra amount needed to fill the order," the report says.

"This is only one of the many occasions on which staff have provided the extra pennies needed to ensure that a licensee could place an order."

The branch has run into problems of geography, bottle supply and bootleggers during the dispute.

"The speculation that Americans have a poor understanding of Canadian geography was borne out when a rail shipment of beer from Omaha, Neb., was sent to Edmonton rather than to Vancouver.

"We can only assume that the shippers saw Edmonton as a suburb of Vancouver."

The shipment eventually reached Vancouver.

One of the larger glass companies in the U.S. northwest suffered a furnace breakdown which affected the supply of bottles to all breweries in Washington, forcing the LDB to start importing beer in cans.

The study says that with almost 200 truckloads of beer each week, scheduling has been a problem.

A large beer order, placed for the Black Mountain Rock Festival in Kelowna, was late arriving in B.C., so the LDB shipped the order to Kelowna in a refrigerated truck so that it would be chilled and ready to drink when it arrived.

Another order, to a mining camp north of Campbell River on Vancouver Island had to be scheduled to meet the sailing of a supply barge which makes the trip once every eight weeks.

An Interior hotel placed an order for beer for its beer parlor, but the order was accidently shipped to the liquor store instead and before anyone could correct the error, the beer had been sold.

"Fortunately, the LDB was able to send off another shipment immediately and this time it got to the hotel."

Aborted Test Tube $50,000

MRS. DEL ZIO
. . . anguished

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal jury has awarded a 31-year-old Florida woman $50,000 — and her husband $3 — for the anguish caused by their thwarted attempt five years ago to become parents of the world's first test-tube baby. She had sought $1.5 million.

But the jury also determined Friday night that Dr. Raymond Vande Wiele, who admitted destroying the experiment, was innocent of harming Doris Del Zio's property — the test tube containing the incubating embryo that was to have been transferred to her womb.

Vande Wiele said he destroyed the embryo because it was not sanctioned by his hospital and could have created a "monstrosity."

Nevertheless, Mrs. Del Zio — who lives in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. — called the verdict "a vindication for all women" and a vindication of the two doctors who conducted the unfinished experiment.

Interest in the trial, which began July 17, was heightened midway in the testimony when Lesley Brown, a 31-year-old Briton, became the first woman to give birth successfully to a baby conceived outside the womb.

In the destroyed experiment at Columbia Presbyterian Medical Centre, Dr. Landrum Shettles and Dr. William Sweeney began nurturing an egg from Mrs. Del Zio's ovary that had been fertilized by sperm from her husband.

The jury of four women and two men granted Mrs. Del Zio's husband, John, 59, a token award—$1 from each of the three defendants, Vande Wiele, chief of gynecology and obstetrics at Columbia Presbyterian; the hospital; and Columbia University, which administers the hospital.

No Word On Swap Talks

NEW YORK (AP) — Negotiations for the release of Anatoly Shcharansky remained secret Friday after a rabbi returned from talks in Berlin over a possible prisoner exchange for the Soviet dissident.

Rabbi Ronald Greenwald said Friday that he met for three days this week with East German lawyer Wolfgang Vogel, who in February helped Greenwald set up a three-country prisoner exchange.

Greenwald refused to say whether a deal is imminent.

Representative Benjamin Gilman (Rep. N.Y.) also declined comment on negotiations.

Greenwald and Vogel were involved in a prisoner exchange in February that freed an Israeli pilot from Mozambique, an East German spy from Pennsylvania, and a U.S. student from East Germany.

Shcharansky was sentenced to 13 years for treason and anti-Soviet activities.

Several nations are involved in the possible swap, and Gilman said he is optimistic that a deal can be made.

Among the reported possible exchanges for Shcharansky are Gunter Guillaume, the West German spy whose 1974 arrest led to the resignation of former chancellor Willy Brandt, and two United Nations employees from the Soviet Union who are accused of spying—Viktor Enger and Rudolf Chernyayev.

Karpov Sacrifice Pays Off

BAGUIO, Philippines (Reuter) — A richly rewarding sacrifice catapulted champion Anatoly Karpov ahead of challenger Viktor Korchnoi today, leaving the champion dominating the 14th game of the world championship when they adjourned.

The sacrifice drastically diverted the course of a battle that looked like it might wind up in a draw until well into the end game.

The 27-year-old champion gave up a rook for a bishop and a pawn—and reaped the reward of picking up one pawn and then another which more than compensated for what he gave up.

Karpov sealed his 42nd move for opening Sunday if they finish their adjourned previous game in time to allow further play during six hours alloted for adjourned games.

In the adjourned previous game, the first to be resumed Sunday, Korchnoi had made a striking similar sacrifice of rook for bishop and pawn—and also was ahead when they adjourned on Thursday night.

But the challenger faces a difficult task to turn his advantage into a win Sunday.

Earlier, the world's two top chess rivals had rushed into prospects of a drawn 14th game—without having any method to agree on one if it came about because of the animosity existing between Karpov and Korchnoi, a 47-year-old Soviet defector.

$125M Car Death Suit

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — Ford Motor Co., already appealing a multi-million-dollar damage award to a teen-ager burned in a Pinto gas tank explosion, is being sued for $125 million in punitive damages by the parents of another youth killed in an accident involving a Mustang.

The lawyer representing the parents of Jeffrey Schmitt says the suit, filed Thursday in Orange County Superior Court, was prompted by a jury's $128-million compensatory and punitive damage award last February to 19-year-old Richard Grimshaw.

Parliamentary Reforms

Some good work is being done by parliamentary committees in Canada. The unanimous report of the special Senate-Commons committee on prison reform was a well thought-out blueprint for change in the nation's prisons, based on several weeks of hearings and travels to penitentiaries here and in the U.S.

Last week, Sen. George van Roggen's standing committee on foreign affairs published a report proposing free trade with the United States — an issue which is taboo in some political circles but one which the committee gave careful consideration. Whether one is for or against free trade, the report itself provides a good summary of the arguments.

The Senate committee on poverty, chaired by Sen. David Croll, and Sen. Keith Davey's inquiry into the effects of the mass media on Canadian life are two more solid pieces of work that came out of the parliamentary system as it is now organized.

But they are exceptions. One never reads of parliamentary committees performing outstanding work in what they are supposed to be doing: investigating the doings of the government. Parliament holds the purse strings, but its grip is more like an enfeebled octogenarian's than the young tiger it pretends to be. Parliamentary review of government spending — the principal role of Commons' committees — is shallow and unproductive, a mere skimming of the surface. An MP concentrates on what the government is spending in his own riding ("Why is the dock at Quiggle's Cove in such terrible disrepair?"), and neglects the larger picture, the general issues ("What's the justification for user pay in transport policy in such a huge country so sparsely settled?").

A special committee of members of the British House of Commons, faced with nearly identical problems, has suggested some reforms. An American newspaper began its account with an obituary: when a Labor MP died recently, his entire staff was dismissed on the spot. It consisted of one woman, his secretary. Americans familiar with a well-advised congress staffed by several thousand men and women to find and fetch for senators and representatives are shocked at the "antiquated and amateurish fashion in which the House of Commons works."

Most of the research talent and money is employed in the service of only thirty men and women — the cabinet. The other 235 make do with a fraction of the resources.

The select committees of the British House of Commons have only 56 fulltime employees and 17 of these are secretaries and messengers. The special committee points to the obvious in its report: "The balance of advantage between Parliament and government in the day-to-day working of the constitution is now weighted in favor of the government to a degree which arouses widespread anxiety and is inimical to the proper working of our parliamentary democracy."

The members propose several changes to enable the House of Commons "to exercise effective control and stewardship over ministers and the expanding bureaucrcy of the modern state . . . and to make the decisions of Parliament and government more responsive to the wishes of the electorate."

The simplest recommendation was one carried over from a previous study — that every MP be allowed at least one personal research assistant in addition to his secretary — but other proposed changes would alter the "haphazard and crippled" state of parliamentary committees. They would abolish seven specialized committees born in earlier times and replace them with new ones with broad responsibilities matching the government departments. Canada's House of Commons committees are organized roughly along these lines now, but they face the same problems as the British MPs — lack of professional help. The British committee proposes that committees be allowed to hire whomever they need and at professional rates of pay. Now, five investigating committees hire about 20 specialists for two days a week, but they labor largely for the love of it.

The select committees also proposed other reforms which could be equally helpful in Canada in redressing the imbalance between government and House of Commons. Committees should be allowed to order that documents be produced by government departments, it said, and to compel ministers to give evidence.

These may strike Canadian parliamentarians as rather too radical for domestic use, but some kind of reform of the parliamentary committee system is definitely needed. At least in Britain, executive power is diffused among nearly 100 cabinet members and junior ministers — almost one-sixth of the total number of MPs. In Canada, power is concentrated in a small number of ministers — some, like Otto Lang, have three enormous portfolios. It's time the pendulum began to swing back in the direction of parliamentary accountability.

An Information Deluge On Environmental Issues

True or False?:

- 2,4-D can cause birth defects.
- The chemicals in bacon can give you cancer.
- The myriad chemical additives in ordinary bread can be harmful to your health.

If you're like 99 per cent or more of the population, it's likely the only answer you can honestly give to those questions is "I don't know."

And in your own mind you'd probably like to add: "And since I don't think I can find out, I don't much care anyway."

Nearly every day this summer, it seems, new data has emerged dealing with the hazards — or lack of same — caused by 2,4-D and related herbicides. One day a professor from UBC is saying that 2,4-D is quite safe provided it is used according to set-out procedures. The next the B.C. Medical Association is saying its use should be suspended because it suspected of being a health hazard.

The following week the National Research Council is saying the evidence, including a review of the available scientific literature, shows it might definitely be a risk, more research should be done, and use should be monitored extremely carefully.

The environment ministry counters with a study which states that nowhere in the available scientific literature is there a single piece of evidence linking 2,4-D to birth defects or other health problems in humans.

As the average non-scientist sits out on his front lawn to watch the city works crew spray 2,4-D on the weeds on the boulevard or visits the Okanagan to find provincial civil servants dumping the stuff in lakes, what is he to think?

Now the same thing is happening in relation to nitrite, a preservative used in bacon, ham, wieners and other processed meats. A couple of weeks ago a study from the U.S. was made public which appeared to show that nitrite had a link with cancer.

But the Canadian government announced that it had not found enough evidence of danger to warrant banning the chemical from Canadian foods. As the housewife stands at the meat counter figuring out next week's supper menus, how can she know whether or not it is safe to buy?

At the same time governments, environmental groups and others with special interests argue back and forth about how to deal with these conflicting claims. On one side are the most extreme environmentalists, who say that virtually no substance with even a remote possibility of being hazardous should be used or allowed. On the other are some government and industry officials who seem to think that little short of corpses littered about would be enough evidence to ban chemicals.

Once again, caught in the middle is the public.

The confusion raised in the public mind is in itself something it would be better to avoid. Ordinary people find quite enough uncertainty in their day-to-day lives, what with food prices, labor disruptions and their own personal problems without having to worry about whether they are being poisoned by the food they eat or the air they breathe.

But far more serious is the effect these conflicts are having on the general public attitude toward environmental and health matters. Put bluntly, the majority of citizens have given up.

The whole problem has become too big, too complicated, too overwhelming for them to contemplate. Having not the depth of scientific knowledge to make their own judgments on the research experiments done — and it seems that only a PhD in biochemistry would give enough knowledge to enable them to make many of those judgments — they must rely on the distillation of knowledge by so-called experts. Since it is now apparent that the experts themselves cannot agree, the public has no one whom they feel they can trust on these matters.

They are forced to adopt a position of acceptance. They may not be happy that the government is dumping herbicides into lakes or allowing all sorts of preservatives in foods, but they go along with it, unable to see any alternatives. If they or their children end up dead because of some kind of chemical poisoning, so be it.

Surely this is not the sort of attitude we want to encourage in our society. Yet the public is not to be blamed for acting this way. Indeed it is probably the only possible way to react when faced with such a deluge of conflicting information. But the government could and should be blamed for doing nothing to try to help its citizens deal realistically with these difficult problems.

It may not at this time be able to provide any black-or-white answers to the problems. But it surely should be working on whatever research is necessary to find clear-cut answers.

And, perhaps even more important, it should be trying to explain to its citizens, in terms that the non-scientists can understand, just what the issues are, what the risks are, and why the government thinks the risks are small enough to be worth taking. — B.McL.

W.A. WILSON

Our Leaders Are Failing Us

OTTAWA — This country is suffering the effects of two national leaders who are both stubborn, proud and utterly unwilling to recognize that the nation finds them inadequate to meet the deep problems of the day.

One is Prime Minister Trudeau, the other Conservative Leader Joe Clark. Each man lacks the stature to stand aside in favor of some other leader who might be able to command the confidence of the Canadian people. That is a severe condemnation of each of them, for there is no single thing this country more desperately needs than a national leader with the courage to be brutally honest with the public about the nature of our difficulties and in whom, as a result, they would be prepared to have confidence. It is likely that Canadians would indeed trust Churchillian honesty about our situation. There is no sign that they believe Clark's glib "we would do better" pre-election campaigning or Trudeau's efforts at constitutional and economic sleight of hand.

It does not seem likely at this time that Clark will be the country's next prime minister. If the national mood should change, and he were to win the impending election, he would find that he has trapped himself because he has been trying to persuade people that there are relatively easy answers to our problems and that he and his followers are masters of these responses. The truth which we desperately need to hear from our leaders is that there are no easy answers, that our time of difficulty will go on for some years yet and that we cannot escape through any shortcuts. We can only work our way through. That will be no disaster for most people but it will not be entirely comfortable either.

Floundering Government

Trudeau and his government are floundering. A charitable view of the latest constitutional proposals would be that they show a daring effort to break through a logjam, to achieve some movement finally in an area that has long been frozen in the combination of disagreement and indifference. A considerably more realistic appraisal, however, would be that they demonstrate a lack of realism and a failure to understand the inherent nature of federations, a willingness to place presumed electoral advantage above national purpose.

Except for the proposals about the post office, the sudden "let's save the nation" economic speech was old hat, as badly thought out as anyone would expect when the speech-writer is called in at seven in the morning to prepare an important statement for delivery that evening. It lacked originality and it lacked adequate advance consultation with other members of the cabinet. This was so marked that it led one old political hand, a man of vast experience, to remark that some of the other ministers should have resigned. But it also led him to add thoughtfully:

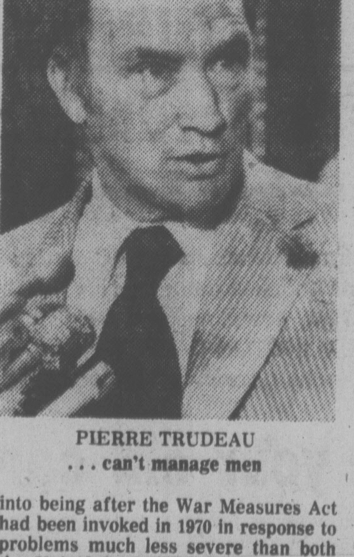
Trudeau has been a failure as a manager of men, although that is the first talent required of a political leader. He himself has admitted more than once his inadequacy with other human beings. He has mistaken the nature of political leadership so badly that when the question has arisen it has long been obvious that he had no idea what others meant by the term. Most people mean by it an ability to show the way and to get others to follow. To Trudeau, political leadership means sudden, drastic action and we have seen this from him repeatedly: the excesses of the first war on inflation back in 1969-70 which came to an end only because the policies were so extreme that the value of the dollar was seriously upset and the government was forced without choice to change course; the extreme powers brought into being after the War Measures Act had been invoked in 1970 in response to problems much less severe than both the United States and West Germany have undergone with no equally aberrant departure from democratic standards; the abrupt about-turn on price and wage controls in 1975, imposed within a fortnight of a persuasive speech against them; now, the unrealistic constitutional proposals followed by the sudden economic speech with little consultation.



PIERRE TRUDEAU

Between these sudden plunges there have been the periods of indulgence. It is a great mistake to believe that government spending and the size of the public service soared only because of new social programs. It soared because the entire scope of government was expanded, with the creation of unnecessary new government departments and a sky-is-the-limit approach to hiring. Now much of that is to be reversed. The sequence alone convicts this government of a disastrous inability to look ahead. As another old political hand has remarked:

Creation of the department of urban affairs was always an absurdity because this is a provincial field of jurisdiction. Trudeau may have believed that the provinces were handling it badly but the public is ill-served by federal efforts to dilute responsibility. That merely makes it still more difficult for ordinary people to get acceptable responses from the level of government that does have jurisdiction. The most fervent Liberal partisan would be hard-put to cite ways in which the public interest has been served by the creation of a costly department of communications. Communications satellites perhaps? No new department of government was necessary to manage private industry's construction of the hardware nor to arrange with the United States to put it in space for us. Science and Technology was to have been a very small agency. It promptly grew to more than 10 times its anticipated size, so weak was the Trudeau government's administrative control, so total its inability to see ahead.

Clark No Better

The most painful part of this situation is that Clark does not seem to be any closer to a reasonable track. He is a captive of conventional political approaches — "we can do better than they can" — at a time when the problems are not conventional. Repeated tax cuts have failed to provide the economic stimulus the country seeks — but more of the same is Clark's primary economic prescription. He has nothing to say on one of the more worrying problems of the moment, the fact that the continuing sharp rise in food prices threatens to undermine the relative stability that has developed in labor costs.

There is no easy answer to this predicament. The price of imported foods cannot be controlled and this is a large factor in recent developments. It is politically impossible to cut farm incomes and in any case they are not excessive. What then is the answer? It is reasonably clear. If Canadians do not wish to upset wage stability and touch off a fresh round of inflation, they must accept the necessity of using a larger portion of their incomes for food than in the past, as they have gradually accepted the reality that the relative cost of energy has risen and now absorbs a larger share of personal income than it used to. What political leader is telling the people this moderately hard truth? Finance Minister Jean Chretien has come closest but it is the sort of thing that demands the authority of national leaders.

Today, we are being failed by two leaders who are placing personal considerations above national interest.

Shopping Perils

In the Times of Aug. 4 (Store Detectives 'Harassing' Aged) Mrs. Llona O'Gorman states re shoplifting "a small staff creates an atmosphere where shoplifting takes place." True, but worse still it puts pressure on the would-be buyer to "lift."

For instance, last time I entered a big department store to buy a loaf of bread I walked past many displays until I found a food department, and at last a shelf with loaves of bread. I took one and carried it round until I found a cash counter.

"Not here," said the clerk.

"Where can I pay for this?" I asked, but someone else claimed her attention so I wandered on with the bread until I found another cash counter.

"Not here," I was told again. By then I felt all in. Who would suffer as much as I do if I took it and went home to rest? But I felt too confused and too tired to attempt this deed of derring-do so I put it back and struggled out into the street where the fresher air revived me. I thought, if I can get a cup of tea and a rest I think I can get to a little Chinese food store.

I managed to find a ground floor restaurant in a smaller department store, but when I came out two men chased me in the street; one seized my shopping bag. "Where did you buy this?" one said taking out my woolly scarf.

"I don't remember."

"You don't remember!" he mocked, "when there is a ticket with the name of our store on it. I shall put it back in our stock!"

It seems that nature has provided us with a reserve of hormones, which when we are attacked pour into our blood to fit us for a fight. Suddenly my strength came back, I ran after them and into the shop and said, "You can't sell that for new, I have worn it."

"Nonsense!" he said. "It has never been worn, it is quite clean."

"I did wear it yesterday at Silver Threads, the volunteer attendant of the cloak room wound it round my neck. She may witness in my defence." He turned his back on me and walked away with it.

It seemed useless to argue; so I struggled on to the little Chinese shop where I got good service. Since then I avoid big department stores. Recently I have needed a pair of rubber gloves, but kept on washing dishes without, until I thought maybe McGill & Orme will stock them. There I found a service conducted with respect for public health. There is no understaffing or overdriving of the attendants, there are enough seats for customers to rest until a clerk is free to help them.

A few days after my scarf was seized from me it came back by parcel post. Apparently my letter to the manager and reference to the Silver Threads saved it for me. Membership in some benevolent society will often protect one lone person from injustice. Though under the strain of present shopping conditions the pressure to "lift" is sometimes great, I feel that for the sake of the good name of the society that protects one, one should resist this temptation, and that Mrs. O'Gorman's timely protest is not only humane, but considering the colossal cost of Medicare, is in the best financial interest of the general public. — Georgina Harrison, 512-712 Yates Street.

New Theory

With the federal election just around the corner I would like to offer my suggestion of a new approach to run the government.

We have four major parties in Parliament, and I believe they are all doing their best for the people and the province.

With this in mind I suggest that:

- Any party can introduce a bill.

After all the parties have discussed the bill within their own party, when it comes to a vote, only the leader of each party votes. This means that each party would have an MP responsible for finance, for foreign affairs, for industry, and so on, and each of these party experts could bring forward a bill in any area.

- Before a bill becomes law, it must have three votes; that is, three out of the four parties must agree that it is the best solution proposed to whatever the problem is.

My reason for this suggestion is that I think that all the parties have ideas, so with the accumulation of all the brains of all the parties we could solve most of our problems if not all of them. — Robert McKnight, 1182 Colville.

Premiers Sweep Tough Issues Under the Carpet

By WILLIAM JOHNSON
The Globe and Mail

The trouble with the recent premiers' conference in Regina is that people don't properly understand it for what it is. An exclusive club for men of a certain standing, in part. A gathering of the noblemen — the dukes and barons and marquis — who have the feudal king foremost in their minds and rebellious hearts. And it is also partly a national forum where some important men from all parts of the country gather to talk about some important issues.

Club, feudal conspiracy, national forum, the premiers' conference has become all three. Trouble is that the three functions become confused and confounded, and the first two are largely incompatible with the third.

A mob of reporters descends on the gathering, forcing everyone to act as though it's a national forum. The gentlemen's club (wives and children may accompany) is disturbed by the intruders. Can a premier, glass in hand, refuse to take himself seriously when a phalanx of microphones is thrust at him? Can the disgruntled nobleman, who rarely see 10 reporters gathered in his name on his home turf, fail to rise to the occasion of denouncing the feudal lord by the Rideau when the sound and the pith will be carried by the scurrying hundreds across the length and breadth of the land?

The problem is, the sum of 10 provincial premiers does not add up to one national outlook. None of them has a national constituency, none needs to find acceptance from electors right across the country, none must present and defend policies in all parts of the country. No premier must make the whole country work.

Premier Rene Levesque, who passed Bill 101, and Premier William Davis, who rejects official status for French, can see eye to eye and walk arm in arm when they meet at the club because Mr. Levesque does not have to win votes in Ontario and Mr. Davis does not need support in Quebec. Neither has to have a language policy that will make the country work.

The club rules require that the premiers make public only the positions on which they have reached a consensus. It turns out that these gentlemen, from such different parts of the country, can reach agreement because they don't have to resolve the issues that divide them, as they would have to if they met as heads of a confederation, without a federal government to make the whole country work.

What the premiers can agree on, it almost invariably turns out, is their opposition to what Ottawa does or to what Ottawa proposes. They can agree on what they want Ottawa to do, or not to do. The rest is motherhood.

The glaring incongruity of the premiers' annual conference is that they almost never make public a stand on a real, thoroughly provincial issue. There are few fundamentally provincial issues on which they can take a common stand. The club is no place to deal with contentious subjects that could have the members of the club at each other's throats.

A single exception was the premiers' conference last year in St. Andrew's, N.B. There the premiers, put on the spot by a letter from Mr. Levesque inviting them to sign reciprocal agreements with Quebec for access to French and English schools, bit a provincial bullet.

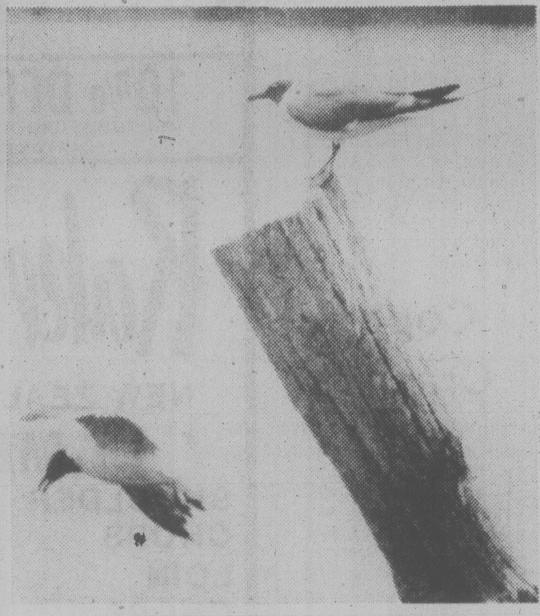
All but Mr. Levesque signed a joint statement committing the premiers to provide French schools, where numbers warrant, for their French-speaking minorities.

But this year Mr. Levesque's chief interest was in making sure that no constitutional reform takes place in Canada before he holds his referendum. So he became a gentleman. He joined the other club members in demanding that constitutional reform deal from the start with division of powers — knowing well that the provinces among themselves could never agree on division of powers, much less agree with the federal goverment. Reform would be postponed for years, if not decades.

Club, federal gathering, national forum — but not as long as they sweep under the carpet every question on which they have conflicting views. These are, in fact, the vital questions for the country.

As long as the premiers need only be against something rather than take responsibility for positive policies that can make the country work, their annual meeting should be considered mostly as a lobby with a particular interest — like a meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers Association — and only incidentally as a forum dedicated to the national interest.

Prof. Beer in his gullery



'Laughing gulls' prowl nearby

He's Listening to the Gull Talk

By EDITH EVANS ASBURY

TUCKERTON, N.J. — While you have been watching your garden grow, or whatever monopolizes your summer attention, Prof. Colin Beer has been hiding in a tiny tent on stilts in the middle of a gullery in the Atlantic Ocean watching gulls — and listening to them. He thinks they talk to each other, and he thinks he understands a lot of what they are saying.

Not only this summer, but every summer since 1965, as often as the tides would allow, the 45-year-old, sunbronzed professor has bumped across Great Bay off the New Jersey coast aboard a small fiberglass motorboat to his little tent on Egg Island.

One of his graduate students usually operates the boat, shoving it ashore and holding it while the professor, in knee-high boots, leaps into the soggy marsh, then pilots it back.

"If he stayed, the gulls would be upset," Beer explained one recent day. "But if they hear someone leave, they resume normal behavior. They don't realize someone has stayed behind."

Beer began watching gulls casually as a young boy in his native New Zealand. He studied them more closely as a graduate student at Oxford, and now works under the aegis of the Institute of Animal Behavior of Rutgers University in Newark.

He specializes in the laughing gull, one of the 40 species of the web-footed white, gray or black sea birds with the very long wings. It gets its name from its cry, which sounds to some like derisive laughter. But Beer hears those sounds as conversation among the birds, and he thinks he knows what the birds are saying to each other.

Recent books and articles on body language have validated the words of the old song that "Every Little Movement Has a Meaning of Its Own." Beer has been singing that song about his gulls for a long time, and writing learned papers to prove it to fellow scholars in ethology. And what his gulls are unwittingly telling him, Beer hopes, will eventually help human beings understand more about their own various means of communication.

Beer has taken some gulls home to his laboratory and has played recordings of other gulls for them. The recordings, some of which he obtained by hiding microphones in their nests, contain not only the sound of mothers crooning to their young, but also of chicks cheeping inside the egg as they chip the shell to get out.

Chicks in the laboratory, Beer found, paid attention to recordings of their parents' voices, but ignored other adult gulls. Adult birds responded to their mates' voices in certain family situations in which they ignored the same messages from strangers. This told the professor that the voices of individual birds were different and identifiable, even though they might all sound alike to the untutored ear.

A sound uttered loudly may have a meaning different from the one it has when softer. Inflection, tone and body gestures, Beer has concluded, give differing meanings to the same sound, or the same combination of sounds.

"They have a vocabulary just as we do," Beer said, "in which the same sounds used in different combinations, or voiced differently have different meanings."

A human, he added, may say "Oh, yeah?" to express skepticism or "Oh, yeah!" to express enthusiastic approval — and that's using only two little sounds.

Can Monarchy Survive its Friends?

By GEORGE BAIN
Toronto Star

OTTAWA — There are people, of whom I am one, who do not believe the monarchy very well represents the reality of Canada. But there seems no reason to believe that, at least for quite a long time, the monarchy can't survive its critics, who are on the whole a passive lot.

The question is whether it can survive its friends.

The recent royal tour has raised the usual moans about subterranean plots to do away with the monarchy, about imagined slights, about a down-playing of the visit, all of them from people who profess to adore the institution.

What they achieve is to thrust it into controversy — the last thing, one would have imagined, they would want.

The night the Queen and Prince Philip arrived in Newfoundland, CJOH, the private television station in Ottawa, did not have film of the event until the end of its news period; a line was not available earlier, except at prohibitive cost.

According to Max Keeping, the station's news director — a Newfoundlander and no republican — the station received 20 calls in the newsroom, and a half-dozen more at the switchboard, about its coverage, or lack of it.

Most callers wanted simply to register their protest against the absence of film. Some, however, were incensed to have learned that the prime minister was not present to receive the Queen and one demanded to know if the station had not run film "because Trudeau told you not to."

* * *

That last, which has horrendous implications, has turned up in stranger places than in the call of an anonymous TV viewer; the other, the prime minister's absence, has been translated into a prime ministerial snub by John Diefenbaker, among others.

So there has been a hoo-ha of sorts, as has become almost an inseparable part of Canadian royal tours, with scarcely a peep from abolitionists except for the brandishing of a home-made sign, "Down With the Monarchy," somewhere on the Saskatchewan whistle-stopping.

Not only have the devoted monarchists succeeded, unaided, in raising mild controversy, but some at least of their plaints have been contrary to their cause — as, for particular example, in the case of the supposed prime ministerial snub.

If it is to be argued that the prime minister must be on hand to receive a royal visitor, in all logic it should be the anti-monarchists who do it. The monarchists, for their part, say that it is not simply a convenient constitutional fiction that the Queen, in one of her several selves, is the Queen of Canada; they say it is a vital reality.

Obviously, then, if the head of state is at home, the head of state does not need to be received.

Visitors, perhaps, are another matter, but, in England, where the Queen visibly resides, Prime Minister James Callaghan undoubtedly would find most strange any suggestion that the monarch was to be received and attended as a visitor.

* * *

As for the other, the suggestion that political pressure has been exerted to bring about a down-playing of the royal visit, it is not necessary to be an absolute idolator of Pierre Trudeau to say that is so far-fetched as to be absurd.

If anything has caused royal visits to decline in news value, it is the number of them: from 1939 to the present, the royal tour has gone from being epochal to being — one member or another — very nearly a yearly event.

Nor does the fact that tours now are usually shorter in duration, confined to one part of the country, and more frequent, result from some plot to make them seem insignificant, compared with the nation-spanning tour of 1939.

The Queen herself wanted them that way.

A Rare Warbler Spreads its Wings

Seventy-five years ago last month, two men went trout fishing in Oscoda County in Michigan. History does not record the results of their angling efforts but this much can be said: when those two fishermen came out of the jack-pine plains of north-central Michigan two days later, one of the great North American ornithological mysteries of the day had been solved. They had found the long-sought nesting grounds of Kirtland's Warbler!

Until that fateful fishing foray, Kirtland's Warbler had been an enigma. Spring and summer records suggested it nested somewhere in the upper mid-western United States. Winter records, on the other hand, put its cold-season home in the Bahama Islands.

Since the discovery of their nesting grounds a lot more has ben learned about Kirtland's Warbler, all of it confirming what was thought at the time — that Kirtland's Warblers were rare, extremely rare.

It is now known that fewer than 500 of them exist; that they nest in small, loose colonies in 160 square miles of the lower peninsula of Michigan — some 200 miles northwest of Detroit; and that their wintering grounds are almost as restricted as their nesting grounds, being half a dozen islands in West Indies, east of Florida — mostly the Bahamas.

But there's more. Kirtland's Warblers are specialists — at least in their requirements for nesting habitat. Only young jack pines, 9 to 25 years old and 5 to 18 feet high, will do. Once the trees, the product of fire, have matured beyond this stage they have "outgrown" the warblers and the birds move on to the next recently burned area.

Kirtland's Warblers, young jack pines, and fire are so closely bound together that for several years wildlife specialists in Michigan have maintained a controlled burning program — burning small tracts of forest on a planned basis to ensure habitat for the birds.

This tie between the warblers and young jack-pines was believed to be so critical that it was thought — and the evidence seemed to support the idea — that, except on migration and on their wintering grounds, the birds would seldom be found far from their beloved young pines.

Now word coming out of the Gatineau hills of Quebec opens up new possibilities.

According to a report from the Canadian Wildlife Service, a Kirtland's Warbler was recently netted along the Gatineau River so that the number on the band it was wearing could be read. The story that number told was of a bird banded as a juvenile in Michigan four years before.

The significant feature of the Quebec record, besides being one of only half a dozen records for Canada, and the very first for Quebec, was that the bird was a male, was singing, and appeared to be on a territory.

Last year the same research team that turned up this year's Quebec bird found a male Kirtland's Warbler near Petawawa, Ontario. The two records constitute the first confirmed sightings of the species in Canada in a decade.

More than that, though, they reveal that Kirtland's Warbler may not be quite as closely tied to its Michigan nesting grounds as had previously been thought. Now, with the knowledge that extensive tracts of jack pine occur in both Ontario and Quebec, and the fact that two male Kirtland's Warblers have been seen in these tracts recently, Canadian biologists are intensifying their search for more of these big, conspicuous warblers.

If their search is successful it may bode well for the threatened Kirtland's Warbler, because any species that breaks out of its traditional habitat restrictions could be taking the first step back along the road from possible extinction.

Now, if only a Canadian trout fisherman could complete the story by finding the first Canadian nest.

Ask your builder about the Super-Insulation System... the lifetime heat and money saver!

"Super-Insulation uses batts inside the walls...plus a blue blanket of STYROFOAM SM on the outside!"
"You'll save on heating bills for as long as you own your new home!"

It's a fact: if you're building or buying a new home, the Super-Insulation System is your best protection against the high cost of home heating. There's nothing complicated about it. S.I.S. simply retains regular batt insulation within the walls and replaces ordinary low-efficiency sheathing on the outside with high-efficiency STYROFOAM* SM insulating sheathing. Result? A snug blue blanket that wraps your home in permanent, super-efficient insulation from top to bottom, corner to corner, and all points between (including the door and window frames).

So, if you're in the market for a new home, talk to your builder about the Super-Insulation System. He'll tell you how the small extra cost is more than repaid by substantial savings and extra comfort all year, every year!

Buffer Zone Boost 'Proves 2,4-D Peril'

SUMMERLAND (CP) — The recent extension of a buffer zone around an area being treated with 2,4-D proves that the controversial herbicide is dangerous, according to an environmentalist spokesman.

"This proves that they don't have a safe program," said Greenpeace spokesman Peter Chataway, referring to the provincial government's plan to attack Eurasian milfoil in the Okanagan Lakes.

However, Peter Scales of the government's water investigation branch said the government is being over-cautious and that the herbicide is not dangerous to people in the amounts now being used.

Environment Minister Jim Neilsen ordered Wednesday that an 800-metre buffer zone around a treatment site on Okanagan Lake be extended to 2,500 metres.

The order came after traces of the herbicide were found beyond the boundaries of the application area, said Neilsen.

A 10-acre plot was treated Monday with about 360 kilograms of Aqua Kleen 20 containing 20 per cent 2,4-D, said Chataway.

"It was stormy weather conditions on Monday and we said that it was not safe to apply the herbicide," he said. "The conditions must be ideal."

Biologist Peter Newroth of the water investigations branch said there was no cause for concern because the level of 2,4-D outside the boundary was well below the danger level for drinking water.

Said Scales: "The government's philosophy is it's better to be too safe than not safe at all."

Traces of the herbicide were found 1,500 metres from the application area, said Scales, but tests later Wednesday showed no traces at 1,500 metres or 800 metres.

Multiple Land Use Urged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Although North Americans are living in the golden age of affluence, they must learn to make better use of leisure time, Dr. Gordon Shrum told said Friday at the Canadian Parks and Recreation Association conference.

"We have an extremely high standard of living and we're receiving an increasing amount of leisure time but the biggest problems facing us today are overeating, overdrinking and finding a parking space," said the ex—B.C. Hydro chairman.

The answer to better utilization of leisure time does not lie entirely in granting more land for recreational use, he added.

"Even though Canada is the second-largest country in the world, we can't afford to grant an unlimited amount of land for recreation," Shrum said. "We should make better use of present facilities and aim for multiple use of land and water resources. This means that parks and recreation groups should work together with other organizations."

He also said the importance of recreation to Canadians is brought out because most of the national heroes are sports figures.

"We never fought a civil war and we never had to fight for our freedom so sports heroes are very important to us," he said. "Canada's recent performance at the Commonwealth Games greatly enhanced Canadian prestige."

Sorry About That, Skipper

VANCOUVER (CP) — A spokesman for the Book of Lists has admitted that Captain James Cook was unjustly maligned when he was awarded sixth place in its syphilitic list.

The inclusion of Cook in the list provided an embarrassing undercurrent to the provincial government's efforts this year to celebrate the bicentennial of his landing at Nootka Sound on the West coast of Vancouver Island.

Native Indians hostile to the celebrations took advantage of the opportunity to charge that Cook was instrumental in introducing venereal disease to the coast.

In a letter from Los Angeles, the book's associate editor admitted to being "guilty of a rather loose interpretation in this case".

Fern Bryant Fadness said that sources for the allegation had been reviewed "and we find that, although Cook's men may have been responsible for spreading syphilis, there is no indisputable evidence that Cook himself suffered from the disease.

"There is still much controversy about who gave what to whom," she said.

"But as for Cook, although he was many times 'indisposed', suffered from a 'violent pain in the groin' and was subject to 'paroxysms of passion', we have come across no definite statement that he had syphilis."

She said that at one time one-third of his crew had the disease and it was certainly possible that they introduced it to the Canadian Indians, "but regardless of the condition and the conduct of his crew, Cook's reputation (at least in this respect) appears to be untarnished".

"We will attempt in the future to be most careful in verifying all of our list items, particularly of this nature".

Chuck Mudrak, information officer for the Captain Cook committee, said Fadness's letter will be relayed to Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy, who now is out of the province. McCarthy is also tourism minister.

Ed Sweeney, executive director of the committee, said that he hadn't commented when the allegations were first made and didn't see any reason to do so now that they have been disproved.

"I look at him as being a great mariner and explorer," he said. "We weren't too interested in his personal medical history. It belittles the man to go into that."

CHETWYND (CP) — The pilot of a helicopter operated by Okanagan Helicopters Ltd. of Vancouver was killed Friday when a Bell 205 aircraft crashed about 80 kilometres south of here.

12 Years Later A New Hearing

VANCOUVER (CP) — A school teacher dismissed 12 years ago has won a new appeal hearing in a British Columbia Supreme Court decision that quashed a government order-in-council.

Court ruled Friday that John Valois Coyle was entitled to the new hearing and ordered Education Minister Pat McGeer to arrange one as soon as possible.

Coyle was dismissed by the school board in nearby Burnaby in May, 1966, for incompetence.

He lost an appeal to a board of reference but in 1975 won a new appeal when the court ruled the board made an error in the case.

He requested a new board of reference hearing in 1976 but was told by the education ministry it had no obligation to take further action.

Because Coyle's dismissal was signed by then-premier W.A.C. Bennett, it was treated as cabinet legislation and the government argued it prevailed over the appeal decision.

Court ruled Friday that it did not and ordered the new hearing.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Judge Blake Allan gave a 25-year-old Canadian armed forces master corporal a tongue lashing before levying a $1,000 fine in Victoria provincial court Friday.

Daniel Lee Wiebe, 855 Ellery, pleaded guilty to care and control of a vehicle while impaired July 26.

Allan began his remarks by saying that Wiebe deserved a jail sentence and would have received one had a previous conviction not been more than five years old.

"You're a real menace to the public," he told Wiebe. "You're going to kill somebody if you keep on with that sort of thing. You're lucky you didn't kill somebody that night."

Crown counsel Nicholas Lang entered stays of proceeding on charges of care and control of a vehicle while having a blood-alcohol reading over .08 and dangerous driving because a recent higher court decision stated that a conviction on one of the three charges means there cannot be one on the other two.

Court was informed Wiebe's vehicle was involved in a head-on crash at Skinner and Craigflower at about 4:40 a.m. Lang said witnesses told Victoria city police they saw Wiebe driving at speeds up to 70 mph along Esquimalt, Tyee and Skinner prior to the mishap.

He said Wiebe was so intoxicated he told police he was in Vancouver and asked where his car was. He was standing beside it at the time.

Lang also told the court Wiebe had a previous conviction for impaired driving, on March 26, 1973, when he was fined $350.

Allan levied the $1,000 fine or, in default, 60 days, and ordered Wiebe to attend the impaired drivers course.

●

A 19-year-old who pleaded guilty to the same charge was given a much lighter fine but was ordered to perform community service work as well as pay the fine.

Terry Roy Styan, 7956 Wallace Drive, pleaded guilty to having care and control of a vehicle July 28 while impaired.

Lang said Styan was travelling north on the Pat Bay Highway when he became involved in a motor vehicle accident about 1:20 a.m.

Saanich police only took one breath test reading, Lang said, because some of the solution spilled onto the machine after the first blow, which registered .17.

Lang said Styan had two speeding convictions in 1976, two more in 1977 as well as two convictions for driving without due care and attention, and one speeding conviction this year.

Allan levied a $100 fine and ordered Styan to perform 100 hours of community service work.

WASHINGTON BITTEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mosquitoes are biting in record numbers this year because rain fell at the right time and in the right spots this spring and summer, entomologists report.

FDA WARNING ON MEDICINES

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Beware of "Koong Yick Hung Far Oil," "White Flower Embrocation," "Red Flower Oil," "Cinnamon Oil," and "Cinnamon Leaf Oil."

They're all medications being sold primarily in Chinese communities as pain relievers for a variety of ailments. The Food and Drug Administration warns they could contain a deadly poison.

The agency said Friday the nostrums contain high concentrations of oil of wintergreen — methyl salicylate — a substance that "can cause death when taken by mouth in quantities of a teaspoon or more."

If applied to the skin in the concentration found in the Chinese products in question, the FDA said, the chemical can be "absorbed through the skin and cause serious poisoning."

"Many of these products do not bear any English labeling, do not have warnings against over-use and may be recommended for use by mouth and for application to the skin," the FDA said.

Symptoms of oil of wintergreen poisoning include vomiting, headache, restlessness, fast breathing and ringing of the ears.

Teacher, 58, Dies

James Wilton, 58, first taught in Alberta and was principal of Redcliffe School, near Medicine Hat, before coming to Victoria.

He was a teacher at Oak Bay for 17 years.

An active athlete for many years, he was prominent in Alberta sporting circles. He served as pitcher for the Redcliff Redsocks baseball team and as forward for the Didsbury Ramblers hockey team.

In Victoria he was a coach in the Carnarvan Pony League.

Manson Man Insane

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Delta man who said his idol was mass murderer Charles Manson was found not guilty Friday by reason of insanity of the hammer killings of his wife and two children.

Ronald William Deardon, 34, was charged with murder after his wife and two young sons were beaten to death in their home in June, 1976.

During the British Columbia Supreme Court trial, a Pentecostal minister testified that Deardon told him three days before the killings that he felt Manson had done a lot for society and that his ideals should be carried on.

Calgary Firm Wins Diversion Contract

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Hydro has awarded an $18.7 million contract to Loram International Ltd. of Calgary for diversion of the Columbia River at the Revelstoke power project.

Diversion should be completed by November and riverbed excavation should be finished by October, 1979, according to a Hydro news release.

Hydro said Loram will build two rock cofferdams, upstream and downstream of the dam construction site, approximately 48 metres and 15 metres high respectively.

A $3.3 million, 27-month catering and housekeeping contract at Hydro's onsite camp was awarded to Cal-Van, Canus Catering Services Ltd. of Vancouver, Hydro said.

The camp initially accommodates 480 men, and will be expanded to hold 2,000 or more as may be needed.

The project, about five kilometres north of Revelstoke on the Columbia River, will comprise a 150-metre high, 150-metre long concrete dam, a six-unit, 2.7 million kilowatt generating station, and a 1,100-metre long earthfill embankment on the west side of the river.

Nissho-Iwai Canada Ltd. has a $28.1 million contract to supply four turbines, and a $29.3 million contract for four generators, Hydro said.

The first three 450,000-kilowatt generating units are scheduled to go into service in 1983, and the fourth in 1984.

GM Announces 4% Hike

TORONTO (CP) — General Motors of Canada announced Friday that the price of its base-model 1979 cars will go up an average of $201 — an increase of 4.4 per cent.

Company officials said the average price of slightly more luxurious models, with options the company believes the typical customer will order, will go up 4.8 per cent.

The price increases only partially offset higher material and labor costs, the company said.

The announcement by the giant auto-maker's Canadian subsidiary followed word from Detroit that GM's retail prices for 1979-base model cars in the United States will be increased an average $219, or 3.9 per cent over the 1978 models.

A company announcement said option prices on American cars will be raised an average 4.9 per cent.

The 1979 lineup of new General Motors cars will be introduced in September.

Pipeline Takeover

CALGARY (CP) — Dome Petroleum Ltd. acquired a toehold on TransCanada PipeLines Ltd., Canada's major natural-gas pipeline system, when it announced Friday it had obtained the majority shareholder position in the company.

Dome said in a statement it paid $18.375 a share for the outstanding shares from Canadian Pacific Investments Ltd.

William Payne, Dome's public affairs director, said in an interview he had no idea how many shares were exchanged nor the dollar figure involved.

Dome, a major gas producer, recently joined a group of other Alberta-based gas producers to export surplus gas from the province to the United States.

The group, calling itself ProGas Ltd., said earlier Friday it would seek long-term arrangements with TransCanada and Alberta Gas Trunk Line Co. Ltd. of Calgary to transport the gas. Alberta Gas Trunk is the common carrier for all gas systems in Alberta.

But it was not known whether Dome's purchase of TransCanada shares was connected with the ProGas proposal.

Attention: Mr. John Hutchinson
Sales Representative

Dear John;

Seven of our sales in the month of July were a direct result of Victoria Press Limited Classified Ads.

Some of the homes were sold with the first ad. The balance were sold after some form of modification in the properties promotion. In any event, your Classified Ads. proved themselves as being the most successful method to tell the public what is new, what has changed, or just what we have for sale.

Big volume production with efficient service takes skill and hard work, but it becomes a little easier with the right kind of help.

Thank you, Victoria Press.

Yours truly,

Trudeau's Free TV Within Policy: CBC

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC says it did not violate its policy on political broadcasts when it allowed Prime Minister Trudeau to go on the air with only a few hours notice for his Aug. 1 speech on the economy.

The Progressive Conservatives and the New Democratic Party complained in a joint letter to the CBC last week that the corporation had violated terms of a February, 1977 draft policy on prime ministerial broadcasts circulated to them last year.

They questioned the need for Trudeau to go on national television for the speech in which he announced that unspecified cuts in government spending would be made over the coming weeks and that the post office would be turned into a Crown corporation.

They said Trudeau had not given the 24 hours notice required for a broadcast on a subject that was not an "urgent issue of national importance." They also complained they were not given equal time for reply.

But the CBC says in a letter to both leaders that the policy on which the two parties based their complaints is only a draft and was never put into effect.

In the letter, CBC executive vice-president Pierre DesRoches says that the policy has been under review by the CBC board of directors.

"Formal approval of the final draft has been deferred until such time as the president (Al Johnson) has had informal discussions with the prime minister's office and the leaders of the opposition parties," DesRoches says.

The use of television prime time by Trudeau has been the subject of bitter complaints by the opposition parties in the past few years.

YUGOSLAVS DETAIN CANADIAN

EDMONTON (CP) — The Canadian government will not be able to help Jack Bakich if the Yugoslav government finds him guilty of alleged war crimes, The Sun says.

Bakich, 66, of Edmonton was arrested in Yugoslavia while visiting his former homeland.

The Sun says a Canadian embassy official in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, looking into Bakich's case said Thursday the investigation into the man's past is between him and the Yugoslav government.

Que. Radiation Hunt On

MONTREAL (CP) — Inspectors for the Quebec Environment Protection Service have begun searching for construction sites where suspected radiation-contaminated fill from an abandoned columbium mine has been dumped.

Pierre Paquette, spokesman for Environment Minister Marçel Leger, said Friday the sand, gravel and dirt has been taken to "hundreds and hundreds of sites."

The fill is the residue from the mine at Oka, Que., 40 kilometres west of Montreal, and was sold to contractors for building highways, dikes and other work, especially in the Oka area.

The open-pit mine was closed two years ago, while the provincial government this week stopped sale of the fill with a Quebec Superior Court injunction.

Jean Roy, an official with the Environment Protection Service, said the fill contained eight radioactive elements, including radium 226, bismuth and radon.

Power Corp.

Power Corporation reported net earnings of $12,213,000 or 89 cents a share for the first half of 1978, up from $5,252,000 or 29 cents a share in the corresponding period last year.

Earnings for the second quarter of 1978 after extraordinary items were $10,690,000 or 81 cents a share, up from $6,385,000 or 46 cents a share last year.

Gross revenue from operations in the first six months this year was $109,070,000, compared with $117,620,000 in the same period in 1977.

The share of earnings of subsidiaries and affiliated companies was $11,740,000 for the first half of 1978. Corresponding figure for 1977 was $7,439,000.

Interest on long-term debt during the first six months of 1978 was $5,759,000, up from last year's $4,466,000.

Kelly,Douglas

Kelly, Douglas and Co. Ltd. reported net earnings of $4,317,000 or 68 cents a share in the 24 weeks ended June 17, up 5.3 per cent from $4,099,000 or 65 cents a share in the corresponding 1977 period.

Sales rose 12.7 per cent to $508 million from $450.8 million last year.

The companh had an extraordinary gain of $300,000 in the 1977 period, which raised total earnings to $4,399,000 or 70 cents a share. There was no comparable item this year.

R. J. Addington, president, said in an interim report that disposal of the company's wholesale and retail drug operations in Western Canada has generated about $12 million in cash. This will be used to strengthen Kelly, Douglas food wholesaling and retailing in western Canada and in the southern and western U.S.

Brenda Mines

Brenda Mines Ltd., of Peachland, B.C. reported a profit of $6,510,000 or $1.52 a share, for the six months ending June 30, compared with $4,660,000, or $1.09 a share, in the same period last year.

Revenue was $31,371,000, compared with $25,781,000.

"Production of copper and molybdenum was lower than in the first half of last year," said J. A. Hall, president. "The increase in revenue was due to the higher price of molybdenum and the lower Canadian dollar relative to the U.S. dollar."

Chieftain Dev.

Chieftain Development Co. Ltd. participated in the drilling of a record 52 oil and gas wells in the first six months of 1978, the firm reported.

Of the total, 12 were begun prior to Jan. 1, 1978. The results include 26 gas wells and four heavy oil wells.

The company's program for the first half of the year concentrated in Alberta after spring breakup.

Trimac Ltd.

Trimac Ltd. of Calgary announced earnings for the first six months of 1578 had increased to $3,862,000 or $1.61 a common share from the $1,727,000 or 78 cents a common share reported for the same period last year.

Trimac said operating revenues reached $71,432,000, compared with $60,818,000 for the six months ended last June 30.

In a news release, Trimac President J.R. McCraig attributed the company's first-half gains to increases achieved mainly in the company's energy exploration business together with the effect of the full consolidation of Kenting Ltd.'s earnings for the period, compared with 56 per cent for the first six months of 1977.

McCraig said that, had Kenting been wholly owned during the entire first half of 1977, earnings would have been 97 cents a share.

Trimac directors Tuesday declared the regular quarterly dividend of 57 cents a share on the 9.12-per-cent cumulative redeemable first preferred shares, series A, payable this Sept. 30 to shareholders of record on Sept. 15, 1978.

Polysar Ltd.

Ian Rush, president of Polysar Ltd., the rubber and plastics giant, said company profits this year won't match those of 1977 because of its investment in Petrosar Ltd.

"Present indications are that the company's own results should be up for the full year, but the Polysar share of Petrosar's first-year loss after provision for dividends on Petrosar's senior preferred shares will result in bringing consolidated net income below last year."

Last week, Petrosar reported a net loss of $2.5 million in the second quarter, blamed mostly on start-up costs as the petrochemical company is only starting its first year of operations. But Rush said the loss had a "negative effect" of $3.7 million on Polysar.

In a report to shareholders today, Polysar reported net income for the first six months of $9 million or $2.59 a share compared with $11.1 million or $4.20 a share for the first half of 1977.

Income before taxes was $21.6 million, an increase of $6 million compared with the same period last year.

First Soviet Autos Arrive

MONTREAL (CP) — The first shipment of Lada automobiles, the Russian-built version of a Fiat, have arrived at the Port of Montreal, on the maiden voyage of the Mekhanik Terasov, a new roll-on, roll-off ship.

A spokesman for Lada Cars of Canada, of Ajax, Ont., said 1,000 Ladas are destined for Ontario where they have been pre-sold.

The 480-car shipment aboard the Terasov was the first delivery under the terms of a $100-million, five-year contract. The car order is designed to improve the trade balance between Russia and Canada, currently 6-1 in Canada's favor.

The Lada is a seven-year-old Fiat 124 design with a doubled thickness of metals and simplified engineering to make owner repairs easier because garages are scarce in Russia, the spokesman said.

The first car off the ship was driven by Canadian motor rally champion Jean-Paul Perusse with the captain of the Russian ship, Alexei Romanov, in the passenger seat.

Ladas will sell in Canada for $3,495 but cost the equivalent of $8,000 in Russia.

Davis Verdict September 11

Thursday, admitting all the facts related to the refunds.

Davis also said he had acted deliberately and wilfully and with intent to break the law but had not committed any crime because the refunds were his by legal right.

His sole defence, his statement said, was "legal entitlement" based on interpretation of statute and order-in-council.

Hall said that if the judge accepted McEachern's claim of legal entitlement he still would have to decide if Davis was guilty of the lesser crime of attempted fraud and theft, in view of the admission of intent.

But McEachern said this "shows the desperation that the Crown is beginning to feel; it is not an offence to take steps to acquire property which already belongs to a person."

Central to the defence, McEachern said, in Section 33 of the B.C. Financial Control Act which says the cabinet may make regulations for fixing the scale of allowances for travelling and living expenses for public servants.

Exactly the same wording is contained in the equivalent statute of 1917 — the first time such a section appears in B.C. law. It has been kept with its "general rather than specific" wording on expense allowances perhaps to leave room for changes in methods of travel, said McEachern.

The section does not mention "reimbursement" but merely allowances and this connotes sums being provided ministers with no requirement for receipts.

McEachern asked the judge to find that first-class air travel is the upper limit of the allowance and that, by downgrading first-class tickets to economy class and taking the difference, Davis merely was faking an allowance to which he was entitled.

Much has been made, the lawyer said, of the fact Davis did not tell his secretaries or others in government of this downgrading; but he was not obliged to tell anyone since he was only exercising his rights.

McEachern cited orders-in-council of 1943, 1952 and 1973 which set per-diem living allowances for ministers — $10 in 1943, $15 in 1952 and $25 in 1973, the sum provided still. This is for meals and incidentals but a minister is under no requirement to account for it.

The order-in-council also allows ministers to have "actual reasonable expenditure" for transportation and accommodation.

The meaning of "actual reasonable expenditure" was a key point between the lawyers with McEachern claiming it primarily means "reasonable" since there is no comma between the "actual" and "reasonable," and does not precisely require accountability or documentary evidence, any more than the per-diem $25.

McEachern said that none of the accounting apparatus through which Davis' expense accounts were put has any legal authority when it comes to examining his allowances.

There may have been testimony from the deputy comptroller-general that the refunds were government property, he said, but the official was speaking only of his own opinion and of practices used in government — not of legal fact.

"If he went to the comptroller-general and said, 'I am going to fly to Ottawa, please give me my allowance in cash,' you would have to conclude the amount would be a first-class fare and he would give it to the minister who would put it in his pocket and go to the airline and then make his decision, and if he chose to go economy the excess would be part of his allowance."

Zsidi . . suits up for another jump

AN ADDICTION HE CAN'T KICK

Joe Gets Jollies Jumping

By CAROL SPELLER
Times Staff

Joe Zsidi gets a real rush from being high.

"I'm addicted," the 22-year-old fire systems engineer says.

He can't help it — he simply loves parachuting.

And when he represents Vancouver Island at the B.C Summer Games this weekend, he hopes to provide some stiff competition.

Joe will jump in the intermediate class with jumpers in the 75 to 200-jump category.

Seven other upper-Islanders also will compete.

Joe started jumping on a dare in 1974 when he was studying geology at Sir Sandford Fleming College in Lindsay, Ont.

(He wanted to try it in high school, but his parents wouldn't let him.)

He and a friend saw a note on the bulletin board and the two decided, "If you do it, I will."

They did.

Then he was hanging there in the middle of nowhere.

The parachute was open and, well, says Joe: "Wow."

The pair met back on earth and Joe said: "We were babbling idiots. You have to go tell someone about it."

He says part of jumping is telling people about it. Then you pack up and do it over again.

Joe came to Victoria in May of last year and despite a job lined up on the Lower Mainland, his feet are planted here.

He really likes Victoria and plans to be a permanent resident.

Jumping is a hobby now, but he's going to try and make it a job.

He estimates his fastest fall at more than 200 m.p.h, and has leaped from 13,000 feet.

To jump from more than 16,000 feet, oxygen is required in the aircraft; more than 20,000 feet, jumpers must wear oxygen masks.

Joe can't say he parachutes because it's there, but the predictable question must be asked. Why?

"The world looks a lot different from up there. Everything looks really nice."

He says the only time accidents happen is when someone goes looking for them. Over-confidence can lead to carelessness.

He owns about $450 worth of equipment and every weekend totes it up to Vancouver Island's only drop zone in Comox.

That includes six hours of instruction, one jump and a one-year membership in the Comox Skydiving Club and the Canadian Sport Parachuting Association.

At the B.C Summer Games, parachutists will be judged for accuracy in three classes: student, less than 75 jumps; intermediate, 75 to 200 jumps and senior, 200 and over.

They'll have to land on or very near a 10-cm. disc.

Saanich Unveils Core Plan

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Welcome to beautiful downtown Saanich, which could also be called the municipality's top banana.

The half-mile-long, banana-shaped area between Seymour Avenue and Vernon Avenue today isn't what you might call beautiful. In places it's downright ugly.

But Saanich officials believe that with a lot of imagination, careful planning and private capital investment it can become a Saanich dream come true.

Municipal planner Gil Laurenson lyrically predicts the narrow 17-acre corridor extending roughly from the municipal hall in the north to just south of the Saanich branch library will become "a civic area of beauty, character and vitality; not a centre that dies when the offices and stores close, but a centre of light and life where our citizens may dwell, congregate, socialize and enjoy the amenities provided within the heart area of their District of Saanich."

His vision is described in a letter accompanying the planning department's latest study, entitled The Civic Core, which will be submitted to council's planning committee Tuesday.

The broad concept of a civic core for Saanich — with a mall as a central feature and including a wide variety of stores, restaurants and other commercial uses — was first outlined in a study produced in late 1976.

Subsequently the idea was incorporated in the municipality's draft community plan.

The Civic Core study indicates obliquely that the proposed town centre has prompted a surge of speculative and real estate interest.

"Consolidation of land is occurring to the extent that only 14 of the 49 legal parcels are in separate ownership," it states.

LAURENSON

The major owners or option holders aren't identified in the report but a municipal official told the Times Friday that they include Montreal Trust (which has assembled the entire 4.5-acre block opposite the Saanich municipal complex), George Wheaton Construction Ltd., Metro Realty, Ben Enterprises and a holding company named Sey-Vern 6 Ventures Ltd.

Vernon and Seymour, flanking the proposed town centre, also form the roads — Vernon northbound, Seymour southbound — in the major Blanshard extension project.

The report notes that the impact of highway development has already resulted in the demolition of some homes on Seymour.

There are three distinct blocks within the study area: the north block owned by Montreal Trust, the much larger central block opposite the Town and Country shopping centre, and a small south block owned by the provincial highways ministry.

The study recommends that the north block be developed under single ownership, the central block be developed gradually as a series of individual projects and the south part be landscaped as a park.

Design emphasis should lean heavily in favor of pedestrians, with a mall of varying width (to avoid a sterile corridor effect) running the full length of the central block.

"The mall will be a series of spaces, meandering between nodes always providing a glimpse of what is ahead, always something to see at the edges or in the mall itself," the study says.

Mall construction will be the responsibility of each developer, conforming to guidelines established by Saanich.

Among other specific recommendations:

—Encouragement of apartment development, to ensure the area doesn't die when stores and offices close.

—Industrial uses, service stations, boat and vehicle sales and rental operations should be prohibited, but such commercial uses as indoor and outdoor markets, hotels, theatres, restaurants, convenience stores and craft and specialty shops should be encouraged.

—A density bonus as an incentive for developers to provide underground parking.

—Height restrictions on buildings in the central block, to allow maximum sunshine penetration to the mall, to vegetation and to residences.

A companion document to the planning department's study, prepared for Saanich by landscape architect Moura Quayle, sets out a comprehensive set of guidelines for landscaping treatment of the mall and surrounding area.

In his letter forwarding the reports to the planning committee, the municipal planner notes that the land department has already run into a roadblock in its efforts to acquire a municipal right-of-way for underground services, which would follow the line of the proposed mall.

The major property owners concerned are unwilling to negotiate, Laurenson says, for fear of harming the development potential of their properties.

Point-Cross Proposal Feared Safety Hazard

Concern that a new pedestrian scheme Saanich is eyeing may worsen crosswalk safety was voiced Friday by retired provincial traffic director John Harding.

The point and cross method — in use in Prairie provinces — gives pedestrians absolute right of way at intersections once they have pointed an arm in the intended crossing direction.

Harding warned the plan now being considered by the municipality's advisory traffic committee could worsen rather than improve an already good pedestrian safety record in Saanich.

Victoria traffic committee chairman Ald. William McElroy, who at one time favored point and cross, said he now prefers extending a program introduced last year by the city of creating small traffic islands known as refuge areas.

"They are a vast improvement over the system being considered by Saanich," he said.

Both Harding and McElroy said the major weakness of the system under consideration by Saanich is that it places too much responsibility on motorists and not enough on pedestrians.

McElroy said however, he is concerned about an increase in motorists not yielding to pedestrians at marked crosswalks.

He said drivers guilty of such traffic infractions should be fined rather than lose demerit points.

'Missing' Boat Safe in Harbor

A pleasure craft that vanished Thursday night sparking a joint Coast Guard-RCMP search turned up Friday tucked safely away in Roche Harbor, San Juan Island.

The 21-foot Green Dolphin, skippered by Bruce Walters of Gresham, Ore., disappeared late Thursday as it followed another boat from Sidney to Oak Bay.

A Coast Guard official said today that Walters apparently grew concerned when darkness fell and a chop came up on the water and checked into Roche Harbor rather than continue.

"The only thing is he forgot to tell anyone," Sidney RCMP said.

Before turning up the boat, police checked marinas in the vicinity while a Coast Guard Zodiac traced the shoreline from Sidney to Oak Bay.

"We spent a considerable time looking for him," said the Coast Guard spokesman.

PILEUP INJURES WOMAN

Police said a car driven by Johann Krueger, 20, of Clearbrook, turned left from McRae Ave. on to Shelbourne St. and collided with a vehicle driven by Maria Dardengo, 44, of 1434 Westall.

The Dardengo car was bounced into the northbound lane and hit a station wagon driven by Douglas Gillingham, 67, of 56 Gorge Rd. East.

Dardengo received ankles, arm and facial injuries.

Indians Rumble Law Suit Over Name Change Idea

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

What's in a name? A heck of a lot, according to Joe Frank.

And because of it, a campaign to rename Pacific Rim National Park has run into a roadblock.

Frank, chief councillor of the Opitsat Reserve, near Tofino on the west coast of Vancouver Island, says he is dead set against calling the park Wickaninnish — the name of an Indian chief who played an important role on the island's West Coast during sea otter fur trading days.

According to Indian tradition, Frank's family is the owner of the name by inheritance and it has been bestowed upon his son, George.

The chief's threatening to take the matter to court if the campaign to have the name changed succeeds.

It's being led by Jane Waddell, a member of the Victoria Outdoor Club, with support from the Outdoor Recreational Council of B.C.

Although the name Wickaninnish is perpetuated in the park, Waddell wants the entire park renamed as such because it is part of the heritage of the west coast.

But the Franks won't stand for it.

An Indian boy may receive several names before the final and most important name is bestowed upon him.

The process involves ceremonies and potlatches.

"Only members of a family have the right to certain names passed on from generation to generation," Frank says.

"It has deeper significance than the family crests of Europeans.

"What annoys us is the gall of non-Indians. Without even consulting us, they decide they want to call the park by a name owned now by my son.

"The whites have grabbed our lands, taken our forests, ruined our fisheries and now they want our names. What else do they want?"

Frank said the bay fronting Long Beach in the park is already called Wickaninnish, and there is a Wickaninnish beach and a Wickaninnish centre as well as a Wickanninnish school in Tofino.

"All these place names were given without our permission long ago," he said.

"You would think this was enough. But now they want the whole park named Wickaninnish.

"This is the last straw. If these people win, we may sue."

A provincial anthropologist says Frank is perfectly right.

Wanted: Spooky House

Looking for ways to ease the mortgage on that huge draughty mansion?

Why not rent it out for a spooky movie?

An urgent call has been issued by the feature films office of Tourism B.C. for a very large, traditional mansion to be used for four months for the filming of a ghost-story thriller in the greater Vancouver or Victoria area.

Bernard Atkins of Tourism B.C. said the producer and director for the movie are already in B.C. and a crew is being selected for the shooting.

The script calls for a mansion, in need of renovation or cited for demolition, that is vacant, has a minimum of three storeys with large rooms with high ceilings and lots of windows.

ROBBERS JAILED

MONTREAL (CP) — Five men, including two former members of the Front de Liberation du Quebec (FLQ), were sentenced Friday to terms ranging from 11 to 17 years in prison for an armed bank robbery carried out in July, 1977.

Sessions court Judge Jacques Lessard sentenced Pierre Boucher, 34, to 17 years in penitentiary and Andre Ouellette, 39, to 11 years. Both had served time for armed robberies committed in the 1960s aimed at helping finance the FLQ.

New Prisons Delayed by Budget Cuts

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A $74.5-million reduction of the federal corrections budget probably will force delays in construction of major new prisons, senior corrections officials said Friday.

The cut might delay some projects and cause hiring to stop but no existing jobs would be lost, they said.

The reduction is part of a $1.5-billion cut in federal spending announced earlier this week by Robert Andras, treasury board president.

"It will set back some (projects) but we're not diverting from our long-term plan of improving facilities," said corrections commissioner Donald Yeomans.

He said he sees no possibility of prison overcrowding.

The government planned to build 24 new prisons by 1985 at a cost of more than $500 million.

The $115-million capital part of the correction service budget for fiscal 1978-79 must be reduced by 17 per cent to meet the cut, said Claude Tessier, public affairs director for the service.

He said no existing jobs would be lost but hiring would be frozen.

Options to offset the cut include adding more cells to existing institutions and reduced use of regional reception centres for confirmed criminals who violate parole with a major crime, he said.

The correction service budget for penitentiary and parole service in fiscal 1978-79 is $416 million.

O CANADA . . . WITH WOMEN

HAMILTON (CP) — A Hamilton man's concern for Canadian unity has led him to rewrite O Canada to include women and immigrants.

Robert Wamseley, 77, said in a recent interview that he has sent a copy of his altered version of Canada's national anthem to the provincial government and to Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

The standard version leaves out too many groups, said Wamseley, who came to Canada from England when he was nine.

He said his version "is bound to aid unity because it takes in everyone."

He said the opening line of O Canada describes the country as "our home and native land," but that does not suit all Canadians so he changed it to "our own beloved land."

Other changes in the anthem include the removing of one of the "on guard's" from the chorus and changing the word "Dominion" to "Domain" in the last verse.

Rene's Divorce Bad News?

MONTREAL (CP) — Questions of legality and propriety were asked this week about the publication in several newspapers of Premier Rene Levesque's testimony at his divorce hearing and a controversial interview with his estranged wife in the tabloid Montreal-Matin.

Civil rights lawyer Claude Armand Sheppard suggested Friday in a letter to the daily Le Devoir that, in his opinion, the Criminal Code of Canada had been violated by publication this week of the premier's testimony at a Nov. 21, 1977, hearing in Quebec family court.

The premier, who turns 56 on Aug. 24, is embroiled in divorce proceedings with Louise Levesque, 57, whom he married in 1947.

Sheppard cited Section 162 (1) of the code which says it is an offence to publish, among other things, any details of a judicial procedure for divorce other than names, addresses and professions or occupations of the parties and witnesses.

The section goes on to say, however, that it is legal to publish "a concise statement of the charges, defences and countercharges in support of which evidence has been given."

Other lawyers also point out that Section 273, which guarantees the right to publish matters of public interest for the public benefit, might be cited in defence.

There has been no threat of legal action in the case, but Sheppard wrote that it is regrettable that "the family of Rene Levesque and his close ones should be made the object of this barrage of illegal publicity."

The premier filed for divorce in July, 1977, on the grounds of permanent marriage breakdown. He says he has lived apart from his wife since 1970. They have three children, aged 22, 28 and 30.

Mrs. Levesque said in her interview that Levesque was not the same man she married, and, among other things, their 28-year-old son Claude has been unemployed as a journalist for several months, and wondered why, with the premier's many friends in government, there "isn't a job for his son."

In Quebec City, a Levesque aide said the front-page Montreal-Matin interview "is not something we looked at with pleasure."

It's "no more elegant than what Mrs. Trudeau did," the aide said, referring to Margaret Trudeau's interviews with journalists about her separation from the prime minister and aspects of their private lives.

"But Mrs. Trudeau didn't talk about her political views."

VOTE WOULD STALL VISIT

QUEBEC (CP) — French Prime Minister Raymond Barre is likely to delay a planned official visit to Quebec this fall if Prime Minister Trudeau calls a federal election, Quebec government spokesmen said Friday.

"Good sense tells us that it would be improbable that a French prime minister would visit Quebec during a federal election campaign," said an aide to Intergovernmental Affairs Minister Claude Morin.

A spokesman for Premier Rene Levesque said no dates had been fixed, but Barre was due to visit the province in October or November following an invitation from Levesque during his official visit to France last year.

If an election is called, Barre's visit could be put off until next year although winter dates are unlikely, the spokesman added.

Interest Rate To Climb?

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance and Bank of Canada officials said Friday that a sharp increase in U.S. interest rates does not necessarily mean rates here are about to rise.

Earlier Friday, the U.S. Federal Reserve announced a sharp increase in the discount rate it charges member banks to 7.75 per cent from 7.25 per cent, the highest rate in more than three years.

The Bank of Canada raised its lending rate to chartered banks on July 25 to nine per cent from 8.5 per cent. A bank official says the difference between U.S. and Canadian rates is still not as narrow as it was in early July.

Both the U.S. move and the last Bank of Canada increase in interest rates was aimed largely at protecting external value of each country's dollar. Higher interest rates encourage capital inflows by making investment more attractive.

The key to any change in Bank of Canada policy on interest rates likely will be the course of the Canadian dollar's value over the next few days, officials say.

THE SOCCER HUSTLE? New York Cosmos' forward Vladislav Bogicevic (right) and defender Brian McNeil of Portland Timbers appear to be dancing during North American Soccer League playoff game in Portland. Dennis Tueart's goal at start of second half gave Cosmos 1-0 victory in first game of National Conference series. Winners will face either Tampa Bay Rowdies or Fort Lauderdale in NASL final. Tampa Bay moved into American Conference showdown with 1-0 victory over San Diego on Thursday. (AP Wirephoto).

Consistency Returning To the Wadkins Game

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lanny Wadkins, who has been troubled most of the season by inconsistent play, now has his game together and that's bad news for the rest of the field in the $100,000 Canadian Professional Golfers Association international championship.

The 1977 United States PGA champion fired a four-under-par 68 in Friday's rain-delayed second round for a 36-hole total of 137, one shot better than Dale Hayes of South Africa. Hayes also shot a 68 on the 6,647-yard Shaughnessey Golf Club layout.

The two were overshadowed somewhat, however, by the heroics of two sentimental favorites—veterans Arnold Palmer of the U.S. and Roberto De Vicenzo of Argentina.

Palmer had a 68 and was alone in third place at 140, while De Vicenzo had the best round of the day—a 67—and headed a group of eight golfers at two-under par 142.

Palmer, who has not won in five years on the U.S. tour, mainly because of poor putting, took a tip from Canadian professional Bob Panasuik and rebuilt an old putter he had in the back of his car. He added five inches to the shaft and moved his hands apart about the same distance. The change proved effective as the 48-year-old great registered three birdies on the front nine, and with any luck could have had just as many on the back side.

"I really rolled the ball more solidly than I have for years," Palmer said.

One of the best of the foreign stars, Simon Owen of New Zealand, shot a 70 and was in the group at 142. He was joined at that figure by six Canadians—Don Allman of Brantford, Ont.; Jim Norris of Ile Perrot, Que.; Cec Ferguson and John Morgan of Victoria; Bob Breen of Oakville, Ont.; and Dave Barr of Vancouver.

Ferguson and Barr shot 69s, Allman fired a 70, Norris a 71, Morgan a 72 and Breen a 73.

Knudson, the defending champion, shot a 71 and was tied with Pinero and three others at 145.

AT SANDOWN MEET

Mohorich Moving

With only 13 more days remaining in the 57-day harness racing meet at Sandown Park, big Jim Mohorich probably won't finish as the leading driver, but the 190-pound reinsman is making a determined charge toward the top.

Taking his turn at collecting victories in bunches, the owner-driver-trainer from Delta has chalked up 11 victories in the last six racing days. Mohorich notched three triumphs Friday night and now has 35 for the season, still well back of Keith Linton's leading total of 54, but well within shooting range of Joe Hudon (41 wins) and Dave Junquist (40).

Mohorich started his Friday successes in the third race, moving into the lead early and guiding Senga Scarlett to his third successive victory and fourth of the meeting. The five-year-old gelding, which was moved up a notch Friday in the claiming ranks, was timed in 2:08 3/5 for his fastest-ever winning time.

Mohorich scored his other two wins in his usual come-from-behind fashion, getting Flame Comet home ahead of Hotline Annie in the sixth and urging a late charge out of Nechako Prince in the featured seventh race.

Held near the lead most of the way, Nechako Prince moved up to grab the victory, in a close race as Pacen Bill just missed in a strong closing effort and favored Fort Tilden finished in the third position.

That result produced a $97.00 exactor payoff, the largest of the evening.

Rutledge Sharing First-Round Lead

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Two pros and a former Willingdon Cup golfer share the lead after the first round Friday of the Simon Fraser Open golf tournament.

Pros Jim Rutledge of Victoria and Muncie Booth of Vancouver and Calgary amateur Bill Hobbis fired four-under-par 67s despite rain and cool temperatures for a two-shot lead over Prince George amateur Terry Gabrielle.

Hobbis, who shot a course record 62 enroute to the 1974 championship, said the the damp weather enabled good chippers to save a couple of strokes because the ball would die instead of rolling when it hit the green.

Darcy Rota of the National Hockey League's Chicago Black Hawks is the low net leader. The Prince George native shot a 75 for a net 67.

The 54-hole tournament ends Sunday.

Broncos Get West

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Detroit Lions have traded disgruntled defensive back Charlie West to Denver Broncos for rookie tight end Bill Gay. West had been demanding that his National Football League contract be renegotiated.

Surrey Swimmer Reaps Harvest of Five Gold Medals

PENTICTON (CP) — Undaunted by periodic rain, 1,600 amateur athletes of all ages cheered Friday night as they arrived in this Okanagan city to begin the second half of the first-ever British Columbia Summer Games.

The athletes came by train, plane, car and bus as 1,300 competitors who participated in 14 events Thursday and Friday left the city of 20,000.

The story of the Games has been swimmer Laurie Kiselick, a 15-year-old Surrey girl who returned home Friday with five gold medals.

Kiselick, who is partially deaf, finished first in the girl's 15-to-17 100-metre freestyle, 200-metre breaststroke and 200- metre individual medley Thursday.

She added two more golds Friday in the 15-to-17 100-metre backstroke with a time of one minute, 20.96 seconds, and the 200-metre freestyle in 2:22.74.

No official records were challenged in the 25-metre outdoor pool.

The athletes who arrived Friday night will participate in cycling, women's field hockey, horseshoe pitching, lacrosse, men's lawn bowling, modern pentathalon, parachuting, rowing, sailing, shooting, soccer, synchronized swimming, tennis, track and field and water skiing today and Sunday.

Although the city is noted for its clear, hot summer weather, showers and gusty winds hampered several of the events Friday, but few athletes registered complaints as about 1,200 local volunteers chauffeured them to venues, billeted and fed them.

On Friday, rugby clubs from Vancouver and Victoria, which each emerged with 3-0 records after play Thursday, battled for the gold medal.

Vancouver dominated the game, downing the scrappy Victoria side 15-3. Delta won the bronze with a 6-3 win over Okanagan.

The Edwards fmily of Duncan took two medals in junior canoeing Friday. Earl and Dan won the gold, covering the 12-kilometre route in 1:34:44, while Kirby and Dale finished third.

Victoria, undefeated in three games in as many starts in men's baseball, finished first while Prince George was second and Burnaby third.

Cheryl Clooten pitched a six-hitter Friday to lead Campbell River to a 10-3 final win over Abbotsford in girl's softball. Vancouver was third.

Brian O'Keefe shot a three-over par 75 Friday to lead the Okanagan men's golf team to a two-round total of 608 and the gold medal.

Vancouver Island was second and Vancouver third.

Bjorn Kjaer of Nanaimo, finished the games with three swimming golds, winning Friday's 15-to-17 200-metre freestyle in 2:13.13. He won the 15-to-17 100-metre freestyle and was a member of the winning 200-metre relay team from Vancouver Island Thursday.

WENDY GAINS TENNIS FINAL

Series Squared

Coquitlam Adanacs forced a seventh game in their best-of-seven Western Lacrosse Association semi-final series Friday night and Vancouver Burrards hope to accomplish the same mission on their home floor tonight.

Outscoring New Westminster Salmonbellies 10-4 in the second period to take a 17-11 lead, the Adanacs went on for a 23-16 triumph in a rugged battle at Coquitlam to deadlock the series at 3-3.

The deciding game will be played Sunday in New Westminster.

If Burrards have their way, the other semi-final will also be decided Sunday.

Trailing Victoria Shamrocks two games to three, Burrards need a win tonight to stay alive and force a seventh contest Sunday at Memorial Arena.

Adanacs got another standout effort from youthful Mike Reelie as they outlasted the Salmonbellies. Reelie collected four goals and added a pair of assists as clubmates Randy Delmonico, Dave Durante and Jim Aitchison each counted three times in the contest that produced 138 minutes in penalties that included six major sentences.

Salmonbellies, who drew 77 of the penalty minutes, got three goals from Wayne Goss and two each from Ken Brown and Norm Leuszler.

Action in the Western Canada Junior Lacrosse League final opened Friday with league-winning Burnaby Cablevision shortcircuiting the New Westminster Junior Salmonbellies 18-4.

Burnaby goaltender Rod Bannister turned in a superb display as he turned aside 44 of 48 shots. Dan Perreault paced the attack with three goals and three assists.

Elsewhere in the world of sports:

Rain may be the most effective weapon for Northwest League baseball teams attempting to cool off the streaking Victoria Mussels.

Winners in 10 of their last 13 games, the Mussels were forced into idleness Friday at Grays Harbor, Wash., as showers washed out their scheduled clash with the Loggers, the Northern Division leaders.

Close decisions marked the three league games played Friday.

Bend, the Southern Division leader, nipped Eugene 4-3, Boise squeezed past Salem 10-9 and Walla Walla defeated Bellingham 5-3.

Two Victoria players were competing for titles today at Ottawa in the Canadian junior tennis championships. Wendy Barlow, top-seeded in the women's under-19 singles, crushed Karen Dewis of London, Ont., 6-4, 6-2 in a semi-final Friday to reach today's final against Torontonian Claire Lardner, a 6-2, 6-2 winner Friday over Angela Walker of Sarnia, Ont. In the boys' under-13 singles final, Chris Smith of Victoria was matched against John Murray of Windsor.

Victoria Dolphins will be trying to break out of a four-way deadlock for second place when they face Renfrew Trojans in a B.C. Big Four Junior Football League game Sunday at McAdam Park in Duncan.

Game time is 2 p.m.

Dolphins, who are 1-1 for the season and deadlocked with Trojans, Surrey Rams and Richmond Raiders two points behind league-leading Meralomas, lead the league in several departments.

Bob McKeachie is second in the scoring race with 15 points from two touchdowns and three singles.

Seaboard Two Up

Power punches in the early exchanges did the trick at Central Park Friday night as Seaboard Construction chalked up a second successive victory over Victoria Athletics in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League final.

Collecting all the club's runs in the first two innings, Seaboard held on to defeat the Athletics 5-3 and take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven final that continues Sunday at Central with a doubleheader, starting at 4 p.m.

Scott Sinclair slammed a two-run homer for Seaboard in the first frame and winning-pitcher Barry Wilkin followed with another two-run blast in the second. Dave Hay tripled and scored the other Seaboard tally in the second.

Lou Vermette, two-for-two at the plate, did his best for the A's, cracking a two-run round-tripper in the third and scoring his club's final run in the sixth inning.

Coe Finishes Fourth

FREDERICTON (CP) — Michele Guilbault, 18, of Dorion, Que., was eight strokes over par in the final round of the Canadian junior women's golf championship Friday, but her score was good enough for a 12-stroke victory and a tournament record.

Guilbault's final-round 80, combined with earlier scores of 69 and 71, gave her 220, five strokes better than the previous 54-hole record set by Stacey West of Thornhill, Ont., in 1977.

Karin Mundinger of Thornhill, Ont., and Carol Hogan of Oceanside, Calif., turned in identical final-round 77s to wind up tied for runnerup honors at 232.

Then came Dawn Coe of Lake Cowichan. A member of B.C.'s team, Coe shot a 75 — the best round of the day — to finish at 233. Jill Johnson of Salt Spring Island finished sixth with an 80 and a 238 total.

Coe said she had no trouble with the wind and had been one under par until the 14th when she drove into the rough and "hacked my way to a triple bogey." She added another bogey later in her round.

Peterborough Cutting it Thin

Peterborough Petes saved their best for when it counted most and squeezed into the "A" division semi-finals Friday at Memorial Arena in the Canadian peewee lacrosse championship tournament.

After losing all four preliminary games, but getting into the playoffs by a few percentage points as eight of the nine competing teams qualified, the Petes charged from behind Friday to trip Burnaby Malkin and Pinton 11-10 in sudden-death overtime.

On the other end of the "A" division ledger, Coquitlam Arctics, unbeaten in preliminary play, continued their power show by thumping Saanich Menzies Plumbing 23-3 in the opening playoff round.

In other "A" playoffs, Richmond Baykey's Barn Builders nipped Clarkson Lorne Park Braves 10-9 in overtime and Brampton Excelsiors beat Rexdale 15-9 in a battle between Ontario clubs.

Trailing 4-0 after the first period and 7-4 after two sessions, the determined Petes battled back to knot the count at 8-8 and force overtime.

Both clubs scored twice in the first overtime session to set up the sudden-death situation, in which rival goaltenders made sparkling saves. Phil Wake of the Petes blocked five shots and Vince Verlaan stopped eight drives at the Burnaby net before the Petes got their winner.

Kurt Drury scored six goals for Peterborough, including a pair of overtime tallies. Brad Ferguson notched the team's other overtime tally and two goals each in regulation time were contributed by Jamie Batley and Jeff Hardill.

Paul Tory and Kevin Kopp were standouts for the Arctics, each collecting nine points. Kopp had five goals and four assists while Tory counted three times and assisted on six markers.

John Kovalick, who scored the lone overtime tally for the Barn Builders, finished with four goals and three assists. For Lorne Park, Joe Pickford counted three times and Brit Peer had four assists and one goal.

Troy Cordingly was the busiest sniper for the Excelsiors, earning three goals and two assists. Bill Speed (three goals and two assists) and Jim Veltman (one and five) paced the Rexdale attack.

Semi-finals in the "A" division were played this morning at Memorial Arena and playoffs in the "B" and "C" sections were continuing at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Peters Wins Zone Title On Third Playoff Hole

Jake Peters defeated Bruce Pelmore on the third hole of a sudden-death playoff Friday at Victoria Golf Club to capture the B.C. Golf Association Zone I seniors championship.

Playing on his home course, Peters fired a two-over-par 73 to finish the regulation 18 holes in a deadlock with Pelmore, a Royal Colwood member who was playing for the first time in the event for players of 55 years and over.

Both fired pars on the first two playoff holes before Peters earned the title with a bogey on the tough, par-four third, where Pelmore's two-foot putt for a matching bogey spun out of the cup.

Jack Hopkins joined Peters in making it a double victory for the host course. Hopkins captured the over-all handicap crown, using his 17 handicap with a round of 76 for a net 59.

In the "C" group, Bob Ford (77) of Uplands was the gross leader and Wilf Flack (71) of Colwood paced the handicap list. Two Colwood contestants, Ken Hincks (gross 77) and Dick Skuce (net 71) topped the "B" group and the winners of awards in the 70-and-over "A" group were Grant MacAulay (gross 89) of Glen Meadows and Jack Betts Sr. (net 77) of Victoria.

Embarassing Time For Unknown Pro

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Ed Sabo was embarrassed and at a loss for words Friday.

After birdies on the final two holes, the virtual unknown on the Professional Golfers Association tour swept past Jack Nicklaus and into the lead after two rounds of the $300,000 Westchester golf tournament.

"Jeez," he said and then collected himself a little. "Well, my wife thinks I'm a good player. I'm not so sure sometimes."

He's been on the tour three years now, but hasn't finished higher than 16th since his rookie season. He ranks 136th on the 1978 money-winning list with $8,837. He's never even led a tournament.

But the birdies on the final two holes gave him a three-under-par 68 for a 135 total, one better than Nicklaus.

"Jeez, I'm one up on him," Sabo repeated.

Nicklaus, winner of the British Open and three other PGA tournaments this year, fired a two-under 69.

One shot back of him at 137 were Gibby Gilbert, Jerry Pate, former Westchester winner David Graham of Australia, Mark Hayes and Wally Armstrong.

First-round leader Barry Jaeckel slipped from to a 73 and was one of a dozen golfers at 138. That put 19 players within three strokes of each other halfway through this chase for a $60,000 first prize.

Ed Sabo	67-68—135
Jack Nicklaus	67-69—136
Jerry Pate	69-68—137
Gibby Gilbert	69-68—137
Wally Armstrong	68-69—137
Mark Hayes	70-67—137

Carty Traded By Blue Jays

Carty was hitting .284 for Toronto with 20 home runs.

CANADIAN KNOCKING ON DOOR

PLYMOUTH MEETING, Pa. (AP) — Canadian amateur champion Cathy Sherk of Fonthill, Ont., and Judith Oliver of Pittsburgh both scored one-up, match-play victories Friday to advance to today's final of the 78th United States women's amateur golf championship at the Sunnybrook Golf Club.

Sherk, 28, reached the final round for the second consecutive year by defeating Cynthia Hill, the 1974 champion from Colorado Springs, Colo., one up.

Sherk lost in the final last year to Beth Daniel of Charleston, S.C., who was eliminated by Hill in Thursday's quarter-finals.

Junior Tennis Tourney Set

Competition in the annual Victoria City junior tennis championships is scheduled for August 29-31 at the Racquet Club courts.

Players wishing to enter the tournament may obtain entry forms at the Racquet Club, Oak Bay Recreation Centre, Henderson Park and the Oak Bay Tennis Club.

Tournament events include under-12 doubles, under-14 singles and doubles, under-16 singles and under-18 singles and doubles.

LaCroix Sent To Whalers

WINNIPEG (CP) — Rudy Pilous, executive-director of hockey operations for the Winnipeg Jets, has confirmed that the World Hockey Association team traded Andre LaCroix to the WHA's New England Whalers for future considerations.

LaCroix was one of a number of Houton Aeros recently acquired by the Jets when the Texas entry in the WHA folded.

Sandra Doesn't Blame Idiot

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — There was silence on the green as Sandra Post, owning a one-stroke lead, lined up a 25-foot putt on her final hole.

Suddenly, a television sound man started a countdown that pierced the dead air.

Post, a native of Oakville, Ont., now living in Boynton Beach, Fla., drilled her putt 15 feet past the pin, putted up close and sank her third putt for a bogey five. It dropped her into a tie with Kathy Whitworth for the lead in the $150,000 Ladies Professional Golfers' Association event at the Dearborn Country Club.

Whitworth, who birdied the last hole, and Post both shot one-under-par 71s to go along with the 69s that gave them a share of the first-round lead. Their 36-hole totals of three-under-par 140 put them one stroke ahead of Debbie Austin and three shots in front of Pat Meyers and Debbie Meisterlin.

"I've heard it all before," she said, trying to shrug it off the sound man's countdown. "I wish it wasn't there. (But) I'm not one who tries to make excuses."

Museum Expert Looking Forward

GALLACHER
. . . nothing fusty

Last in a series

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

"Here we have a basic item of construction material that was in common use more than a century ago. Our forefathers' quaint nickname for it was 'two-by-four,' derived from their old-fashioned measurement standard based on units called feet and inches. This piece of wood was supposed to measure two inches by four inches. But it was actually one and a half inches by three and a half because . . ."

The patter of a Provincial Museum guide might run something like that in the year 2087, its bicentennial. And if he's listening up there, in the Great Museum in the Sky, Daniel Gallacher will probably smile a spectral smile of quiet satisfaction.

Gallacher is the curator of modern history at the museum, a pragmatic and forward-thinking historian who views history not as a stuffy, mothballed relic of some bygone era but a dynamic entity as contemporary as frisbees and frost-free fridges.

Furthermore, he wants to ensure that the items of everyday life manufactured for consumption today are preserved now, while they still have up-to-the-minute relevance, rather than leave their preservation to some quirk of unpredictable fate.

Hence the two-by-fours.

Some time in the near future, Gallacher's staff will approach the planing mills in town, asking for samples of their products before they switch to the metric system.

It's part of what he calls a highly selective approach to the preservation of contemporary records, which includes not only the storage of consumer items and materials but also photographs of industrial operations, videotape records, aural history in the form of taped interviews and reminiscences, and the like.

The program is still at the stage of working out control methods before it is applied in a more comprehensive way and other museum staff are trained in the necessary techniques. Gallacher also hopes to encourage industries — especially those undergoing rapid technological change — to set up their own archives.

"The clowns in the past didn't think of the future," he says. "If they had, our job today would be so much easier."

Modern history in B.C. covers a period of little more than two centuries, from the first white contact to the present day, including the early maritime explorations, Mackenzie and the overlanders, the fur trade, the colonial era and gold rush days.

With about 20,000 items (if you include buttons) occupying some 25,000 square feet, the museum's modern history galleries graphically depict that colorful, interesting, often rambunctious past.

In its ratio of items displayed to those stored, Gallacher acknowledges that the modern history division is more fortunate than any other division in the museum.

He estimates that, as there are many duplicates, about 40 per cent of the division's total collection is on display at any one time, either in the galleries, in the touring museum train or in circulation through the 150 smaller museums across the province.

Long rows of lockers and boxes at the division's offices in the curatorial tower are crammed with elegant gowns, leather holsters, household utensils and a bewildering variety of articles: Many more are stored in a warehouse on Viewfield Road. To the layman, it seems that the museum professional would be ecstatic with this wealth.

But the rapid growth of the collection, in many instances through bequests and donations, has Gallacher worried.

"Much of my thinking as a curator is directed to the problem — how does the museum set reasonable limits on the scope and size of its collection, to achieve excellence on the one hand and significance on the other, without becoming burdened down?

"I would hate to see the museum so heavy on collections that the taxpayers would be upset.

"But it's a serious problem deciding what we should do with the stuff that's excess, once we prove it is.

"Curators in the future are going to have to be very tough and courageous in terms of having to say no to people gracefully but firmly, and in being able to prevail upon superiors and directors to weed out collections that are burdening them down."

The Provincial Museum will mark its centenary in 1987, and this year completes its first decade in the new building. Gallacher has been curator of modern history — there was no such creature before his arrival — since 1969.

The division's first four years of existence were a frantically busy time, with all its energies and resources going into the creation of the modern history galleries.

From 1973 to 1975, says Gallacher, it was concentrating largely on preparing exhibits for the museum train. But since then, despite developing a number of temporary exhibits tailored to specific dates and themes, it has been able to devote closer attention to "more systematic research and probing deeper into B.C.'s modern history."

As one illustration: an associate, Jim Wardrop, is undertaking an extensively detailed study of Armstrong, the small Okanagan community near Vernon, covering 1890 to 1918.

Gallacher said this study embraces the evolution of the community from the days when early pioneers were acquiring a degree of self-sufficiency, through its growth as a regional centre and then incorporation.

"When it's completed we hope it will serve as a model for other communities to study their own history and background," he explained.

Along similar lines, the division's research aims to learn about such things as a typical household routine in 1860 and how it compared with the routine, say, of 1885; what conditions would have been in a commercial office or other work environment 90-odd years ago.

Based on such research, it will assemble collections on specific themes — for instance, household effects of the 1870s — and put them in storage.

"Then when we want to change the exhibits we'll simply pull them off the shelf and put them in."

Gallacher said anniversaries of landmarks in history such as the Cook bicentenary tend to give British Columbians a better awareness of their history, and if something tangible emerges — as the new Provincial Museum itself did from the 1967 centennial of Confederation — the value of the exercise is unarguable.

Asked to define the fascination of a museum, Gallacher launches into an articulate explanation in which he categorizes the various levels of museum appreciation.

In its least sophisticated form, according to his theory, it's a pure nostalgia trip, a rather simplistic view of history through rose-colored glasses. And no one, layman or academic, is vaccinated against this particular infection.

Then comes what he calls antiquarianism.

"This is a real trap for museum curators because it's a love of the past for its own sake. Some museums, particularly the smaller ones, are very vulnerable to this: they have so much garbage dumped on them simply on the basis that it's old. Old doesn't necessarily mean good or significant."

On a higher level still is connoisseurship, which Gallacher considers a virtue in society because it aims at excellence, but a vice in the world of the modern history professional where the resulting temptation is to specialize.

There are valid reasons for specialization — a museum devoted to silverware, for example, but how many of those would Canada need?

"For museums, particularly those spending public money, to concentrate on something like that is to achieve too narrow a focus, like looking through the wrong end of a telescope," he says.

It's a vice for what is being ignored."

Bastion Headed for Exciting Season

By AUDREY JOHNSON

The situation looks promising for theatre buffs in Victoria as the fall season approaches. Bastion Theatre has come up with what may be its best season ever, reinforced by a group of tried and talented directors.

Certainly, on paper at least, there is a promising mix of quality comedy, a little suspense, some exploration into intriguing new vistas and a new Canadian play by one of this country's most gifted and competent writers.

Already the mixture of six productions with the emphasis on comedy and humor has attracted one of Bastion's biggest pre-campaign subscriber enrolments.

In fact, PR gal Judith Kerr reports that response to the initial mailing of the 1978-79 brochure has resulted in Bastion recording subscriptions within 100 of the total number for the previous season, including a 60 per cent renewal. Obviously, when the official season campaign gets under way the total will soar beyond the 1977-78 season and probably chalk up an all-time record.

STEPHENSON
. . .directs two plays

Artistic director Edwin Stephenson takes on two of the six plays this year. (Arsenic and Old Lace and Richard III were two of his previous directing contributions.) For this season he will direct the opening play, Bernard Shaw's Pygmalion, (Oct. 6-21) and The Shadow Box, by Michael Cristofer, (March 2-17), a rare winner of both the Pulitzer Prize and Tony Award in the same year. It's a challenging play that is both poignant and humorous.

The much acclaimed Simon Gray comedy, Otherwise Engaged, which Time magazine listed as one of 1977's 10 best plays — it was a double New York Drama Award winner — will be seen in November under the direction of multi-talented John Heath, whose versatile credits include the direction of Bastion hit shows, Godspell, My Fat Friend, The Girl in the Freudian Slip and Same Time Next Year.

First of the visiting directors will be Ron Ulrich, who was responsible for the visually memorable world premiere of last season, After Abraham, and the studio production of the notable Canadian play, Fortune and Men's Eyes.

For the holiday season — the run is from Dec. 22 to Jan. 6 — Ulrich will present a new Sherlock Holmes adventure concocted by Alden Nowlan and Walter Learning, The Incredible Murder of Cardinal Tosca. This is an entertaining tongue-in-cheek special that will be a West Coast premiere.

Shakespeare's most sparkling and popular comedy, Twelfth Night, is the choice for dull February, and its director will be Malcolm Black, who will come back to the coast from his recently appointed position as managing director of Theatre New Brunswick to undertake the assignment. Last season Black directed Bastion's controversial Comedians, and since then has fulfilled directing assignments for Edmonton's Citadel Theatre and in Atlanta, Ga. At the moment he is directing the main summer production at the Banff School of Fine Arts.

Finally comes Artichoke, a play redolent of the Canadian prairies in its warmth and humor, latest from the creative imagination of Joanna Glass, the Canadian playwright who authored the memorable brace of two short plays staged at The Belfry the season before last — Canadian Gothic and American Modern.

Belfry artistic director Don Shipley, back from a year's leave of absence, will direct Artichoke. Shipley's notable work in the Canadian theatre has included being founding-director of the Stratford Children's Theatre, and former director of Vancouver's Playhouse Holiday. He was also director of the highly successful Puttin' on the Ritz of last summer, and the Canadian play, Creeps, for Bastion, both at The Belfry.

Theatre School Resumes in Fall

Three well-qualified instructors have been appointed for the fall-winter sessions of Bastion Theatre School which commence classes Sept. 12. The 1978-79 session follows a successful summer school which had a total enrolment of 68 from age 7 to adults.

Classes will be held once a week through March 24, 1979. For older students they take place in the afternoons or evening; for juniors, on Saturdays. Division is into four age groups — 7 to 10 years; 11 to 14; 15 years and over, and adult. Each class is limited to 12 students and the session of 26 lessons has a fee attached of $65.

The youngest class will have Karel Loganhume as instructor. She has been teaching children's drama and movement at UVic for the past five years and at Bastion School for the past three. Holder of a B.F.A. degree (with distinction) in theatre education, Ms. Loganhume is currently studying for her Master of Arts degree at UVic.

Lina Ladron de Guevara will be in charge of intermediate classes (11 to 14). She has worked extensively in the performing arts in her native Chile, has written plays and television scripts for children and conducted acting workshops for children and for adults who specialize in directing and acting in children's theatre. Her work here has included a course on the Commedia dell'arte for Camosun College theatre program and courses on Afro-Brazilian dancing at the YM/YWCA and Camosun.

The senior instructor is Peter Gordon. He holds a B.A. degree in drama and psychology from Guildford College, North Carolina, and was a graduate Fellowship student at Pasadena Playhouse. He has extensive acting experience on stage, in films and TV and while in California, ran an acting workshop and conducted workshops for professional actors in Beverly Hills.

Each student enrolled in Bastion School sessions from the intermediate to senior and adult levels, receives a complimentary preview night season ticket for Bastion's 1978-79 program of plays at McPherson Playhouse. Students in the junior classes receive a pair of tickets to the annual concert and show which is jointly presented by the Bastion Theatre Youth Touring Company and Victoria Conservatory of Music.

Application may be made in writing for the Peter Mannering Scholarship, which is awarded each year to a student enrolling in the school. The award is based on achievement but not necessarily talent, as well as on personality and need.

A call to Bastion Theatre, 386-8301, will give full information on all points.

WRITER DIES

NEW YORK (AP) — James Gould Cozzens, whose Second War War novel Guard of Honor won the 1949 Pulitzer Prize for fiction, has died at the age of 74. Cozzens died of pneumonia Aug. 9 in Stuart, Fla., his publisher, Harcourt Brace Jovanovich Inc., said. He was cremated the same day.

The Drummer Man

How does a person get started on drumming?

Well, like a lot of other things, in any one of several ways — some serious and some funny, some accidental and some quite purposefully.

Ben Manning, who drums up a virtuoso assortment of effects in the Jerry Gosley Smile Show at the Empress Hotel, was an infant prodigy. He says he has been drumming since he was three years old and that, while he can't verify it, his mother has said he was drumming before he was born.

His first job in his native England was playing God Save the King at the age of four. However, he recalls being temperamental about it because his father had given him a tom-tom instead of a snare drum and it didn't work as he expected it to. But that led to his playing all over England as a child prodigy and "people loved me."

He says he worked in all the leading night clubs "as well as sewers and places like that." He played with army bands during the war and on one occasion was thrown out of the Western Command military band for jazzing things up during a funeral.

Apparently the young drummer got bored with marching down the road solemnly beating a slow blonk, blonk, blonk. So he broke into a rudiment known as a tall drum major — rum-tum-tum. But that doesn't go down well at funerals so he was sent off in disgrace.

As time went on Manning played for some big stars like Julie Andrews and Petula Clark. "We were all kids together ... I almost married Julie."

To describe Manning as a drummer is actually an oversimplification, an injustice to an energetic and versatile performer. He plays the whole series of percussion instruments — the vibraphone, xylophone, piano, tympani.

"But in Victoria," he says, "there's not enough professional work so you have to do something else."

So for his bread-and-butter Manning is an electronics engineer and he also teaches Chinese cooking. And for summer extras there's the Smile Show.

"You have to have a certain amount of fun in your brain to cope with these shows when you're called upon to do whistles and bangs and cracks and thumps. It's a good show though. Especially since they've had me doing the drumming," he adds with a broad wink.

In a more serious vein, he says: "Actually it's been theatre business with me all my life. Electronics, the war, Chinese cooking — they're just sidelines."

MANNING

Around the Art Galleries

A painter dedicated to a concept that emerges as a portrait of his landscape subject — not a representational view, but a conveying of the mood and physical structure as simply stated and all-perceiving as a woman's head by Da Vinci. That is Toni Onley.

Onley's watercolors are particularly felicitous in evoking qualities inherent in the northern landscape, qualities with which, because he works on location outdoors, he comes into close and introspective harmony.

A showing of the artist's watercolors will occupy Kyle's Gallery, at 1545 Fort, commencing this weekend and continuing through September. The exhibition will be officially opened Sunday, with the gallery hours for that day from noon to 10 p.m.

Onley immigrated from the Isle of Man in 1948 at the age of 20. Later he moved to Vancouver, which, with the exception of periods spent in Mexico and overseas, has remained his home base.

Regular gallery hours, Tuesday through Sunday, are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Wednesday, Thursday and Friday 7:30 p.m. to 10 p.m.

A survey of the work of Mary Riter Hamilton (1873-1954) goes on view at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, 1040 Moss, Wednesday. Ontario-born but a Victoria resident from 1913 to 1918, Mrs. Hamilton is best remembered for her extraordinary work depicting the torn battlefields and ruinous aftermath of the First World War.

The artist spent months slogging through the mud and debris of Vimy, the Sommè and other infamous battle zones. This dogged tribute to the fallen cost her the sight of one eye and took an emotional toll from which she suffered the remainder of her days.

A group of her works from Canada's Public Archives will be seen on view for the first time since 1926. Shown also will be some expressive Victoria landscapes and portraits. The artist's history is traced and pieced together in an accompanying biographical catalogue depicting her sad, determined life. The exhibition continues through Oct. 8.

Gems Stolen

GENEVA (AFP) — Gems worth $6 million were stolen at the La Reserve Hotel in Geneva, police reported. A man pretending to be a customer made an appointment with a saleswoman at the hotel. He seized the stones and jumped out the window, fleeing in a car in which two accomplices were waiting.

The Secret is Imagination

audrey johnson

Once an American prodigy and today one of the most prolific recording artists and international soloists in the roster of American performing musicians, Abbey Simon, pianist, exhibits no signs of ennui after a full summer of performing and teaching in Victoria.

He came to this city (to join the faculty of the Shawnigan Summer School of the Arts and for Victoria International Festival appearances) immediately after concluding a series of concerts in South America. Next week he returns to New York and, with little pause, plunges into preparation for a concert appearance with the New York Philharmonic in early November and into recording sessions with Vox. His album containing the four Rachmaninoff concertos and the Paganini-Rachmaninoff Rhapsody has just been released by Vox and the Beethoven Woodwind Quintet will be out any day.

Taking off an afternoon between teaching morning lessons and readying himself for evening performances, Simon talks about music with the full vibrancy of the dedicated artist whose years of dominant professionalism in a world-girdling career have left richly seasoned but unstaled.

He insists that by nature he is a pessimist, but there is nothing typically pessimistic in his attitude even when he is discussing international competition and the tendency of young artists to become interpretive carbon copies of more mature performers. He still finds his confrontations with young, brilliantly gifted persons enormously moving and stimulating.

This is his third summer in Victoria and he says he is almost certain to be back next year — "if they'll have me."

"I love it," he says of the school whose sessions are held on the serenely scenic campus of St.Michael's University School. "It is ideal ... and the students who come here are incredibly good. We all enjoy being here and getting together," he says of the internationally acclaimed faculty.

Concerning the related but separate International Festival, which this year has presented 28 concerts at McPherson Playhouse and St.Michael's School, he is just as keen, and he anticipates with almost lip-smacking relish the prospect of possibly performing in UVic's new concert hall next year. (He was given a quick, tantalizing tour recently and found it "incredibly fine.")

Did he think the six-week period of the International Festival was an over-extension for the performers; that it taxed them too much on top of their teaching responsibilities?

"Too long? Too much? Not at all, I would be happy if it was an eight-week festival!" says Abbey warmly.

Individualism and the chance to discover oneself are important aspects of a musician's development. This is clearly his viewpoint as Simon talks about his own escape from the high-pressure atmosphere of his native New York to life in London, Paris and Geneva, where he still has a home.

Despite the fact he enjoys recording and is already launched on the enormous project of recording all Chopin's works — the four Ballades and Barcarolle will be coming out in November — Simon feels that recent generations of young artists have suffered a serious loss of individuality because of the advance in quality and multiplicity of recordings.

The tendency for a student, when directed to study a certain work, to purchase a recording and strive to emulate it, is entirely the wrong way to go, he says. In fact he goes so far as to suggest that students should be forbidden to listen to records of works they are studying.

"If you took a dozen different recordings of a specific Beethoven sonata, stopped any one of them at some point and picked the same point to start another, you wouldn't be able to tell that a different pianist was playing the work," he says. "That's how featureless the interpretations tend to be today."

Simon began to play at the age of three and by the time he was eight had been awarded a scholarship by Josef Hoffman, one of the great pianists of the 1920s, which admitted him to the prestigious Curtis Institute. A dozen years later all the new generation of American pianists were trying to sound like Horowitz and Simon feels that if he had stayed in New York he might have continued to be another unsuccessful Horowitz imitator. War service took him out of the United States and ultimately led to his becoming a cosmopolite and an expatriate for a number of years.

He looks with disfavor on the mushroom growth of international competition; he has been on the panel of judges for quite a few of them. "They are cropping up all over the place — it's becoming ridiculous because it's gotten completely out of hand. What results is a sort of temporary career for a winning pianist until the winner of the next competition becomes the newest "hot property." Think how disillusioning it must be to find oneself dethroned as the big international winner of 1977 when 1978's comes along."

There have been only a very few like Van Cliburn and Ashkenazy, he points out, able to hold their place at the top. Where now are most of the winners of the past 25 years?

A better idea, he suggests, would be a grand competition where the winners in various national competitions would meet for a world championship — a sort of musical Olympics — at appropriate intervals.

Simon's feelings about the individual aspect of performance as being of far greater importance than the spectacular technical mastery and the "acceptable" interpretation, are neatly summed up in a sentence: "You hear so many people perform who are saying, see what I can do, when they should be saying, this is what I am."

SIMON . . . consummate professional

What makes a Serkin, a Rubinstein or a Horowitz — the distinguished talents that rose far above other gifted young performers of their time? Imagination, says Abbey Simon, the ears to hear the music with a certain freshness and the gift of communicating to others what is perceived through the ears and amplified by the imagination.

Abbey Simon himself, as some people who may not have been aware of it before have discovered this summer, clearly personifies these qualities. Tonight's program at St.Michael's will present the final opportunity to hear Simon as one of a notable group of keyboard artists involved in the Festival. The others are Robin McCabe, Joseph Bloch, William Aide, Harmon Lewis and Phillip Thomson.

MUSICAL NOTEBOOK

A new ensemble will make its appearance Sunday at the Cameron Bandshell in Beacon Hill Park. Performing under the title Festival Brass Quintet, the players are Cameron Willis, leader and trumpet; Blaire Fisher, trumpet; Joan Watson, French horn; Tom Eadie, trombone, and John French, bass trombone.

Their repertoire spans a wide range of music from early renaissance and baroque to contemporary pieces including popular jazz. All the members have played with the Victoria Symphony Orchestra and are established resident professionals.

Also on the program will be the Ernie Hackett Quintet, which will be featured in pop arrangements and songs ranging from the Gay Nineties and Roaring Twenties to today's popular ballads.

Vocalist will be Muriel Bertrand and master of ceremonies, Fraser McAlpine. The free concert will begin at 2:30 p.m.

* * *

Jane Davis will be the recitalist at St.John's Anglican Church, Quadra, when the second in the current series of three organ recitals takes place, Wednesday at 8 p.m. Miss Davis recently won a place in the finals in a national organ competition and is leaving the city in September for further study in Europe. Her recital will cover a wide range of the organ repertoire, including a work by Vancouver composer Michael Baker.

The series will end Aug. 30 when the artist featured will be Edward Norman.

* * *

Auditions will take place next Saturday for anyone interested in participating in or auditing an opera workshop to be held Sept. 9 from 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. Timothy Vernon of the Canadian Opera Company will conduct the session.

The workshop is being offered by the Vancouver Island Opera Society in conjunction with the Victoria Conservatory of Music. Anyone wishing to attend should contact the Van Isle Opera at 385-0222 for details. The workshop is free to members of the society and students at the conservatory.

A Week Filled With Musical Joys

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Bringing to a close what has been six weeks of great music-making, thickly studded with unforgettable highlights, the Victoria International Festival presents its performances of two "Opera Piccola" (small operas) at the McPherson Playhouse Monday and Tuesday.

La Prima Donna is the work of 20th century composer Arthur Benjamin, and La Serva Padrona by the 18th century Giovanni Pergolesi.

In La Prima Donna Benjamin has written a mischievous piece peopled with scalawags and lovely young opera stars. Suiting his composition to the period — the era of the great operatic prima donnas — he has reflected the classic idiom with melodious invention.

The witty La Serva Padrona concerns a clever woman who sets out to capture her master as mate and turn herself into mistress. It was written when Pergolesi was 23 years old and is credited with having inspired the famed French Opera Comique.

Tonight's final piano extravaganza and Sunday's all-Bach concert at the McPherson, which will feature Abbey Simon with the Festival String Orchestra, Ruggiero Ricci and the Duo Mazurkevich, will cap a week that has been filled with moving and memorable moments.

Inevitably the smallest audiences were those attending the two programs of contemporary Canadian music, and yet these were performed handsomely and with dedication by the University of Victoria Faculty Ensembles perceptively conducted by George Corwin. They also provided two of the Festival's gems with the performance of Rudolf Komorous' Twenty-three Poems About Horses, and Minnelieder by Murray Schafer.

The latter work, for mezzo-soprano and winds, was excellently suited to the beautiful voice of Phyllis Mailing and the sensitively disciplined skill of the Pacific Wind Quintet. The Komorous work is based on, but not in any literal sense interpretive of, poems by the T'ang Dynasty Chinese poet, Li Ho. The music, intricate and luminous with lovely color and harmonic texture, was performed by a string ensemble with Corwin conducting.

UVic resident composer Martin Bartlett's composition, which had been commissioned by the Shawnigan Summer School of the Arts with the assistance of the Canada Council, is an arresting, complex work for instrumental ensemble and electronic equipment, the latter brilliantly handled by the composer.

Three other concerts during the week produced, among other delights, an exquisite rendering of La Bonne Chanson by Gabriel Faure sung by Ms. Mailing, delightfully supported by a piano and string ensemble.

On the same program flutists Robert Aitken and Kathryn Cernauskas and violinist Sydney Humphreys, with a string orchestra, provided an enjoyably vital performance of Bach's Brandenburg Concerto No. 4, while Prokofiev's splendid Sonata No. 2 showed off the superb and complementary talents of Yuri Mazurkevich and William Aide.

Another exceptional evening began with Brahms' Liebeslieder Waltzes for four voices and piano duet. While the vocal ensemble was not ideally balanced, the sound was delectable and the duo pianists, Aide and Denise Masse, as well as the singers, were flawless in interpreting this enchanting music.

Dana Pomeranz-Mazurkevich, more often heard as one half of the Mazurkevich Violin Duo, in solo reveals her great gifts as an interpretive artist. The profoundly moving, richly textured Brahms' Sonata in D minor, was rewarding for her and piano partner Aide, and a moving experience for her audience. The lavish keyboard gifts of pianist Robin McCabe combined with the Philadelphia String Quartet in a brilliant performance of Brahms Quintet in F minor.

The audiences that have been filling St.Michael's University School to capacity and giving the McPherson its best houses of the summer, enjoyed another notable evening on Thursday at St.Michael's, not only through the return of the Duo Karr-Lewis in a superb performance of a Hindemith Sonata for Double bass and Piano, but especially in the combination of the Duo with Marie-Danielle Parent, a magnificent soprano who will be heard in the operas.

Another rare and thrilling number was the Aria from Villa Lobos's Bachianas Brasileiras No.5. In this the lovely, smooth soprano voice of Bette Cosar (also in the opera cast) was surrounded by the velvety tone of eight cellists in a beautifully balanced ensemble.

Rounding out these musical joys was a fluent performance of the Dvorak Piano Quintet in E flat Major by Humphreys, Leslie Malowany, Hakuro Mori and Aide, and the Philadelphia String Quartet in a fine rendering of Beethoven's C Major.

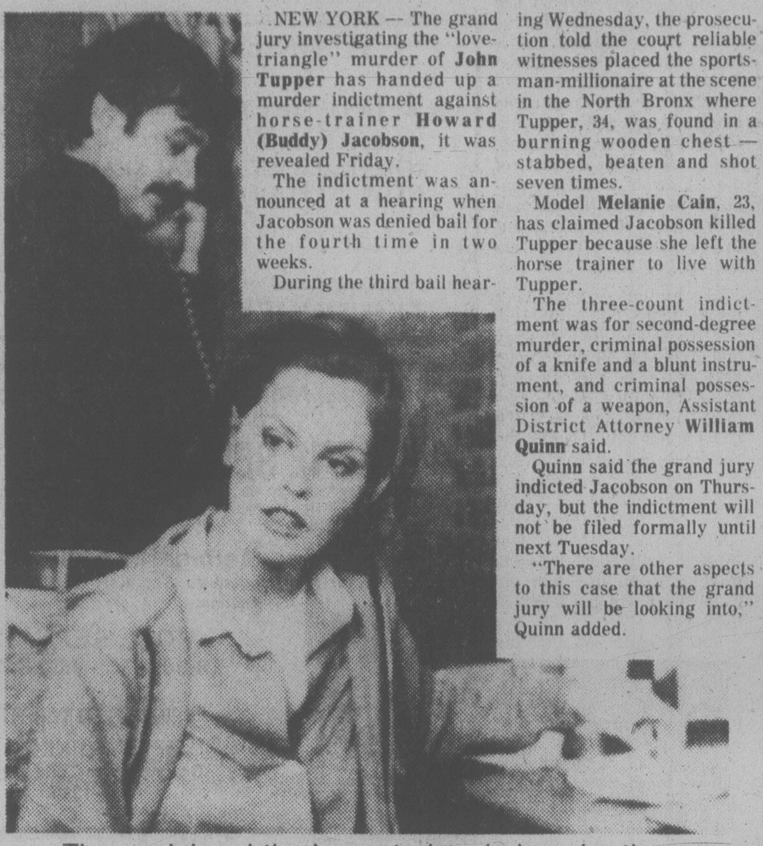
Murder Charge Set In Triangle Death



The model and the horse-trainer in happier times

NEW YORK — The grand jury investigating the "love-triangle" murder of John Tupper has handed up a murder indictment against horse-trainer Howard (Buddy) Jacobson, it was revealed Friday.

The indictment was announced at a hearing when Jacobson was denied bail for the fourth time in two weeks.

During the third bail hearing Wednesday, the prosecution told the court reliable witnesses placed the sportsman-millionaire at the scene in the North Bronx where Tupper, 34, was found in a burning wooden chest — stabbed, beaten and shot seven times.

The three-count indictment was for second-degree murder, criminal possession of a knife and a blunt instrument, and criminal possession of a weapon, Assistant District Attorney William Quinn said.

Quinn said the grand jury indicted Jacobson on Thursday, but the indictment will not be filed formally until next Tuesday.

"There are other aspects to this case that the grand jury will be looking into," Quinn added.

BATMAN JAILED

NEW YORK — Assemblyman David Greenberg, once Batman of the real-life Batman and Robin police team, was sentenced Friday to two years in prison on mail fraud and obstruction of justice charges.

Prince Held In Shooting

BASTIA, Corsica — Prince Victor-Emmanuel of Savoy, a well-known member of Europe's jet set, was in police custody today after wounding a young German with a rifle in a squabble over a missing boat.

In his interrogation, the prince of the now defunct kingdom of Savoy said the shooting of Dirck Geerd Hammer, 19, was accidental.

Police said Victor-Emmanuel told them the incident started when he noticed that the dinghy moored to his yacht was missing. He then spotted the dinghy attached to another yacht containing a party of Italian tourists.

He chased the yacht in a rowboat, and one of the Italians, identified as Nicola Bende, son of a Rome doctor, jumped aboard the craft and a tussle broke out.

A Dream Comes True

WASHINGTON — For Rosalynn Carter, it was a dream-come-true.

For the White House staff, it was a perfect 51st birthday "surprise" for the first lady.

"She wanted to do that more than anything in the world," said Mrs. Carter's press secretary, Mary Hoyt, after Mrs. Carter spent about half an hour Friday in one of the helium-filled Goodyear blimps often used to provide aerial television coverage of sporting events.

Mrs. Hoyt said Mrs. Carter had wanted a ride in the blimp after daughter Amy, 10, raved about her own experience in the lighter-than-air craft. The blimp outing was kept secret from Mrs. Carter until she was packing to leave on a vacation trip to Plains, Ga.

The first lady took the controls of the blimp for a time once the vehicle was aloft over Dulles International Airport and learned to "float it" as it cruised above the Virginia suburbs.

LIGHTFOOT ACQUITTAL APPEALED

TORONTO — Ontario Attorney-General Roy McMurtry said Friday he is appealing the acquittal of singer Gordon Lightfoot on an impaired driving charge, but the appeal need not hold up other impaired-driving cases.

McMurtry said there need be no delay in other such cases because a ruling by one judge does not bind other judges.

"I can't say what each and every judge will do," he said. "But until there is a ruling from a higher court, it's my feeling that they can proceed with such cases."

Divided French have blissful union

By JIM BROWNING

PARIS — The French are famous for their individuality.

Charles de Gaulle used to lament that it was impossible to organize anything in a country that produces 300 different kinds of cheese, and politicians complain that there are as many different political parties as there are voters.

Every year, however, these individualists can be counted on to do one thing in blissful unison. They leave on vacation at the same time, in the same direction, and on the same roads.

In no other country, with the possible exception of Belgium, is the month-long summer vacation such a national institution. This year, a record 3 million cars hit the roads July 1, which was not only the first day of the summer season but also the first day of school vacation, and the first Saturday of the month. Most of them headed southwest toward Spain and the Atlantic Ocean, southeast to the Riviera, or northwest to Brittany.

For the first time, however, police reported that major traffic jams and tie-ups had been avoided. A new traffic planning system, inaugurated two years ago, had its first major success in persuading people to leave either before or after the Saturday morning rush, and to take alternate routes.

One foreigner was shaken to be informed that in his apartment building in Paris the hot water is turned off in August, because everyone but him would be away. The landlord, surprised that the foreigner was in town, finally agreed to install a separate water heater in his apartment.

The French government has no illusions about ending the summer vacation tradition. But in the face of reports from planners that the roads and beaches are being overwhelmed, officials have stepped up efforts to manage the situation by:

- Staggering vacations.
- Traffic planning. Planners discovered that three-quarters of vacationers decide the day and hour of their departure months in advance. They launched an extensive radio campaign telling people when not to leave and even arranged to let children out of school on Friday, June 30, if their parents would leave that day.
- Auto route construction. The first sections of an ambitious new superhighway system, aimed both at improving travel speed and developing France's long-neglected regions, are being completed. With the completion of an auto route across the Pyrenees Mountains to Spain, it now is possible to drive from Denmark to Barcelona without a stop light.

After braving the traffic, therefore, millions of eager vacationers will be found lying shoulder-to-shoulder on the beaches in July and August avidly tanning themselves and getting sand in the works of the summer's best-selling authors.

One of the thrills of a Queenstown visit is an air view of New Zealand's Southern Alps — and the pilot's guiding of the small craft between the peaks.

New Zealand promise

By JOHN PINKERMAN

QUEENSTOWN, New Zealand — Some visitors will say that there is more to do and see in and around this southern lakeside city of New Zealand's South Island than in every other place in New Zealand combined.

They may be right. More than that, the people of this friendly resort alongside Lake Wakatipu, will keep you busy. If, for instance, after a long day of sight-seeing you decide to stroll along the lake, watch the ducks, the gulls and the trout, then sit on a lakeside bench to reflect on the wonders you have seen during the day — beware.

The chances are that while you're gazing at the snowcapped Remarkables (mountains) to the east, a Queenstowner will come along — somebody like Mr. and Mrs. Bill Elliott — and mistake your quiet contemplation for loneliness. They will urge you, a complete stranger, to go home with them for evening tea.

However, when you are not being delunged with such displays of simple hospitality, there are varied attractions to see.

There is the ski plane trip to a glacier. And the thrilling air trip to Milford Sound to the west. The tiny plane will thread its way between peaks of the Southern Alps, giving you a spectacular view of hundreds of fiords to match anything you might have seen in Norway.

If the weather is right — and it switches from clear to foggy by the minute — you will land on a spit at remote Milford Sound Hotel. You can stay there overnight if you wish, but the sights from aloft are so breathtaking that you may want to get along with the return trip immediately. The Remarkables are remarkable, but the Southern Alps are sensational.

There are other things to do here, too. The bus trip to Coronet Peak, at 5,413 feet, offers a panoramic view of several sheep stations (ranches) below, thousands of sheep grazing peacefully on the ultra-green grasses that are a part of New Zealand.

There is an all-day van ride, also, to a remote grove along the Shotover River, that may rattle your bones a bit but is a true experience in the outdoors. The trip takes you to what the tourism people call "Skipper's and Beyond."

You will see long-abandoned gold mines, explored soon after the California Gold Rush in the mid-19th century.

There still are miners scratching out a living, panning in the Shotover, and there are spectacular rock formations. Deep into the boondocks is a suspension bridge over the river, and you wonder how anybody ever lugged the steel so far into no-man's-land.

At "Beyond," you pause half an hour or more for tea and cookies. Your driver, Kevin Pitfield, will gather wood from nearby, start a fire, take water from the Shotover, and boil "Billy tea" in the blackest pot you've ever seen. However, the tea will be the best you've ever tasted, and the friendliness generated as you sit on tree stumps or logs and exchange ohs and ahs about the scenery will make for a delightful experience.

On your trip back you may see tourists shooting the rapids on the Shotover, you will get another view of Coronet Peak and you will be weary on arriving back in Queenstown.

There are more things to do on the morrow. There is a boat ride to Walter Peak Sheep Station. At Walter Pea, a ranch of 64,000 acres, you will see some of the 6,500 sheep and 3,500 cattle there, and watch dogs maneouver sheep with great skill.

Back in Queenstown there are half a dozen more excursions you can plan for the next day, or stroll the few streets of the city, encountering more of New Zealand's friendly people.

Cuisine wins recognition

The Miller Howe Hotel, in an idyllic setting overlooking Lake Windermere, is famous for its fine food. This year, it has accomplished the rare feat of being the only establishment to be given three distinctions in The Good Food Guide, 1978.

The Miller Howe, expertly run by John Tovey, has achieved its distinctions for "unusual skill, imagination and energy in a chef or team"; for having a well-kept table and being a hotel where it is a pleasure to stay more than a night or two"; and for a "wine list and service out of the usual run."

John Tovey, whose 13-bedroom hotel has a 70-seat dining room, is not open for lunch, and does not give his guests a choice at dinner — at least, not until the puddings. Dinner guests in the dining room above the lake are confronted with a five-course bill of fare, at around $18 excluding wines, and there are very few complaints from the customers from many lands. French onion tart, cheese and herb pate in puff pastry cornet, tomato and orange salad with burgundy and cranberry sauce, and damson farmhouse pie are among the items guests are likely to greet enthusiastically.

Ritz of the Far East

Swiss offers service beyond Cinderella's dream

By EVELYN KIERAN

Peter Gautschi is general manager of The Peninsula Group of Hotels in the Orient. The Charles Ritz of the Far East. But even 22 years of Hong Kong and other exotic spots have not dimmed his Swiss accent or, best of all, his Swiss hotelier's zeal for perfection.

"A hotel is only as good as its staff," he says. "We are proud of the staff here because they are proud to work here." He paused. "We have never had a problem with petty theft," he continued. "Once, a lady reported that some Kennedy silver dollars she had bought for souveniers were missing.

"There was great consternation among the staff and within 24 hours, they had set a trap, captured the thief and drummed him out of the hotel." He beamed.

The Peninsula is an historical landmark now, its gracious facade facing Hong Kong Harbor protected by law from any massive change.

"This is very nice," Gautschi went on. "But it is very difficult to make money from history."

The Peninsula has long been regarded as one of the last bastions of true service anywhere in the world. Its ratio of staff to guests would send shudders through an accountant's heart. And Gautschi faced the paradoxical problem of trying to maintain the old-line traditions which had built one of the most faithful clienteles in the world, and still show a profit.

"Many people do not like the idea of room boys coming in to bring fresh tea, or to draw a bath. But we must always be ready to provide such service for the guest who wishes it." He sighed a deep Swiss sigh.

"Only recently a guest told me that he was showing the room boy some expensive new shoes he had just bought. The boy took them in hand, admired them properly and asked: 'Would you like me to walk them, sir?' "

The guest had laughed at the incident. But there was a time when such service was taken for granted.

"Take the matter of soap. Why should you have to use a soap I choose? Even if I choose a fine French soap, perhaps it has a fragrance you don't like.

"So we offer each guest a choice of soap from all over the world. This is a small thing, but we think it's important." He smiled.

"Take this restaurant now."

We were lunching at Gaddi's the quietly elegant spot which is the hands-down favorite of knowledgeable travellers in the Orient. "It is very nice." The Swiss shoulders gave a slightly deprecating shrug. We looked about at the rich, simple room, filled with a smart, well-dressed crowd. The tables were large, far apart, covered in immaculate linen, centered with silver bowls of flowers. The crystal gleamed, the napkins were properly starched — even the menu was a work of art. Three star.

"This year we celebrate our 50th anniversary, and it is time for new air. Nothing too elaborate," he went on. "After all, the wealthy Chinese or European merchant who dines here does not wish to pay for this (he picked up an almost translucent china plate), he wishes to pay for this," he said, indicating the salad in front of us.

"Every year, we bring a great French chef from Lyons. We entertain him, tell him our problems, take him to our markets. Then he goes to work and creats new dishes for all our clientele. This (indicating the salad) is adapted from the nouvelle cuisine, yet is totally comprehensible to the Oriental mind."

The salad, seemingly simple, was a celestial combination of endive, mushrooms, tender little tomatoes topped with plump medallions of breast of pigeon and dressed with a light oil and vinegar. Delicious. "It is this always being aware, always anticipating, that makes a hotel really memorable."

"What of the other hotels in the Peninsula group?" We asked. "Will they come up to the standards you have set here?"

"It of course will take a little time," he replied. "Naturally we are striving to establish a reputation for Peninsula service everywhere we go.

"We are adding a new wing to the Marco Polo in Singapore."

"You must come to Manila." Gautschi expanded hospitality. "There is a beautiful hotel." He told briefly of plans for the birthday party of the Hong Kong Peninsula — a party for a very special guest list to celebrate the 50 years passed and the 50 still to come.

Favorite fishing retreat for Mr. Canada

Air group polishing image

GENEVA — As summer vacations and bargain-basement transatlantic fares bring soaring business for airlines, the International Air Transport Association (IATA) is struggling to overcome an image that it is little more than a fare-setting cartel.

IATA, as the trade association of the international carriers is known, had a stronghold on international air fares for most of its 32-year history. Stability, not price competition, resulted.

But Freddie Laker, fare-slashing head of England's Laker Airways, and the United States Civil Aeronautics Board's desire for competition in the industry shattered IATA's domination over international fares and opened the way for deep discounts for passengers. IATA was sidestepped by bilateral agreements between the U.S. and other governments, which in the past had not embraced competitive fares.

But IATA is fighting back. Representatives of five of the 106 member airlines from 90 nations have drafted a reorganization plan that would continue to have the association co-ordinate safety, technical and legal services. Membership in a second category, negotiating passenger and cargo tariffs, would be optional.

The result may reinforce the low-fare trend. But Knut Hammarskjold, director general of the Geneva—and Montreal—based IATA, said in an interview the industry would be able to cope.

"There will be no revolution," he said.

Fares on the North Atlantic routes, the biggest market in international aviation, have been open since last September because the aeronautics board rejected the latest agreement negotiated under IATA auspices.

Laker's Skytrain, first-come-first-served jet service between New York and London costs $237 roundtrip. Regular economy fare for that roundtrip based on the IATA agreement is $626. Group and excursion fares range from $382 to $541.

Combine this with a visit to the Seattle Art Museum and plenty of time to shop Seattle from the conveniently located "Roosevelt" Hotel. Climax this with a cruise aboard the Princess Marguerite to Victoria and you've got just a great "little" holiday. An optional tour for a "Salmon Bake" on Blake Island's Tillicum Village also available.
MARITIMES COLORAMA
Sept. 29 to oct. 16 18 Exciting Days $975 Dbl. $995 Twin
The colorful beauty of the Maritime Provinces and the New England States, at this time of year, is legend. If you haven't seen them at this "right time", you should. Professionally guided tours of Ottawa, Montreal, Quebec City and Halifax (Peggy's Cove) and a day at famous Niagara Falls make this a most interesting tour.
GRAND CANYON TOUR
Sept. 16-29 2 Inspiring Weeks $435 Dbl. $445 Twin
We can't afford a full verbal description of this fabulous tour, taking in Bryce, Zion and the North and South Rims of the Grand Canyons, Salt Lake City, Reno and Las Vegas. But, we'll be happy to mail you our detailed brochure with full information. Phone in. We'll do the rest.
PACIFIC PANORAMA
OCT. 7-20 $435 Dbl. $445 Twin
2 weeks to the "Sunny South".
Another "right time of year" experience, offering some entirely new sights and experiences in "Sun Country": a River Boat Ride on the Rogue and a Scenic Train Ride on the Skunk, for starters. Avoid the bustling cities and enjoy the lovely coastal areas and the countryside. Low daily mileages arranged for maximum relaxation.

Benedictine Melk Abbey sits atop small rise overlooking Danube

Austria boasts one of finest baroque abbeys

By MARGARET NESS

ST. FLORIAN — Three of Austria's most famous monastaries can readily be visited using Linz and Vienna as pivots and including a Danube cruise.

Swissair has a Toronto-Montreal flight to Linz, and from there you can take a day to drive about 80 kilometres to the baroque Augustinian monastery of St. Florian. Then a morning train from Linz brings you to Melk Abbey, the Benedictine abbey on the Danube regarded as one of the world's finest baroque abbeys. Three hours later you board a Danube steamer to Vienna. Once there it's only some 13 kilometres to the Augustine abbey of Klosterneuberg.

All three abbeys were originally built in the Gothic style during medieval times when they were a powerful force in the area. They were exceedingly wealthy then from their vineyards, royal patronage and gifts from the pilgrims.

Later, when the original abbeys were destroyed by fires or other disasters, the abbots rebuilt in the grandiose baroque style and included lavishly decorated wings to house the emperor, should he visit.

Melk Abbey is situated on a narrow ridge dropping down steeply to the town, which was first mentioned in an official document in 831. The monastery was strongly fortified in the 14th century and withstood peasant revolts and attacks from Hungarians and Turks. Finally the old edifice was pulled down and the present beautiful baroque one was erected in 16 years (1702-18). The imaginative architect was the famous Jakob Prendtauer who also had a hand in building the present St. Florian's abbey.

The Melk complex is built around a series of inner courts to include a church, a school, the monks' quarters and the long wing which includes the fabulous library and the emperor's suite of rooms.

The galleried library contains more than 80,000 volumes and 2,000 hand-written manuscripts, among them one from the ninth century. Its history-of-man painted ceiling, finished in 1755, is still the bright, untouched original.

The basilica church has a 200-foot-high dome and a handsome circular staircase leading up six floors to one of the tower bells. Outside the church is a railed wall around the last inner courtyard. From there is a splendid view of the Danube and the countryside.

This year the abbey has started a 10-year restoration project and the church towers are partially obscured by scaffolding.

St. Florian's Augustine monastery and pilgrimage church were also rebuilt in the 18th century. Just as at Melk, a series of apartments was arranged for the emperor.

St. Florian's library, while not as astonishingly ornate as Melk's, has even more books, 130,000. Several hand-written manuscripts from the 11th and 12th centuries are on display.

In one special room is a 16th-century altar made for the original Gothic church with eight amazingly brilliant and unusual scenes from the Passion of Christ.

Many tourists are drawn to St. Florian's because of its association with the famous 19th-century musician, Anton Bruckner, who was a choir boy, then teacher and later organist here. In one special room are some of his furniture, piano and the bed in which he died in Vienna. He is buried in the crypt under "his" organ.

The monastery at Klosterneuburg also has its monastic area, church and imperial suites. But the main feature here is the Verdun altar. It's the work of Nikolas from Verdun, France, who spent 10 years here (until 1181) creating the three rows of copper and enamel scenes from the Bible. Such scenes were the medieval method of teaching people, most of whom could not read. The upper row tells biblical stories before the laws of Moses, the bottom row is after the laws and the centre row is the life of Christ.

Tourists wishing to visit these monasteries should inquire about the times guided tours are given as no one is allowed to wander through the complexes without a guide.

Air fare cheap to Europe, but costs killing visitors

Travel Tips

By STAN DELAPLANE

As Dutch uncles are fond of telling children here: "A herring a day keeps the doctor away."

The frigid North Sea threatens the Netherlands but it's also a salty supermarket. We've been stuffed with smoked eels and steamed mussels. Zeeland oysters, lobster and sole cooked a dozen ways.

It's the summer season. All Europe is crowded with Americans, Canadians and Japanese. We compete for rooms with bargain-hunting Europeans. The French hop down to Spain where francs buy more pesetas. Germans take durable westmarks to England and buy shoes and sweaters with the cheaper pound.

The dollar is skidding. While this is a great eating town — the Dutch love food — a good restaurant meal costs about $25. At the gourmet De Dikkert, a restored 17th century windmill, the tab will go $40.

Cheapest thing in town is the Big Mac: $1.65.

* * *

The endless variety of bargain air fares is what's filling Europe. It's also causing a good deal of grumbling as tourists find the yo-yo dollar won't buy what it used to.

Delft china is expensive. Hand-carved wooden shoes aren't as cute and clever (or as cheap) as they were ten years ago.

Clothing is far more expensive than the United States. The good buy is diamonds which run 20 per cent lower than in America.

* * *

This is not to bum-rap Amsterdam. You hear the same thing about all Europe from North Americans climbing on and off tour buses.

"Air fares are cheap, but the cost of living here is killing us."

The Netherlands tourist people brought in a covey of American newspaper writers on national Airlines' new flight from New Orleans to Amsterdam. That's more than a lot of other countries are doing.

Tourists press agents are having a rough time.

A man from British Tourist Authority said: "London hotels used to cooperate by giving us complimentary rooms for visiting writers. But not now. Their attitude is: 'Who needs them?' "

* * *

Among the under-30 kids, Amsterdam has been The Place for marijuana — and hard drugs. The Netherlands police are lenient. And they say you can get high just breathing the air as you walk across Dam Square.

The Square is the Flea Market for the shaggy set. The big event should be next week. Summer backpackers, heading home to school, put up hand-lettered signs and sell their gear at bargain prices. Everything from guitars to pop-top Volkswagen campers.

* * *

Amsterdam's red light district has been famous in songs and stories on all the ships at sea. Girls are showcased in their windows.

Once the scanty clothing must have been enough to make sailor men clutch their throats. Stagger into the nearest saloon.

But in these days of bikinis, The String and topless shows, they seem overdressed. Sic transit gloria. (Or was it Hilda?)

The nudge for the brief encounter: 50 guilders, $25 U.S.

* * *

When they're not stuffing you with herring, the Dutch turn you over to the Indonesian restaurants. A hangover from the colonial days in what used to be called the Dutch East Indies.

Main dish, of course, is the famous rijsttafel. Waiters in loud flowered vests load the "rice table" with skewered meat and lumpa (something like Chinese egg roll with peanut sauce). Spicy shrimp, meatballs and chicken.

You wash all this down with Dutch gin and cold Amstel or Heineken beers.

* * *

Chic (but not cheap) is the Black Whale where waiters in baggy fishermen's pants served lunch on pewter plates: red mullet smothered with tiny shrimp, capers and parsley. Absolutely first-class and delicious.

The place is on the waterfront, 16 kilometres out of town at Zaandam. It's a restored 18th century village. Windmills. Sheep wandering on the meadow. Small boats and even a chocolate factory making the breeze smell like an open candy box.

* * *

The Netherlands gives you 2 guilders to one dollar U.S. This is the first country in the world to print money in Braille.

In the lower left-hand corner of the paper money, there are raised dots the size of the letter o on your telephone. One raised dot, 5 guilders; two dots, 25 guilders.

One-Day Term for Man Held 52 Days for Trial

An 18-year-old Saanich youth who has an adult criminal record involving three offences was given a nominal one day in jail, a suspended sentence and 18 months probation for two more offences in county court Friday.

Judge E.J.C. Stewart said he decided to suspend the passing of sentence on Glen Charles Ferreira because he is young and immature, to an extent and because he had not previously been given probation as an adult and had spent 52 days in custody awaiting trial.

Ferreira pleaded guilty Thursday to breaking and entering a Roberts Street apartment June 27 with intent to commit an indictable offence and to being unlawfully at large Oct. 7, 1977, from Jordan River prison camp.

Crown counsel Robert Milligan said Ferreira was at Jordan River camp serving sentences for dangerous driving and possession of stolen property. Earlier, he had escaped lawful custody at Chilliwack.

He urged a jail sentence for the latest offences.

Defence counsel Barry Mah Ming said his client has a drug problem but has begun to rehabilitate himself.

Stewart said the 52 days Ferreira has spent in custody awaiting disposition of the latest two offences may have turned out to be sufficient deterrence.

"I have to consider the public interest and I really don't think I'm taking any risk with public safety in suspending sentence and issuing a probation order," he said, referring to the breaking and entering offence. The nominal one day in jail was given for the unlawfully at large offence.

Herbicide Fight Lost

PORT MCNEILL (CP) — Residents of northern Vancouver Island have lost their fight against a British Columbia Hydro proposal to spray the herbicide 2,4-D near the site of a proposed $1 million salmon enhancement program.

Judy Lee, executive director of the Westcoast Environmental Law Association, said Friday the pesticide control appeal board gave no reasons for its decision that the spraying would not present an "unreasonably adverse effect."

Among those fighting the proposal, which would involve spraying a Hydro power line right-of-way between here and Woss Lake, were members of the Nimpkish Indian band, the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union and the Mount Waddington Regional District.

No-Name, No Bargain: CAC

OTTAWA (CP) — Those no-name-brand products may not be the bargain they are claimed to be by some of the chain stores that have introduced them in recent months, says the Consumers' Association of Canada.

The CAC says in the August edition of its magazine, Canadian Consumer, that a test on the liquid dish detergents sold by three chains showed that at least two may end up costing more because the product is so watered down that more has to be used.

The liquid detergent sold by Dominion Stores Ltd. and Steinberg's Ltd. were rated unacceptable by the CAC and the generic detergent sold by Loblaws was given only an average rating.

The CAC said in the test report that although the generic liquid detergents cost less than name-brand detergent for the same volume, the generic products were less effective.

The Steinberg's product got the worst rating. The CAC test labs calculated it would cost 88 cents to wash 1,000 dishes using the Steinberg's soap. Next worst was the Dominion generic at a cost of 69 cents for 1,000 dishes.

The Loblaws version of the detergent would cost 48 cents for 1,000 plates, better than eight of the name-brand detergents tested but not as good as Ivory, at 37 cents a thousand, Brocade, at 40 cents, Co-Op at 41 cents and Joy which would cost 45 cents for 1,000 plates.

"We have to point out right away that products such as the two low-performing generic ones (Dominion and Steinberg's) are not worth buying," the CAC said.

The CAC gave value ratings of "poor" to six name-brand liquid detergents: Lux (60 cents to wash 1,000 dishes), MIR (58 cents), Palmolive (58 cents), Dove 56 cents), Sweetheart (58 cents) and Vel (57 cents).

Steinberg's vice-president Morris Ladenheim said he was surprised the company's generic detergent performed worst of the three compared but said Steinberg's had never claimed it was top quality.

Convert Your Fireplace

By A. J. HAND

By now it's no secret to most people that fireplaces are far from efficient when it comes to providing heat for your home. Hundreds of people have closed off their fireplaces and turned to wood burning stoves for their greater efficiency. By doing so you can easily get four to five times as much heat out of your wood pile and into your home.

There are two ways to do the job. You can run the smoke pipe from your stove directly into the old fireplace opening. That's what I've done in my home, and it's the easier of your two choices. The other way is to cut a hole into the side of the chimney that serves your fireplace, and run the stove pipe into the chimney through that hole. This involves more work and more mess, so avoid this technique if possible.

The way to avoid it is by selecting a woodstove with a horizontal stove pipe connector lower than the top of your fireplace opening. This lets you run the pipe straight out of the back of the stove through the plate you use to cover the fireplace. If the stove you choose is tall, or if its pipe connector comes out of the top of the stove instead of the back, you probably won't be able to go through the fireplace cover plate.

For the plate, go to a welding shop and buy a piece of ⅛ inch steel plate large enough to cover your fireplace opening with two or three inches of overlap all around. Have the shop cut a hole in the plate the right diameter to accept a flue collar sized to accept your stove pipe. The hole should be positioned about an inch or two higher on the plate than the pipe outlet on your stove.

Fasten this plate to your fireplace opening with about eight one inch lag screws. Drive these lag screws into lead screw anchors set into holes drilled in the fireplace bricks with a carbide tipped drill. Any hardware store should have the screws, anchors and bit. Before fastening the plate in place, run a fat bead of silicone rubber caulk about an inch in from the edges of the plate, on its back surface. This will seal the plate against the fireplace opening.

Now you can install the stove. First fasten the flue collar to the plate. Use sheet metal screws or pop rivets. Use some furnace cement (sold at plumbing shops and hardware stores) to seal the collar in place. Then run a length of stovepipe from the stove into the flue collar. Seal both the stove-to-pipe and pipe-to-collar joints with furnace cement. That's it.

Even if your installation runs into the chimney instead of the fireplace opening, you'll still have to cover the fireplace with a plate. Size and install the plate as above, but eliminate the hole for the pipe.

Instead, cut a hole into your chimney large enough to accept a flue collar. Best way to make the hole is drill a series of small holes with a ⅜-inch carbide tipped masonry bit. Make the holes about a half inch apart in a circular pattern the size of the hole you need for the collar. Then work with a hammer and cold chisel to remove the masonry between the holes, and to finally chip away until the hole for the flue collar is complete. This is slow and dusty work. Wear eye protection.

When the hole is complete, use furnace cement to set the flue collar into its hole. Then connect the stove to the collar. As shown in the sketch you'll need an elbow to turn the pipe into the collar.

Note: When installing any stove, be sure to maintain the proper distance between it and any combustible surface. Your local fire department should be able to advise you. For most radiant wood stoves you'll have to allow at least 36 inches of clearance behind the stove and to the sides. You should also provide some form of heat protection for the floor beneath the stove. A piece of 24-gauge sheet metal will work.

Lady Bankers Do Well

NEW YORK (AP) — Since the four Westchester offices of Barclay's Bank of New York have been staffed entirely by women, business in those offices has doubled, reports John Whicker, bank president.

Do Birds Fly Efficiently?

By Dr. Frank Miller

DEAR DR. MILLER: I'm going to do a paper on the most energy-efficient means of travel and I was wondering if you could tell me just how energy-efficient birds are. — C.R.

DEAR C.R.: No, sorry, I can't, not in terms of calories consumed per kilometre, anyway. It would depend greatly, too, on the particular species of bird. To take extremes, hummingbirds which have a wingbeat of 90 per second could hardly be as energy-efficient as the wandering albatross which may soar for six hours before moving its wings once.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I have found our kitten can't tolerate milk without a diarrhea. So I stopped it. Does she get enough calcium in her regular food or should I be giving her something extra for calcium? I am right, aren't I? Calcium is the most important mineral for kittens, isn't it? — G.I.

DEAR G.I.: While many other minerals (such as iron) are vital to the kitten's health, you're right in assuming calcium is the one most likely to be deficient in the diet. A kitten fed straight meat, chicken, fish or liver would indeed develop a calcium deficiency frequently resulting in fractures of the spine and long bones of the legs. Commercial kitten food designated as nutritionally complete contains adequate calcium salts.

DEAR DR. MILLER: One member of this family has already had a vasectomy. I can't see any reason why Beau Jack, our boxer, shouldn't be willing to volunteer for the same operation, can you? — D.L.

DEAR D.L.: Undoubtedly, Beau Jack would prefer a vasectomy to castration. A roaming male should have one or the other operation. Practicing pooch population control is vital and this is one logical approach. There are pros and cons for both surgeries. The castrated male, for example, feels less urge to roam than one who has had only a vasectomy.

Ideally, neither operation would be as effective as confining the dog to quarters or keeping it on a leash, anyway. This is as effective as the above methods of birth control. For females as well as males, it provides safety for the dog (and, on occassion, possibly some people) and is a big step forward in a good neighbor policy.

DEAR DR. MILLER: When a fish gets a big swollen belly and many of its scales sort of stick out sideways, I've been told this is dropsy and that saltwater baths are the best cure. In the past year, I have tried this on two fish and both got worse and died anyway. I just heard fluid can be drawn off their belly with a needle and syringe. Is this a better cure? — A.R.

DEAR A.R.: Unfortunately, neither salt which may temporarily draw off some fluid by osmosis, or a needle and syringe which may rapidly remove accumulated abdominal fluid, provides a cure. Fluid removal from a dropsied fish has nothing to do with solving the problem. It only temporarily reduces the symptoms. Actually, there is no cure in most cases of dropsy and the kindest course of action for the fish, when the scales begin to protrude, is euthanasia. (It's best to wait for this sign, however since some abdominal swellings, pregnancy, for example, are self-correcting).

Anyone who takes care of a young child should know something about how to prevent accidents that are the most frequent cause of harm to children, such as burns, poisonings, falls, etc., and how to act in an emergency.

The 16-page illustrated pamphlet Sitting Safely urges baby sitters to follow all instructions parents give them and to call them in case a child falls ill or has an accident. If the child's parents cannot be reached, she should call their physician.

In case of a fire, the first duty of a baby sitter is to get the children immediately out of the house. Furthermore, a sitter should not open the door to any stranger and never leave a child alone in the house, even for a minute.

The booklet also offers ideas on how to keep young children of different ages peacefully occupied and entertained. In addition, it stresses that a sitter should not only watch the children, she should also be aware of hazards in the surroundings. For instance, if grease or water has been spilled on the floor, she should mop it up to avoid that a child falls. If there is a safety gate at the top of the stairs, she should make sure that it is properly fastened at all times.

A baby sitter should preferably know the people for whom she sits or they should have been recommended to her by neighbors or friends. Before she sits for the first time, she should discuss the fee, find out how many children she is expected to care for and know when the parents expect to return.

How's Your Hearing?

(Victoria) — Electronic hearing demonstrations will be given at Beltone Hearing Aid Service, 613 Yates Street, during a free Service Centre open to all hearing aid wearers. The demonstrations will be given on Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 14th and 15th from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. by Ronald Germain, Beltone Hearing Aid Specialist (22 years experience).

Anyone who has trouble hearing is welcome to have this special demonstration using the latest electronic equipment. For those who now wear an aid, the demonstration will show if it is still right for their loss. Others will learn which aid may be right for them.

The free demonstration will be given from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. during the special Service Centre on Monday and Tuesday. Anyone unable to attend is invited to phone 382-3323 for a free in-home appointment.

Doing the Town

With DOROTHY FRASER

Elegant boots by Bandolino . . .

The Bandolino boots we saw at Munday's this week are so newly arrived from Italy that they're probably still suffering jet lag! . . . In showing us the various styles, Mr. Munday told us that absolutely nobody knows how to make boots like Bandolino . . . and Munday's are so sold on them that this season they've put their entire quota of imported boots into Bandolinos . . . Not extreme . . . beautifully crafted . . . they exude quality . . . and give you real good value for your cash outlay! . . . But now to Munday's selection, which is exceptionally nice . . . "Dewy" is a knee-high boot with stacked mid-heel, and rubber sole . . . The plain front is shaped to the instep with a crimper . . . (and this goes for all the new Bandolinos) . . . Comes in black and brown calf and the same colors in suede . . . $85 . . . "Ally" is the same style with the very popular lower heel . . . Black or brown calf . . . $85 . . . Both of these boots come in narrow and medium fittings up to size 12 . . . "Folly", priced at $100 . . . is a very dressy boot with moulded sole and high heel . . . slightly more pointed toe . . . In brown or black calf . . . Another style that was extremely popular last year is called "Merlin" . . . It's a straight shank boot (no zipper) with a fairly high stacked heel . . . Has a cowboy look, with its lug sole and lasso-like stitched detailing . . . Biscuit calf or honey suede . . . This too is $100 . . . Munday's, 1203 Douglas St., 383-2211.

It's the season to be dress-y! . . .

Seen what they're doing to the Bay? . . . Downright exciting . . . but no more so than the new clothes which keep arriving thick and fast in the Bay's Mirror Room! . . . When we dropped in last Monday we were drawn like a magnet to a rack of dark print dresses by Marla . . . Real transition dresses to start wearing on duller days now . . . then right on through the fall and winter . . . They're 2-pce. dresses of 100% polyester, with skirts gathered into a band . . . tops with slightly different necklines . . . One with banded wedding-ring neck and tie . . . in a black with woodrose leafy print . . . Another of crinkly polyester with mandarin neckline . . . Brown with beige and navy with apricot . . . Still another has a yoked shirt top, and comes in muted florals . . . and finally, one with shirring below the wedding ring neckline . . . this one in black and woodrose . . . and muted browns . . . We were pleasantly surprised when we read the price tags on these delightful dresses . . . just $115 and $125 . . . They certainly look a lot more expensive! . . . If you want something really cosy . . . see the new angora dresses in two different styles . . . One has a crocheted yoke and stand-up collar . . . comes in mulberry and apricot . . . The other . . . in camel and mulberry . . . features a rounded neck and drawstring waist . . . Both are priced at $125 . . . The Bay Mirror Room, 385-1311, loc. 280.

An entirely new type of waterbed . . .

Waterbeds . . . as they've been up to now . . . are passe! . . . It's true they're marvellous to sleep on, but they present too many inherent problems the average person is not prepared to put up with . . . which is why you may be one of the many people who don't own one . . . But at Standard Furniture this week we saw the very latest type of waterbed which makes all others look positively archaic! . . . It's a fluid support system put out by Grange . . . one of the leading manufacturers of fine mattresses . . . and its features are truly impressive . . . To begin with, it's not clumsy or heavy . . . (Weighs only one third of a normal waterbed!) . . . It looks just like a regular mattress, with a box spring . . . You can put it in any bedroom suite, and use your regular bedding, including fitted sheets and blankets . . . There's no great ugly side line . . . no hard edge . . . and if you sit on the side you won't fall in! . . . It's properly insulated, so you don't need a heater . . . Comes in various sizes, in a medium price range . . . And finally, you can set it up yourself in 1½ hrs. . . . No big deal . . . no magic . . . but you end with years of very comfortable sleeping . . . Since there are no pressure points, you don't toss and turn as much as on a conventional mattress . . . Your tensions are soothed away . . . it's like floating on a calm sea! . . . No wonder hospitals are starting to intall this new fluid support mattress system! . . . See it at . . . Standard Furniture Co., 737 Yates St., 382-5111.

You'll find the unique and unusual at Things Welsh . . .

Entertaining visiting firemen? Want to take them shopping where they'll find clothes that are truly different . . . Gift items they'll pounce on with alacrity . . . and be grateful to you forever more for steering them too? . . . Then head for "Things Welsh" in Harbour Square . . . where everything is imported from Wales . . . and is not only intriguing, but of the highest quality, to boot! . . . We positively drooled over some new jackets in Brushweave . . . pure wool in muted stripes with a mohair-like texture . . . Both blouson and shirttail jacket styles . . . lovely in smokey blues, dove, or bronze . . . Also new is a Shadoweave unlined cape coat . . . either brown or black with white . . . in long or short lengths . . . as well as a long belted cape coat with side closing . . . this one fully lined . . . Looking around for things which would make great gifts to take back to the U.S. or wherever . . . Welsh wool tapestry clutch purses, cosmetic bags, coin purses, eyeglass cases and the like . . . Nice roomy tapestry handbags . . . most of which have darling little visored hats to match . . . Tapestry place mats and coasters (the latter only $2.50 for a set of 6) . . . Linen tea towels with Welsh sayings . . . Men's ties with the typical Welsh dragon design . . . Welsh recipe books . . . Records of Welsh folk music . . . traditional choir pieces sung by those wonderful Welsh voices . . . These, we hear, are especially popular . . . as is the really beautiful and unusual Celtic jewellery . . . which turns out to be quite surprisingly inexpensive! . . . Things Welsh, Harbour Square, 910 Government St., 388-6122.

New Ports Corduroys . . .

For day-in-day-out wear . . . you'd have to go a long way to beat those good-looking, hard-wearing cord garments by Ports International . . . so well tailored and understatedly smart! . . . Eaton's Signature Shop have their new Ports cords in for fall . . . well worth a visit on your part . . . There's a 2-pce. pinwale navy pantsuit with a matching skirt . . . the latter a dirndl style with side pockets and tie belt . . . Also a navy shirtwaist dress which can also be worn as a coat . . . smart with the skirt and a Ports blouse underneath . . . A new color this season is khaki . . . and a shirtdress and matching skirt also comes in this color . . . Saw a group of broken cords . . . camel colored skirts . . . wine dust shirtwaist dresses, and chocolate brown shirt dresses with matching skirts . . . Eaton's now have a fantastic selection of Ports classic polyester shirt blouses . . . the latest arrivals in two new colors . . . wine dust and cognac . . . and would you believe, they're still selling at $23 . . . just about the only things that haven't gone up! Exciting new shades in ultrasuede for fall . . . Nougat, Misty, Prunelle (brown with a touch of burgundy) . . . and Tobasco . . . One of the big advantages in ultasuede things at Eaton's is that every piece is sold separately . . . Two styles of polyester crepe de chine blouses come in matching colors . . . One a soft, small-collared shirt, and the other a very sexy type with low slit in front and very full sleeves . . . Eaton's Signature Shop, 382-7141, loc. 242.

Lovely tweed coats newly arrived at Wilson's . . .

Summer's still with us . . . but small hints now and then remind us that Autumn is nigh . . . and that before we know it, it'll be overcoat weather . . . If you haven't already got a warm, handsome, go-everywhere coat in your closet . . . now's the time to shop for it . . . Wilson's have just unpacked some beautiful tweed coats . . . Imported ones from Gala Forest of Scotland, which button up to the neck, have raglan sleeves, and fit easily over a suit . . . Colors are gorgeous . . . combinations of blues and greens . . . Black or grey with white . . . Royal emerald and raspberry . . . Sizes run from 8 to 20, and price is $365 . . . (with the exception of a grey/camel/black combination tagged at $335) . . . More new tweed coats are tailored in Canada by Clark-Davis . . . This is a somewhat looser tweed, styled with notched lapel collars, and tie belt which can be worn or not as the spirit moves you . . . These come in greens, wine shades and cream and turquoise combinations . . . and pretty well all sizes . . . priced at $395 . . . We urge you to have a look at these tweeds soon while the size range is intact . . . We think, too, you'll like the new loose vest and skirt sets from Sportcraft . . . One is grey flannel trimmed with camel braid . . . dirndl skirt and loose, unlined vest . . . $175 . . . The other a big, muted check in shades of brown, beige, blue gey and rose . . . This one has a lined vest and dirndl skirt . . . Both look quite stunning! . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177 and 1210 Newport Ave., 592-2821.

Gorgeous new wools at Eaton's . . .

Looks like this is our day to tell you about tweeds . . . but this time tweeds by the yard . . . oops! we mean by the metre . . . which have just arrived at Eaton's Fabric Garden . . . If you're one of the clever women who can make your own clothes . . . or if you've a smart dressmaker who does it for you . . . don't miss seeing the new beautiful pure wool tweed fabrics at Eaton's . . . From England there are 150 cm wide tweeds in browns, greys, wines, beiges, natural . . . and herringbone tweeds from Italy . . . These are a good weight for coats and suits . . . Priced at $25 per m. . . . (Don't worry if you haven't caught up on metric yet . . . Eaton's salesladies will work it out for you!) . . . Another coat-weight English tweed we like very much is a dark brown and cream mixture, at $20 per m. . . . There are some really handsome Donegal tweeds from Ireland . . . $33 . . . golds and greens and greys . . . and a lighter weight at $25 . . . Also some beautifully soft flannels made from lambswool with a bit of nylon for extra wear and uncrunchability . . . Browns, greys and burgundy, at $18 . . . Another wool and polyester fabric, priced at just $12, comes in nice, earthy shades . . . and we noticed a 100% polyester which looks like spun flannel . . . just the right weight for dresses and light-weight suits . . . A wide array of colors including mint, wine, paprika, French blue, navy, at $10 . . . Eaton's Fabric Garden, 382-7141, loc. 233.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are trying hard to cope with the most heartbreaking tragedy a parent could ever experience — losing a child.

Our son was only 18. We're sure he didn't want to end his life. He died of an overdose of drugs. He had everything to live for. He was an honor student, a fine athlete, good-looking and popular. He had such great plans for the future, and had already been accepted to the university of his choice. He had never been in any kind of trouble and we never knew him to touch drugs of any kind. He wasn't an addict. He was a green kid experimenting with pills and angel dust (PCP).

I don't know why I'm writing to you, Abby, except that our son used to read your column every day and he thought you were a "neat lady." Maybe I want to ask you to tell kids who read your column to stay away from drugs. They just don't realize what a terrible price they might pay for wanting to get "high" or experience new sensations.

And yes, Abby, he was our only son. HEARTBROKEN

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: You have my sympathy. May I recommend a wonderfully supportive group who call themselves "The Compassionate Friends" — a self-help organization for parents whose children have died. Many bereaved parents have found that their grief is lessened by quietly listening to one another, sharing experiences, talking out their feelings and sometimes crying openly together.

The person who made me aware of "The Compassionate Friends" said, "Losing a child is positively the worst thing that can happen to a parent, and the only people who can understand it are those who have been through it. This organization was a lifesaver for me."

The national co-ordinators are Arnold and Paula Shamres, whose 10-year-old daughter was killed in an accident. The Shamreses will provide information about this organization to anyone who writes to them at P.O. Box 3247, Hialeah, Fla. 33013. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for their reply.

DEAR ABBY: What would you do if you received the following card:

"Happy Birthday. Buy yourself a $10 gift, and send me the invoice."

1. Ignore it.
2. Buy gift, and send invoice to giver.
3. Thank giver of gift (?) and forget it.

BIRTHDAY BABY

DEAR BIRTHDAY BABY: Find a book on etiquette that includes "gift giving," and send him an invoice.

Melons should be mature before picked, but they don't have to be ripe. Both mature and immature melons can be hard; you can tell a mature one because it will have a shallow basin where it was attached to the stem. If some of the stem base is still there, it was picked too soon. A ripe cantelope has a yellow cast and a pleasant aroma. A honeydew has a nice aroma and feels velvety when ripe.

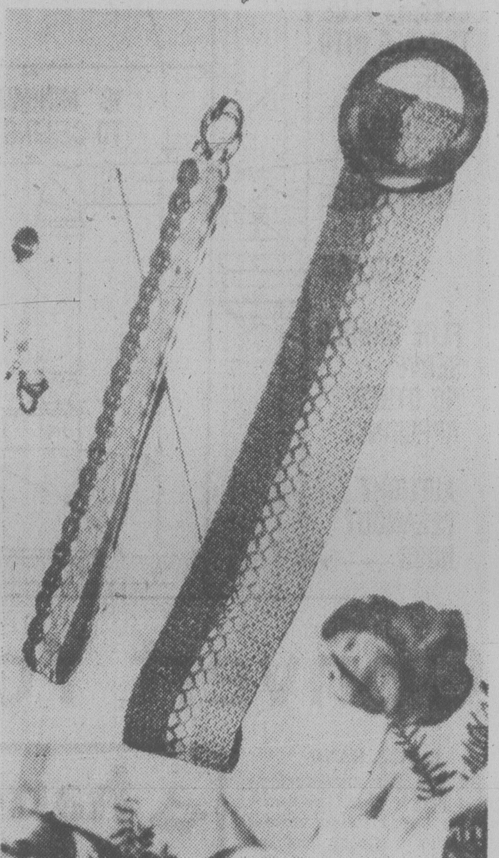
First Rug Hookers Did Own Designs

By MAY E. MacLEAN



I am indebted to the Ontario Hooking Craft Guild for the following bit of history related to their craft. The study of early hooked rugs is an adventure into the lives of our forefathers.

It is thought the craft was brought here from the Scandinavian countries during the 17th century. No one knows for sure, but certainly by the 1700s the hooked rug and the hooked coverlet had a place in the affection of our ancesters, a place that it has held ever since among lovers of native crafts and antiques.

Very early rugs were the creation of their maker. Only her initiative and creative ability made them possible. Often the housewife drew the designs on pieces of her hand woven linen, using charcoal from her fireplace. For motifs she used scenes from her own life and surroundings.

All this is what makes the study and collection of early rugs so interesting to us today. Her home, her garden and farm animals were dear to her and were pictured and put into her rugs for memories' sake.

Up until 1870 designs were original. Edward Frost, a tin pedlar from Bideford, Maine, began copying these designs, using his old zinc and tin ware to flatten and cut the stencils. From these he printed patterns to sell on his next trip. These early stencils are now at the Ford Museum, Greenfield Villiage, Dearborn, Michigan.

These stencils have a fascinating and romantic story before they reached the museum. For when Edward Frost was forced by ill health to sell his business in 1876, and retire to California, the stencils changed hands many times and were eventually forgotten.

About 10 years ago a Mrs. Stratton, an ardent enthusiast of the craft, came upon an original "Frost" in Vermont, and spent many hours and much time, tracking down the collection of Frost's stencils. They were eventually found in the loft of a barn turned garage, at Lowell, Mass.

It's the finishing touches which make fashion, and this Spring the belt is back. Why not "Learn to Crochet" with my leaflet No. 6870, and so make yourself several of these smart belts? Both wide and narrow belts are in style this season!

To order Leaflet No. 7452 — Belts, or No. 6870 "Learn to Crochet", send 75 cents in coin for each Leaflet, PLUS a stamped self-addressed return envelope, long one if possible. Send to: May E. Mac Lean, "KNIT & CHAT", c/o 486 Montford Dr. Dollard des Ormeaux, Roxbaro, Que. Please be sure to state pattern numbers when ordering, and to enclose your stamped return envelope. Allow ten days to two weeks for delivery. My illustrated catalogue of other designs available is 25 cents from the same address.

SCHOOLBOY AUTHOR SCORES AT AGE 14

TORONTO (CP) — A 14-year-old Grade 7 boy who was asked to write a novel as an English class assignment now has sold more than 22,000 copies of the assignment.

Most of his classmates wrote about 20 pages, but he thought it was such fun he kept going.

"I wanted to continue the story, so I did," Gordon said in a recent interview.

"My friends said that it was as good as any book they'd read, so I sent it to Scholastic Tab publishers.

"Boy, was I excited when they accepted it."

Gordon now has another book in production at the publishers, is working on a third and no longer has to worry about summer jobs.

He said his parents are proud of his sudden success and his writing ability.

"When the first book was accepted, my mother rushed down to my school with the good news."

Bio-dex

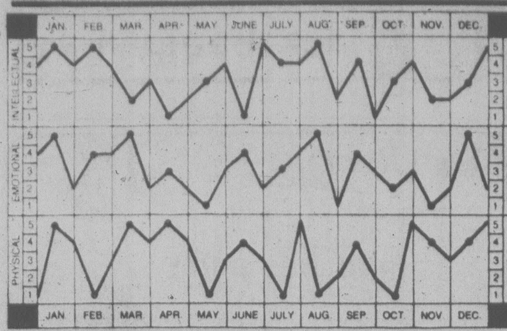
Your computerized biorhythm

©BIODEX PRODUCTIONS 1978
Dist. by Toronto Sun Syndicate



HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:

BIO-DEX READOUT:

0-5 Negative Cycle-	You are susceptible to burns and scalds. Be extremely careful in the kitchen.
6-10 Neutral Cycle-	Resist impulses. They may be more foolish than you realize, especially if your intellectual level is low.
11-15 Positive Cycle-	Question instructions tactfully if you feel a mistake has been made. Your concern will be appreciated.

What does 'low' mean? You could catch a virus more easily and feel tired and listless on a physical low, while an emotional low makes you more irritable and despondent. Intellectually, a low means your attention span may be short and your memory weak. Remember that you can overcome most of these problems just by taking a few common-sense precautions.

BIO-DEX READOUT:

11-15 Positive Cycle	You have achieved a great deal. Don't rest on your laurels, there's much still to do.

Next time you find yourself in an argument, try a simple experiment. Imagine yourself in your opponent's shoes and ask yourself how you would handle the problem. You just may find that the whole argument is stupid and unnecessary. Remember too that either one of you could be having a critical emotional day — not the best time to argue sensibly and logically. Sometimes the best way to win an argument is to stay out of it.

Garbage a Hot Issue

WINNIPEG (CP) — School divisions in Winnipeg are reducing the heat, dimming the lights, and resorting to garbage as they seek ways to trim their fuel bills.

"Don't let anyone tell you you can't save money" by keeping a careful watch on energy consumption, said Gordon Edmunds, maintenance superintendent of the St. Vital school division, which now is building a school that will obtain all its heat by burning garbage.

A massive incinerator at Victor H. L. Wyatt School will consume about 10 tons of refuse a day, collected in the division's other schools.

Not only that, the same trucks that will deliver the garbage will transport internal mail and audiovisual equipment around the division.

The incinerator is expected to pay for itself in eight years through energy bill savings, if energy prices remain the same. If gas and hydro costs continue to rise, the incinerator will pay for itself sooner, Edmunds said.

Saving money by carting garbage to a central incinerator is not a new concept for the division. Edmunds said that for the last few years the division has been saving money through a combined mail delivery, garbage pickup operation. But now, heat from burning the garbage will not be wasted, it will be harnessed to save the cost of conventional gas or electric heat.

"Contrary to public opinion, shool divisions have to pay anyway to have their garbage picked up. The city doesn't do it for us."

Edmunds said the cost of the existing central facility was $24,000 compared with the alternative of installing incinerators at 10 schools for a cost of about $120,000.

Once the central plant started operating the division tied mail delivery to the garbage pickup service and "it worked so well that we have never gone back to mailing."

The St. Vital division also plans to ask Education Minister Keith Cosens for permission to close schools three extra days at Christmas, to turn down the heat and turn off the lights, and save $2,700. The extra three days would be made up in August before the Labor Day weekend.

While none of the other nine school divisions in the city indicate they are likely to follow suit on this particular move all have various programs designed to cut consumption.

Summer Sinus an Allergy?

By L. L. COLEMAN, M.D.

In the summer, even when the weather is nice, I get attacks of sinus infection. Almost each year I'm plagued by one or two attacks. I thought that this happens only in the winter when people have lots of colds. — Miss M.O'B.

Dear Miss O'B.:

Bacteria have no great respect for the time of year. Although infections of the nose, throat and sinuses occur more frequently in the wintertime, many people like yourself have flare-ups in good weather.

People who have chronic infections of the sinuses can have a flare-up at any time if a germ invades the nose and then extends into the sinus area.

The spring, summer and fall are the times when sufferers from allergies may develop a secondary bacterial infection. This is how it works. A profuse nasal discharge of mucous is an excellent breeding place for bacteria. Once they set up housekeeping, the infection may extend to all of the sinuses.

Perhaps it might be worthwhile for you to consider an allergic reaction as a basis for the beginning of your "summer sinus infection." Active treatment for both allergy and sinus infection may reduce the frequency and severity of these inections.

Far too may people try to medicate themselves with over-the counter "buck-shot" drugs which contain decongestants, antihistamines and antibiotics. These may afford a small, but temporary, amount of relief. The disadvantage of such self-medication is that these people put off for too long a period of time being actively treated by the doctor.

Smears, cultures, sinus irrigations, allergic studies and X-rays will be of geat value in the better understanding of your total problem.

I have some moles on my face. I'm scared to death they may be cancerous. Is there any way I can tell if they are dangerous?—Miss H.W.

Dear Miss W.:

When a letter such as yours comes to me I have a sense of almost total frustration. It makes me wonder if the messages I try to convey to readers are effective.

Being "scared to death" certainly is no sensible approach to your problem. Obviously, you are not able to distinguish if a mole is dangerous or not. Even the discering eye of the doctor cannot always make that distinction without further tests.

* * *

I remember that, as a child, we were sometimes given wine as a tonic. Recently, I have given up all alcohol except for a glass or two of wine before dinner. Can this be harmful over a long period of time? — Mrs. E.E.R.,

Dear Mrs. R.:

Wine contains alcohol and, in moderate amounts, may act as a stimulant to the appetite and thus serve as a "tonic." There is a relaxing, tranquilizing feeling that comes with drinking wine before and during dinner.

The key to drinking all alcohol — wine, beer or liquor — is, of course, moderation. It is false to believe that wine and beer are less intoxicating than the so-called hard liquors. The alcoholic content may be less, but if large quantities of wine are taken over a long period of time, the same dangers exist as if it were hard liquor. Damage to the liver by cirrhosis has been found in those alcoholics known as "winos" who sadly pay the penalty for overindulgence.

So much for the bad news. The good news is that a drink or two of wine before dinner can do no harm unless there is some underlying medical condition which contra-indicates its use.

GARDENING
jack beastall

We are never sure what a plant has produced until we have lifted it from the soil, for so often a large mass of foliage goes with a small crop of tubers. But when the crop is reasonably good the work arouses pardonable pride.

In our eagerness to find out the resutls of our efforts we tend to lift the roots before the tubers have reached their full development.

This is not good policy because the tubers mature and size up rapidly in the last three weeks as the haulm (or top growth) loses its color and withers.

The state of the haulm serves as an indication of when to dig. It should reach a healthy brown tone before we allow our impatience to be gratified by lifting a trial root from the end of a row to determine whether the tubers are well sized.

Some gardeners make it a rule to allow the haulm to completely wither and dry before digging is started.

They point out the well known basic theory that as foliage dies down certain nutrients are being withdrawn and stored in the rootstock. Especially with tuberous rooted plants and bulbs, these stored nutrients are necessary for making rapid top growth and roots when planted the following year.

When a potato crop is lifted before the haulm has completely dried, the tubers are robbed of some of the nutrients that should be stored. This, our friends claim, affects the flavor, texture, and the length of time the tuber can be stored and remain in a good condition.

The best tool for lifting potato roots is a wide five-tined spading, or digging fork. While a tine may sometimes pierce a tuber there is less chance of slicing than there is with a spade.

With a wide fork the entire root can be lifted with the soil attached and placed beside the row where there is space to spread the soil and gather all the tubers, large and small.

It is then easy to fork around the hole and spot the strays, especially those the size of peas which cause annoyance the next season by sending up potatoes where potatos are not wanted.

Tiny tubers will grow just as well the following year as planted sets, so it is wise to turn the soil two or three times and make sure all are removed.

The gardener who has grown the same variety of potato for several years will know the approximate position of the tubers in relation to the top growth and where to insert the digging fork without damaging the tubers.

However, beginners may not be aware that some varieties tend to form their tubers outside the shadow of the haulm and these may not be discovered until the soil is tilled the following spring.

Until one is experienced it is wise when lifting the first few plants to insert the fork well away from the row so as to determine just where the tubers lie.

It pays to choose the perfect day for lifting the potato crop; that is a day with sun and a temperature about 20 degs. C, with a fairly brisk wind to dry the surface of the tubers before the sun has time to cause greening.

The potato belongs in the solanum family which includes the deadly nightshade, and the poisonous properties of the family become evident when the potato tubers are exposed to light and turn green on the surface.

The tubers are laid out beside the row on the soil for drying and will need frequent turning. As soon as the soil on the tubers can be easily removed by rubbing with the hand, place into shallow boxes and remove from strong light.

Put a double sheet of newspaper over each box and place in a shed or basement with good air circulation for a couple of days for the "sweating" period during which the skins dry and harden.

Handle the tubers carefully at all times. Often we see home gardeners dumping tubers from pails and boxes like so much gravel. Every bounce causes a bruise or abrasion which reduces the storage life of the tuber.

It is well worth the time it takes to sort the tubers into three sizes, small, medium, and the top size for the variety being grown.

Small and medium tubers are usually immature with a shorter storage life than the large mature tubers. Use the small first, the mediums next, keeping the mature tubers for the New Year.

A common practice in the past has been to select tubers the size of a hen's egg from the freshly dug crop to set aside for planting stock.

Today it is not considered a good idea. Planting the small tubers, we are told, results in deterioration of the stock. It is better to use large mature tubers for seed and cut these into sets with one to three eyes on each.

Nothing as yet has been devised to take the place of loose-weave sacks for the storage of potatoes grown by home gardeners.

Plastic bags, even with air holes, sweat badly on the inside with temperature changes. Bags in this condition are often seen in produce markets and result in softening of the tubers, soft rot, and premature sprouting.

If potato sacks are not available it is best to spread the tubers on shelving and cover with strips of sacking, or other old material with fairly open weave that will allow air ciruclation but exclude light.

Deep boxes or barrels are not adivsed for use by the home gardener who has not been trained in sorting the tubers and detecting conditions that can cause trouble.

All bruised, nicked, or cut potatoes should be laid aside for immediate use. These are subject to a soft rot which rapidly spreads to adjacent tubers and can amount to severe loss when placed in the lower part of a box or barrel where air is excluded. Diseased tubers are never stored.

If it is worth the home gardener's time, and the garden space, to grow potatoes, it is worth the time to handle them carefully, when digging and sorting, and to store them under the best possible conditions. We have plenty of time to do a good job and protect our investment.

WORK FOR WEEK

Continue thining and using carrots, beets and turnips.

Sow small quantities of lettuce, endive, celtuce and radish for fall and early winter use; all except radish will continue to grow and be usable as long as severe cold is absent. Seedlings must be thinned to at least an inch apart in early stages, for growth.

Chrysanthemums and dahlias must have water at roots. Recent rains will not have penetrated to that depth. See that ties and stakes are secure for these two kinds of plants or rain-wet flower heads will break stems to ground.

Ideal time to take geranium cuttings. Keep pot plants dry 24 hours before cuttings taken and use dry sandy soil for rooting.

Freesias for Christmas in greenhouse or sunporch should be potted now. Set in cool spot outdoors to root in pots of rich compost with leafmould. Take indoors to sunny but airy and cool place later.

Pot bulbs for winter flowering indoors; first plan for cold rooting space in covered coldframe, crawl space or unheated basement.

List of Heirs Still Growing

EMPORIA, Kan. (AP) — Cattlemen Walter and Evans Jones died 25 years ago with no children of their own, but they left behind almost 14,000 heirs, and the list keeps growing.

The brothers Jones established a ballooning trust that pays the medical and educational expenses of needy children in three east-central Kansas counties. The trust has grown so much that its governing board may eventually face a problem with how to spend all the money.

Medical assistance for children in Lyon, Coffey and Osage counties was the first priority of the trust set up by the Joneses, who went into a partnership at the turn of the century on 200 acres of inherited pasture land. Through the years, they found their growing acreage of cattle-grazing lands also covered deposits of oil.

They were in their 70s when they died eight months apart in 1953 with no children of their own to inherit the fortune.

The brothers were especially concerned about victims of the childhood crippler infantile paralysis. Polio has almost disappeared in the last 20 years, so most of the money now goes for education.

The trust specifies that medical funds will go to children based on need and educational funds to students who are "worthy."

Glen Tague of the trust department at Citizens National Bank in Emporia estimates that seven or eight per cent of the area's 13,000 children are aided by the fund during their lifetimes.

The fund has given out 15,877 grants since it started in 1961, but Tague said there have been only about 13,800 individuals involved because of year-to-year duplications.

Increases in land values and oil prices expanded the fund's assets to almost $15 million today from $8 million in 1974, Tague said. He said annual income increased to about $1 million in 1978 from $400,000 in the 1970-76 period.

During the fiscal year that just ended, the fund paid out $217,195 for medical bills of 420 children and $97,603 to educational grants for 177 students.

ROYAL PLANE'S TIRES PROBED

CALGARY (CP) — Transport Canada officials continue to investigate why four tires on an Air Canada 747 aircraft, carrying Prince Philip and 370 other passengers, burst and a fire broke out in the plane's landing gear last week.

The passengers were forced to wait through most of Saturday night at Calgary International Airport after two aborted takeoffs.

U.S. Won't Fill Iran's Weapons List

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The United States has turned down a request from Iran for 31 fighter-bombers fitted with the most sophisticated anti-radar electronic guidance system in the U.S. arsenal, the State Department said Wednesday.

The request for the F4G aircraft and electronic missile guidance system known collectively as the Wild Weasel form part of a multibillion-dollar arms shoping list submitted by Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi early this year and now under active review by the Carter administration.

President Carter reportedly decided last week to reject the shah's request after intense debate within the administration, with the Pentagon favoring the sale and the State Department reportedly opposing it on the grounds that the technology was too sensitive to be given to another nation.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said Wednesday that the administration has offered instead to sell Iran 31 F4E fighter-bombers and 1,000 Shrike missiles. The Iranians immediately agreed to purchase the missiles, but have not decided yet on accepting the offer of the standard model of the aging Phantom bomber.

The Shrike was described by officials as containing a more cumbersome and less reliable version of the Wild Weasel's electronic warfare capability, which locks on enemy radar emission frequencies, and then blinds and destroys the radar installation and antiaircraft missile batteries.

The United States thus far has refused to provide the equipment to any other nation. It has been in operational use by the U.S. Air Force for fewer than four years.

"We believe the Shrike missile will provide Iran with an appropriate capability for air defence purposes," Hodding Carter told reporters at the regular State Department briefing. "Understandably, the Iranians would have preferred the most advanced technology available."

During the Nixon and Ford administrations, the shah virtually had unlimited access to conventional U.S. weapons. Carter administration officials emphasized Wednesday that the refusal was not aimed at Iran but resulted from the reluctance of the United States to export the sensitive technology involved in the Wild Weasel.

Last year, the administration approved the sale of an airborne air warning and defence system to Iran, and is still considering its current order for 70 F14 and 140 F16 fighters.

Waves May Hold Answer To Energy Requirements

SOUTHAMPTON, England (CP) — Despite North Sea oil and vast quantities of coal, Britain is experimenting with alternate forms of energy, and waves, which surround the island, may be one source.

At least four main ideas for obtaining power from the sea are being exploited under a grant of 1 million from the country's department of energy.

Brainchild of a Scottish engineer, Stephen Salter, of Edinburgh University, it has reached a point at which hardware on a 1-15th scale is being tested in Loch Ness in conjunction with a commercial company called Sea Energy Association.

The scheme makes use of a 50-metres-long string of 20 ducks arranged to produce electricity to power-test loads on the nearby shore. Each duck is shaped rather like a cam or teardrop, with the base down and the "beak" upwards; in a sea the duck oscillates about its axis and its relative rotation in relation to the spine on which it is mounted is used to produce useful power.

One of the methods of extracting useful power from the system now being seriously considered is for the ducks to ride on radial piston pumps that produce hydraulic oil at high pressures which in turn can drive variable swashplate pumps at speeds compatible with fairly conventional electricity generation. The benefit of the swashplate hydraulic motor is that it can be simply controlled to produce a constant output speed in spite of a fluctuating power input.

Most promising of the three other major contenders is the hinged-raft system that is the brainchild of Sir Christopher Cockerell, best known for his invention of the hovercraft.

In conjunction with a small company called Wavepower, Cockerell is promoting an arrangement of hinged contouring rafts, the relative movement of which, in a seaway, produces a slow oscillation that gives high torque. This scheme is almost as well advanced as the Salter project.

In February, a string of three of these rafts was anchored in a test location at the entrance to the Beaulieu River in the Solent near here. The string is built to a 1-10th scale of what Cockerell believes could be commercial. Each raft is about five metres wide, 20 metres long and about one metre deep. Two other strings of three rafts have been constructed at the home of British Hovercraft Corp. at Cowes on the Isle of Wight and are awaiting tests.

The Solent string of rafts will generate a few kilowatts of energy in the form of hydraulic pressure which will be put to an experimental use on the nearby shore either for heating or electricity generation. In full-scale commercial models, the energy could be extracted by methods similar to those being proposed by Salter.

The other two concepts receiving funds from the department of energy are respectively called Russell's Rectifier and the oscillating water column. Both are moving towards 1-10th-scale prototypes, according to a department of energy spokesman, and these targets should be reached in late 1978 or early 1979.

Russell, who is director of the water research station at Wallingford, makes use of a series of opening and closing gates which directly rectify the waves. The head of water achieved in this way is used to drive a low-head water turbine and thus produce electricity.

The oscillating water column is the name given to a derivative of a design originated by a Japanese engineer. In Britain, it is being developed by the National Engineering Laboratory at East Kilbride, Scotland. The basic concept is that when a floating cylinder with a series of one-way air valves is oscillating vertically in sympathy with wave movement it will produce air under pressure.

Although the concept is simple—and in fact is in use around Japan to power navigation buoys—a massive amount of detailed research and development work must be done to achieve the high efficiencies, reliabilities and low first costs needed to compete with traditional energy sources in a country such as Britain.

The department of energy is also financing other designs such as the Vickers "organ pipe generator," believed to be the only system intended to be situated on the seabed—its inventors claim that this is logical because all practical wave power systems will have to submerge in heavy weather in order to survive.

400th anniversary in N.W.T.

FROBISHER BAY, N.W.T. — The Archbishop of Canterbury, Most Rev. Donald Coggan, will be preacher Aug. 30 at a Holy Eucharist here to commemorate the arrival of Martin Frobisher and the first Anglican Holy Eucharist held on Baffin Island 400 years ago.

Other dignitaries will include Rt. Rev. J. R. Sperry, Bishop of the Arctic, Most Rev. E. W. Scott, Primate of the Anglican Church of Canada, and Most Rev. F. H. W. Crabb, Archbishop of the Ecclestiastical Province of Rupert's Land.

Hugh Faulkner, minister of Indian affairs and northern development, and S. M Hodgson, commissioner of the N.W.T., will represent the two levels of government in the North.

The service will be carried out mainly in the Eskimo language with English simultaneously translated.

RELIGION ROUNDUP

OTTAWA (CP) — Members of a bilingual Roman Catholic church in the east end of the city are circulating a petition against a decision to change to a French-language church.

Bishop Eugene Larocque of the Diocese of Alexandria-Cornwall recently announced the decision, stating that Holy Cross Church will become francophone and that the English-speaking wing, about one-third of the 1,500-member congregation, will conduct masses at a nearby high school in September.

The bishop said the change was necessary because of the increasing number of families in the area and because it would be easier to administer two distinct parishes with each geared to one language group.

Organizers of the petition, who want to remain anonymous, said they received 700 signatures during the first week and expected at least 1,000 after a door-to-door blitz of the parish.

The petition said that many parish families are bilingual with one parent speaking French and the other English.

It also said Holy Cross was founded to serve the English minority in the east end and that many who helped establish the church will no longer be able to attend.

TORONTO — King-Bay Chaplaincy, a ministry recently established for the business and professional community, will be sponsoring an educational program called Images of Canada's Future.

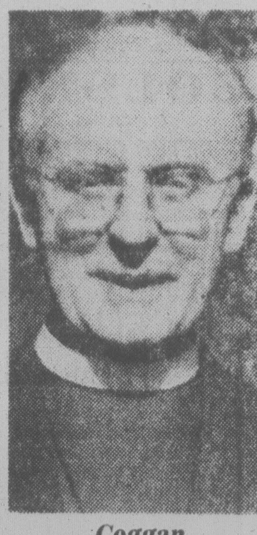
The six-week program, to start Sept. 26 and be held one lunch-hour a week, will include six speeches and discussion periods with professionals from a variety of backgrounds.

Rev. Graham Tucker, chaplain of the new ministry, said it is hoped ideas from the first program will be gathered for a second in the spring.

●

TORONTO — The deputy secretary of the division of ministry, personnel and education of the United Church of Canada says Queen's Theological College in Kingston, Ont., has put a ceiling on its enrolment for next fall.

Rev. Peter White said recently that despite the shortage of ministers, the division believes the limits are a good idea. The alternative is lower education standards, he said.



Coggan

●

MONTREAL — Rabbi Harry Joshua Stern has been declared the Great Montrealer of the last two decades in the field of religion by a jury of Roman Catholic, Anglican, and Greek Orthodox church leaders.

The jury said Rabbi Stern, 81, rabbi emeritus of Temple Emanu-El, was chosen because of his work in promoting understanding between people of different faiths.

Rabbi Stern founded the Institute for Judaism for Christian clergy and annual fellowship dinners for Catholics, Protestants, and Jews.

HALIFAX — Roman Catholics are giving more emphasis to prayer and less to activism, Archbishop G. Emmett Carter of Toronto said at the recent opening of a two-week catechetical course.

"After the Vatican II council we were tilted in favor of activism," the bishop said. "Now, thank God, we are beginning to understand again the need for silence, for prayer."

He said a silent place and prayer are prerequisites if service to humanity is to be effective.

Van Drutens with first Old Testament lesson of Bethel poster

Oak Bay minister, wife attending Bethel clinic

Rev. and Mrs. William Van Druten of Oak Bay United Church are attending a two-week orientation clinic of the Bethel series in Madison, Wisconsin.

Clinics are attended by pastors and Christian education directors, who return to their churches to train lay teachers. In turn, the teachers present an overview study of scriptures to adult members, which is the foundation for continuing study.

Since 1959, more than 4,000 congregations of 17 denominations have involved more than half a million lay teachers and students in the Bethel series.

Couples off for rally

Seven couples from the Greater Victoria area will be attending the opening rally of the national 31st Biennial General Conference of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada, Thursday night in the Jubilee Auditorium, Calgary. They are:

Rev. and Mrs. E. Austin, Glad Tidings Pentecostal Church; Rev. and Mrs. H. Pendray, North Douglas Pentacostal Church; Rev. and Mrs. D. McMillan; Colwood Pentecostal Church; Rev. and Mrs. C. Barker, Sidney Pentecostal Church; Mr. and Mrs. Gary Webb' Mr. and Mrs. Ray McGregor and Mr. and Mrs. William Forsythe.

It is anticipated that 600 voting delegates, ministerial and lay, plus many non-voting visitors and fraternal delegates from the United States and Caribbean, South American, African, Asiatic and European countries will take part in a six-day international conclave.

All evening and Sunday services will be held in the Jubilee Auditorium. All business sessions will be in the Palliser hotel.

The general conference represents 860 affiliated churches in Canada with 2,400 ministers with credentials and 2,300 overseas organized churches in 16 other countries where The Pentacostal Assemblies of Canada have relations with 2,800 national ministers who work with 227 Canadian missionaries outside of Canada.

The adult baptized membership in Canada and the related overseas fields totals more than 600,000 Christian believers.

Conference speaker preached in Victoria

The Rev. Dr. Willard T. Cantelon, Manitoba-born evangelist now based in Brussels, Belgium, will be the main evening speaker at the 31st biennial General Conference of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada. The conference begins Thursday night, Aug. 24 and runs through Aug. 29 in the Jubilee Auditorium, Calgary, Alta.

He was the main preacher at the PAOC General Conference in Victoria in 1970, the General Councils of the Assemblies of God in the U.S., the Elim Pentecostal Churches in Great Britain and similar national church conclaves in France and Germany.

Cantelon will be a main speaker at the Sunday afternoon rally of the Calgary national conference known as an Offerama, where offerings will be phoned in from all parts of Canada and will be reported on a giant screen on the platform of the Jubilee Auditorium.

Born in Cartwright, Man., educated in Winnipeg and ordained in Brandon in 1940, Cantelon spent six consecutive summers in mass evangelism in post-war Germany. In Great Britain he preached to capacity houses in the famed Royal Albert Hall, London, and the Free Trade Hall in Manchester.

He led a three-month, city-wide evangelistic crusade in Nairobi, Kenya, during the height of the Mau Mau uprising and received the commendation of the civil authorities because of the stabilizing effect of his minstry during the tense situation.

He has also collaborated with his son to produce evangelistic films which have been distributed in 20 countries.

CHURCH CHRONICLES

First United asks suggestions for fund projects

An item in last week's bulletin of First United Church, 932 Balmoral Road, says the recently established Memorial Endowment Fund has become recognized as a worthy way in which to record Christian sympathy to loved ones in their bereavement. The fund is also suggested as a way of offering tribute to deceased friends.

The board of trustees for the congregation is asking for suggestions, in writing, as to projects worthy of consideration for expenditure of gifts and legacies designated to the fund.

After investigation, the board makes recommendation to the board of the church which then acts upon accepted suggestions. Cards concerning the fund are available in the front vestibule of the church. Gifts may be sent to the church office which notifies families and issues receipts. Suggestions may be sent to the Board of Trustees, c/o the Office at 932 Balmoral Road, V8T 1A8.

The second in a new series of organ recitals at St. John's Anglican Church, 1611 Quadra, is to be held Wednesday at 8 p.m. Organist is Jane Davis, who recently won a place to the finals in a national organ competition. Her recital will cover a wide range of the organ repetoire, including a work by Vancouver composer Michael Baker. Admission is by program, $2 (OAP $1).

The eleventh in the series of 12 gospel services for the summer season in Beacon Hill Park will be held in the Cameron Pavilion on Sunday at 7 p.m. It will be in charge of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church whose minister, The Rev. Bruce Molloy, is away on a mission in Britain. In his absence, the Rev. R.F. Cunningham of Sooke will conduct the service and deliver the gospel message.

La Confrerie St. Julien will perform in the Music in the Cathedral series at 4 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 19, at Christ Church Cathedral, Quadra at Burdett.

The group comprises James Kennedy, Baroque flute and recorder, Peter Bishop, continuo, Susan Prior, recorder and flute, and Mary Copland, soprano.

Altar server given honor for 50 years

Jim Robertson, Dean's Verger at Christ Church Cathedral, was honored for 50 years of service as an altar server in the Anglican Church at a breakfast Thursday morning in the lounge of the Memorial Hall ofthe cathedral.

About 30 clergymen and altar servers attended the breakfast, and Father John Lancaster addressed the group.

Robertson started as an altar server in Penticton in 1928 and moved to Victoria in 1950.

He has been the Dean's Verger of Christ Church Cathedral for nearly 15 years, and has also continued working as an altar server.

The duties of an altar server in the Anglican Church involve serving the priest at the altar while he is giving a service. A verger has considerable responsibility. He looks after ceremonials, sees that the building is kept properly maintained, and ensures everything is in order at funerals, weddings and church services.

Robertson's verger's robes consist of a red cassock and a gown of green and black. He also has a verger's staff to conduct dignitaries to their seats during services.

'Sisters' on mission

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormons) has sent two women missionaries to serve on Vancouver Island—Sisters Susan Gooch and Marianne Brugger.

Sister Gooch is from Ashton, Idaho, and only recently joined the more than 26,000 Mormon missionaries serving around the world. She worked as a lifeguard and swimming instructor to finance the 18 months she will spend telling British Columbians about the Restoration of the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

Sister Brugger is from San Antonio, Texas, and spent six months in Vancouver before coming to the Island. She has a bachelor degree in textile technology and was working toward her master's before beginning her missionary work.

According to Mormon records, the number of adherents has jumped from 2.6 million in 1967 to more than 4 million today, and the church attributes most of its growth to missionary work by both young and old.

Sixteen missionaries serve in this area, telling Victorians their beliefs about an ancient record which contains the religious history of Central and South America.

This record, known as the Book of Mormon, tells of a visit that Jesus Christ made to the ancient inhabitants of the Americas.

China special for TV

Reports from the streets of Communist China will be seen during a five-hour TV spectacular called 1978 World Evangelism Special. The program airs from 5-10 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 26 on KVOS-TV, Channel 12.

Revealing current conditions in China will be Dr. Jack McAlister of the World Literature Crusade, sponsor of the TV special. McAlister recently visited Kwangchow, China, with the first large group to enter in 19 years.

Viewers will be treated to a global journey, visiting remote Amazon villages, Kenya, Hong Kong, India and Thailand, as well as the Holy City, Jerusalem, during the course of the special.

Overseas news up-dates will be reported by Yohann Lee twice every hour. Lee is a Chinese-born Korean and overseas director for World Literature. Rev. Vern McLellan is in charge of the program.

One hour will be devoted to the International Bible Society and will bring Wycliffe Bible Translators' founder Cameron Townsend on the screen. Jack McAlister will explain what can be done to get bibles to seven out of eight Christians in the Third World who have no access to the Scriptures. In this segment viewers will see the filmed conversion of "Condor," a tribal chief. The Wycliffe film will be introduced by the late Dr. Charles E. Fuller.

Many local church leaders are co-operating in the presentation of the World Evangelism Special, and some will be interviewed on the air by McLellan.

A CLASSIC BLUNDER

The fifth game of the 1978 World Championship is certain to be recorded as one of the most astounding debacles in chess history.

Challenger Viktor Korchnoi had the White pieces and built up a strong game against World Champion Anatoly Karpov's Nimzo-Indian defence. At Black's 23rd move, there was a momentary blackout, and when the lights came back on, Karpov somehow failed to find the right defensive moves. When the game was adjourned, at Karpov's 42nd move, every Grandmaster at the scene of battle felt that Karpov was doomed and would be forced to resign shortly after the game was resumed. Here's the position:

WHITE (Korchnoi): King on KB2; Queen on Q3; Rook on KR1; Bishops on KN3 and QN1; pawns on QR3, QN4, Q4, KB3 and KR5.

BLACK (Karpov): King on KR1; Queen on KB3; Rook on Q1; Knights on Q4 and KB1; pawns on QR2, QN3, KB4, KN2 and KR3.

There followed:

42.	. . .	N-R2
43.	B-R5	Q-N4
44.	QxP	Q-Q7 ch
45.	K-N3	N2-B3
46.	R-KN1	R-K1
47.	B-K4	N-K2
48.	Q-R3	R-QB1
49.	K-R4	R-B8
50.	Q-N3	RxR
51.	QxR	K-N1
52.	Q-N3	K-B2
53.	B-N6	K-K3
54.	Q-R3 ch	K-Q4
55.	B-K4 ch???

With 55. B-B7 ch; K-B3; 56. Q-K6 ch, K-N4; 57. Q-B4 ch, K-R5; or 5. B-B7 ch, K-B3; 56. Q-K6 ch, K-N2; 57. KxN ch, K-R1; 58. Q-Q8 ch, K-N2; 59. Q-N8 ch, K-B3; 60. Q-B8 ch, K-N4; 61. Q-B4 ch, and continue as in the first line. All lines lead to a mate!!

So why did Korchnoi overlook this simple mating idea? Who knows? Black continued with 55 . . . NxB; and the game was once again adjourned at the 92nd move.

At the time, it was still felt that Korchnoi had the better of it, but the victory that had sneaked out of his grasp was gone forever. The game went on to become famous not only for Korchnoi's blunder but also for lasting 124 moves, the longest in the history of chess world championship matches. It had become apparent well before that that the game would end in a draw and Korchnoi was said to have protracted it so as to extend it beyond the previous record of 121 moves, set 18 years ago in the battle between two Russian grandmasters, Mikhail Botvinnik and Mikhael Tal.

Altogether, the record-breaking fifth game in The Philippines took over 13 hours to complete — and left the match just where it had been before, with neither Karpov nor Kochnoi having scored a point toward the six wins necessary to determine who will win the championship.

* * *

The solution to the problem above is: 1. N-KN6; PxN; 2. Q-R1 mate; or 1 . . . P-K4; 2. Q-N8 mate; or 1 . . . PxP; 2. N-B4 mate; or 1 . . . NxN; Q-R8 mate, etc.

Clairol Drops Chemical

NEW YORK (UPI) — Clairol, largest maker of hair dye in the U.S., announced Thursday a suspected cancer-causing ingredient had been removed from its products to avoid putting cancer warnings on labels and in beauty salons.

Dr. John Menkart, Clairol Senior Vice President of Technology, said a reformulation of his firm's 200 shades of dyes had been completed. The firm sells $200 million worth of permanent dye products annually, 90 percent for use by millions of consumers in their homes.

The FDA, which proposed putting the warnings on both labels and in beauty parlors, identified the suspected cancer-causing chemical as 4-methoxy-m-phenylenediamine plus its sulphate, 4-methoxy-m-phenylenediamine sulfate.

On the basis of that evidence the FDA proposed this year that hair dyes containing the ingredient be labelled with the folowing warning:

"Contains an ingredient that can penetrate your skin and has been determined to cause cancer in laboratory animals."

The federal agency also proposed posters be prominently displayed in beauty parlors encouraging consumers to ask to see the labels of products intended for their hair.

Jack Walden, FDA associate commissioner, said Thursday he did not know when the order would be given to put warnings on hair dye products — and to post signs in beauty salons. Final wording of the mandatory warnings still is being worked on, he said.

Clairol, according to Menkart, decided a month ago not to wait for the imposition of mandatory warning labels and 30 days ago stopped using the suspected cancer-causer.

However, most of the hair dye products still on shelves contain the chemicals, and Menkart said it would take from three to six months for the reformulated hair coloring products to replace all the older ones.

"The action is based on Clairol's feeling that it would be unfair to consumers and to hairdressers and their patrons to be faced with the unnecessary worry and concern that may be caused by warning notices such as those proposed by the FDA," the firm said in a statement.

The firm's predicent, Donald J. Shea, described the action as "a prudent business decision. "We are confident that, based on ... scientific evidence, there is no reason for concern about the safety of any Clairol product."

WINE CROP UP

PARIS (AP) — France's 1978 wine crop is expected to be about 1.65 billion gallons, 264 million gallons more than the 1977 crop and about the same amount less than the record 1973 yield, the agriculture ministry reports.

Are Your Children "Growing Like Weeds"?

They tend to do that! And it costs no small fortune to bring up a family! It's not just the food and clothing — it's all the things from diaper pails to Jolly Jumpers to Barbie doll sets, bikes and hockey games. Some of these things are probably gathering dust in your basement or garage right now (and taking up space). You'll never get back what you paid for them, but why not

$388M Budget Cut Stunner for CHMC

OTTAWA (CP) — Officials at Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation (CMHC) say they still don't know where they will be cutting to meet the massive budget reduction target promised for them by Treasury Board President Robert Andras.

Senior officials at the Crown corporation have been working on the problem since Andras announced Wednesday that the agency would carve $388 million from its budget over the next 18 months—nearly a 20 per cent reduction—as part of an over-all government austerity program.

Urban Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet, responsible for CMHC, says details will be announced next week, but the goal would be met by cutting the number of employees, by reducing expenditures and by shifting more housing responsibility to the provinces.

CMHC officials said they have only limited room to manoeuvre in making the cuts because the bulk of the $1.3 billion the agency will spend this year is spent meeting obligations of past years.

For example, CMHC will spend about $326 million this year on about 180,000 public housing units operated on a shared-cost basis with the provinces.

But officials say CMHC will likely continue to back away from its role as a provider of capital for new housing projects and encourage the private sector to take over more of the responsibility. This would mean CMHC would become guarantor for the loans made by the private sector—which has had difficulty placing all the money it has available for mortgages.

Considered particularly vulnerable is CMHC's $250-million sewage treatment program which provides loans and grants for construction of sewage plants and sewers. The money helps finance sewage projects in small towns which don't have a sufficient tax base to pay for them and in high-cost areas where construction costs are prohibitive.

The Canadian Home Insulation Program, with about $80 million budgeted this year to subsidize the re-insulation of older homes, may also face cuts.

Officials say they don't expect to see deep cuts in CMHC's "social housing" programs for low-income people. Ouellet announced in May that the target for social housing construction this year would be boosted to 30,000 units, up from less than 20,000 last year.

Weddings

Corriveau — McArthur

On July 29, 1978, an informal ceremony conducted by Reverend John M. Quirk in Jericho Park, Vancouver, united Cecelia Lee McArthur, elder daughter of Mrs. Pamela McArthur (nee Temple) of Burnaby, B.C., and Dr. Wm. J. McArthur, of Toronto, in marriage with Mr. Jerry John Corriveau, youngest son of Wilf and Lil Corriveau, Kimberley, B.C.

The bride wore a Yofi gown with front-lace bodice and long lace sleeves with three-layered fingertip veil of valencia lace and carried a cascade bouquet of sonja roses and baby's breath. Colour scheme for attendants was that used by the bride's grandmother forty-six years ago, with maid of honour, Miss Barbara Mlodzik of Campbell River in pale lemon and bridesmaids Mrs. Randy (Mavis) Hurd of Whitehorse, Y.T., and Miss Monika Siegmund of Tsawwassen in peach short-sleeved gowns with similar front-laced bodices. Jessica McArthur, bride's sister, was junior bridesmaid and Heather McArthur, half-sister of the bride was flower girl. Their gowns were in co-ordinated lemon- and peach-flowered print and they carried flower baskets that carried out the theme in carnations, daisies and baby's breath of bouquets carried by other attendants. Three-year-old John McArthur, bride's half-brother, bore wedding rings on a white satin lace-edged cushion embroidered in lemon and peach by the bride's mother. Best man was Ian McKay of Surrey, B.C. and ushers were Gary Corriveau of Kimberley, groom's cousin, and Brydon Jack, of Kamloops. During the signing of the register Kim Kinraid, of Kimberley sang Stukey's Wedding Song accompanying himself on the guitar.

Following the ceremony in the lovely park setting of trailing willows and duck-decorated ponds, guests crossed 4th Avenue in brilliant afternoon sunshine to a buffet reception in Jericho Canadian Forces Officers' Mess. Toast to the bride was given by Raymond B. Vickery of Victoria, long-time friend of the bride's family. The bride presented her ceremonial bouquet to her maternal grandmother, Mrs. J. Heral, of Victoria and the "toss" bouquet was caught by Miss Barbara Mlodzik. A telegram from Miss Karen Price, of London, England, close friend of the bride, was announced by the best man. Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Robert Fletcher, groom's sister and her family from Cranbrook, Mr. Arthur Corriveau, groom's brother and his family from Prince George, Commander Lee Temple, bride's uncle and his family from Victoria, and other relatives and friends from Kimberley, Kamloops, Quesnel, Cranbrook, Prince George and Victoria, B.C.; Whitehorse, Y.T.; Everett and Seattle, U.S.A.; Calgary, Saskatoon and Toronto.

Following a honeymoon in Hawaii the couple will live in Vancouver, where the groom is employed with Finning Tractor and Equipment. The groom is a 1977 Commerce graduate of U.B.C. where the bride is entering her fourth year to complete a degree in Special Educaton.

Jackson — Greig

A beautiful double-ring ceremony was solemnized Friday, April 21, 1978, at 7:00 p.m. in St. Mary the Virgin Anglican Church, when Reverend Henry Silvester officiated in the marriage of Brenda Cathleen, youngest daughter of Larry L. Greig and Marion Greig, 623 Kelly Road, to Mr. Bryan Richard Jackson, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Jackson, 1635 Hawthorne Street.

Given in marriage by her father and mother, the pretty young bride had chosen an exclusive imported floor-length gown of silk chiffon over taffeta. Chantilly lace, in rose and leaf design, enhanced the fitted bodice, forming the portrait neckline and capping the long, sheer sleeves. Hand-cut lace appliques adorned the exquisite skirt, which was A-line in front, and swept to a boufant train. A band of hand-cut lace followed the hemline, and held a deep flounce of beautiful crystal pleating, which also finished the cuffs. Cathleen's fingertip silk illusion veil misted from a dainty floral band to complete the picture of a radiant bride. White roses, pink carnations, purple freesia, baby's breath and heather completed a beautiful bridal bouquet with pink and white satin streamers. Maid of honour, Debra Greig, sister of the bride and bridesmaids, Karen and Lynn Jackson, sisters of the groom, were all very attractive in their identical floor-length gowns of polyester knit in the shade pink mist. They carried bouquets of pink daisies, white carnations, purple freesia and heather. Wee flower girl Sharon Randal was adorable in a floor-length gown of pink satin striped nylon organza. She carried a tiny white basket of flowers entone. Mother of the bride wore a silk knit formal of muted toned mauve with a white orchid corsage encircled with baby's breath. Mother of the groom chose a gown of dusky pink crepe, with a white orchid corsage. Best man was Paul Jackson, brother of the groom. Richard Gardner, brother-in-law of the bride, and Murray Greig, brother of the bride, ushered the guests. Brothers Richard and wee Bryan Gardner, nephews of the bride, were joint ring bearers. Organist Mrs. Tom Large played "April Love" and "Edelweiss" during the signing of the register.

At the reception, held in the Clubhouse, at Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club, guests enjoyed dinner. Following the toast to the bride, proposed by Edwin Moodie and the cutting of the beautifully decorated wedding cake, which was baked by the bride's mother.

For her going away outfit, the new Mrs. Jackson chose a dress of multi-coloured fine wool, beige accessories and dainty corsage of white rose buds and baby's breath.

Wilson — Hanning

A lovely summer wedding took place at 1 p.m. on July 1, 1978, in Metropolitan United Church, Victoria, when Maureen Louise Hanning, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Hanning, Victoria, and Mr. Donald Thomas Wilson, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvyn Wilson of Nanaimo, exchanged marriage vows. Standard baskets of all-white Calla lilies, daisies and fern and lighted white tapers in seven-branched candelabras enhanced the sanctuary of the church. Mrs. Ursula Thomas, organist, also played delightful wedding music preceeding the service.

As guests arrived, ushers Messrs. Robert Barbour, Charles Barkman and Bradley Luoma escorted them to their seats. The groom chose as his best man his brother, Richard Wilson, also of Nanaimo. The bride, who entered the church with her father, wore an ivory satin gown in medieval style, fashioned with an embroidered panel of seed pearls from neckline to hem. The gown also featured a seed pearl design on the net yoke, and had long lily-point sleeves. The skirt extended into a train. A filmy veil of Embroiderie-Anglaise lace, which had been worn by her great-great-great-great grandmother in 1789, cascaded from a floral headband into a long train. Her all-white cascade bouquet of roses, carnations, stephanotis and baby's breath complimented her wedding gown and the bride also wore a double strand of pearls, a gift of the groom. Maid of honour, her cousin, was Miss Joy Barbour and bridemaids were Miss Bernedine Wray and Miss Debra Wilson, sister of the groom. The girls, were gowned identically in period-style, off-shoulder gowns in champagne tone with tiny pastel flowers imprinted. Their bouquets of pink, green and gold daisies, with baby's breath, matched the pastels in their gowns. The three attendants all wore large champagne-coloured picture hats, complementing their ensembles. As the bride entered the santuary, the congregation sang the processional hymn "O Father, All Creating" and at the beginning of the service Mr. Richard Margison sang "I'll Walk Beside You." The marriage was performed by Reverend Dr. Albert E. King, and during the signing of the register Mr. Margison sang Malotte's "The Lord's Prayer." The bidal couple and their attendants left the church to the recessional Purcell's "Trumpet Tune and Air."

Mr. Walter McConville was master of ceremonies at the reception in the Duke of Kent Room in the Empress Hotel, and a long-time friend of the family, Mr. William Joseph, proposed the toast to the bride. For their toast, the bridal couple raised the dual-handled silver loving-cup which had belonged to the bride's great-great grandfather. The refreshment table was centred with a beautiful four-tier wedding cake, which had been made and decorated by members of the groom's family. Background music for the reception was delightfully played by Mrs. Kinny Burnett. The bride changed into a navy and pink dress, with navy accessories, as they left for a honeymoon in Banff and Lake Louise. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson are now residing in their new home in Nanaimo.

Carlson — Sapsford

On June 23, 1978, at 7 p.m. Saint John's the Divine Church was the scene of a lovely wedding, joyfully uniting in marriage, Catherine Louise, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Sapsford, Victoria, B.C. and Robert Frederick Carlson, eldest son of Mrs. R. Carlson, Victoria, B.C. The double-ring ceremony was officiated by the Reverend R. MacRae.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an elegant gown of silk jersey and re-embroidered lace which was featured in the split Mandarin collar, a sheer insert of lace and tiny pearls enhanced the fitted bodice, also featured on the cuffs of the long, slim sleeves. From the raised waist the skirt fell softly to the floor in a long train. A headpiece of lace and pearls held a fingertip veil of illusion tulle, also edged in the lovely lace, she carried a cascading bouquet of coral pink roses, stephanotis and carnations. The maid of honour, Miss Katherine Bertoia, and bridesmaid, Miss Gwen Shrimpton wore identical gowns of pink coral jersey featuring a large cape collar edged in white lace, matching miniature bouquets completed their ensemble. The groom, best man Mr. Derek Chu and ushers Mr. Wayne Crowe and Paul Sapsford wore identical deep blue tuxedos.

The reception was held at the Coachman Inn, Victoria. Godfather of the bride, Mr. George Dawson, proposed the toast. The bride and groom then cut the cake which was made by the uncle of the groom, Mr. G. A. Gaudette.

The couple were delighted to have many relatives and friends from Victoria as well as from England, Calgary, Vancouver, Penticton, Comox and Seattle in attendance.

Nash — Fisher

St. Saviour's Anglican Church was the scene of a lovely summer wedding August 12, 1978. Reverend John Vickers officated at the ceremony which united the daughter of Mr. James Fisher and Mrs. Joyce Munning, Miss Barbara Joy Fisher, to Mr. Gordon Alexander Nash, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Nash of Salmon Arm, B.C.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose an enchanting gown made by the bridegroom's mother. The gown of white satin featured lovely lace on the neckline with a high raised waistline from which the soft flowing skirt fell into a long train at back. Long bishop sleeves completed the look. A julliet cap of lace held a fingertip lace veil. She carried an arm bouquet of red roses. The matron of honour, Mrs. Maureen Dobie chose a yellow jersey gown. The gown itself was smooth and sleeveless with a long flowing nylon floral cape on top. The two bridesmaids, Miss Joy Morton and Miss Linda Fisher, wore identical dresses of mint green jersey. The gowns were halter gowns with matching nylon capes. All three attendants carried colonial-style bouquets of yellow and white daisies. The groom was attired in a light brown tuxedo with brown velvet lapels and a white ruffled shirt. Best man, Mr. Bill Ellison, and ushers, Mr. Rick Bach and Mr. Craig Fisher, were dressed the same in brown tuxedos and mint green ruffled shirts.

Scheeren — Phillips

On May 20, 1978, at 5:00 p.m. Lesley Anne Phillips, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Phillips, exchanged vows with Mr. John Stanley Allen Scheeren, Victoria, B.C.

The double-ring ceremony took place at St. Luke's Church on Cedar Hill X Road, and was officiated by Reverend D. Edward Moulden.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long white elegant wedding gown of silk chiffon over taffeta. The high neckline of sheer yoke and the fitted bodice were adorned with silk embroidered lace appliques. Deep flared cuffs framed butterfly sleeves. The skirt was softly draped and swept back from the waist en-traine. A fingertip veil of silk illusion bordered with lace-misted daisy flowers. A high headpiece of lace flowers starred with pearls and diamante. She carried a bouquet of yellow sweetheart roses and baby's breath, with delicate love knots hanging down. Miss Karen N. Brotherston, was maid of honour, wearing a pale blue floor-length gown with a matching flowered cape. Bridesmaids, were Miss Colleen J. Mahoney (the bride's niece), and T. Scheeren, wearing matching long blue gowns and flower-printed capes. The girls all carried bouquets of daisies and baby's breath and wore fresh daisies in their hair to compliment their dresses for this spring wedding. The groom was attended by best man, Doug Foster and ushers Bruce Neil and Dave McPherson. The men wore navy blue tuxedos with ruffled shirts and a yellow carnation each, while the groom wore a black tuxedo, ruffled shirt, accented with a yellow rose.

A reception dinner at the Holyrood House followed the ceremony. The toast to the bride was given by Mr. Allen P. Goyette, uncle of the groom. Master of ceremonies for the evening was Mr. Laurie Campbell. The wedding cake was made by the bride, her mother and Karen Brotherston, and was beautifully decorated by Mrs. Janette Woodruff. The three-tiered cake had pale yellow icing and over four hundred tiny daisies cascading over the sides. Between the pillars was a small vase with a daisy arrangement in it. All flowers for the wedding and reception were done by Mrs. Nicky Brotherston.

PERSONALS

YOUR CITY WATCHDOG REPORT
Number 71 — Congratulations and many thanks to Mayor Ken Paskin, Historian Gerry Welburn and everybody that attended the 92nd Anniversary ceremonies at Cliffside last Sunday. Your City's Watchdog feels that there is a need for police footpatrols in the City of Victoria to make the streets and neighbourhoods a safe place. At present there appears to be not one policeman on footpatrol on the city's downtown streets after six o'clock. Your City Watchdog would like to see City Council not only hold a Public Hearing on Thursday, August 24th at 7:30 p.m. but also hold the regular council meeting in the evening as well. Could it be that many members of the news media do not attend the evening public hearings and members of council therefore do not wish to have their remarks or comments regarding city matters ommitted from the papers and radio. If you wish further information regarding city matters please write P.O. Box 154 or phone 383-6259. C. Joe Richards. Postscript :A politician is a person who is able to speak in circles and make everyone dizzy but himself.

IS THERE A MIDDLE-AGED lady who does not usually answer advertisements who would be interested in a permanent companion-housekeeper relationship with an active pensioner, living in a country town? Interests: the good life, love of nature, some gardening, travel, art, antiques. Your photo appreciated and returnable. Do you drive? No encumberances or hang-ups, please. No triflers. Victoria Press, Box 774.

LONELY UNATTACHED YOUNG at heart Senior, considerate, sense of humour, non-smoker, wishes companionship of attractive Feminine Woman of good taste and similiar attributes for dinners, travel and possible sharing. Full particulars please, photo will be returned if sent. Victoria Press Box 825.

ASSERTIVE BACHELOR, 36, wishes to correspond with and eventually make arrangements to meet a lady who would appreciate the aforementioned quality. My interests include sports, photography, reading, theatre, etc. Barrie Johnstone, 207-604 1st Avenue, N.W., Calgary, Alberta.

Roomy But
Reasonable $54,900

From the outside it looks like a small bungalow but there is over 1500 sq. ft. of comfortable appealing living space in beautifully, undated Colonial-styled home. Situated ona 50x175 ft. (av.) tree-fringed lot, the fully-fenced back garden offers privacy and a woodsy atmosphere seldom found right in town. Pillared entrance invites you to step inside the graceful foyer where glass panelled doors lead to the bright L.R. Manteled, brick F.P., and wooden casement windows echo the Colonial style. Roomy kitchen has been marvelously updated with work and dining areas handsomely separated by golden ash and leather cabinets and breakfast bar, yet left open enough for easy conversation. Laundry room with good storage is ideally located off. Master B.R., 12'2"x11'3" has a nice woodsy outlook and 2nd BR. has a 9x3 ft. closet for extra storage. Upstairs there are twin 14x8 ft. B.R.s to delight any younterpl usa largep lav,offie.lcas youngster plus a large play, office or sewing area. Large, separate garaged (wired) provides a good-sized workshop for the handyman or craft-oriented person.

308 CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Stanley Alfred Thame would like to take this opportunity to express sincere thanks to all our many friends and relatives for their kindness. The flowers, cards, letters and kind donations to the Cancer Society were very much appreciated by our family and will always be remembered. Special thanks to Dr. J. Fox, 4th floor nurses staff at Victoria General Hospital, Reverend Tony Roberts, and McCall's Funeral Home. — The Thame Family.

We would like to express to our many friends, relatives, and neighbours our thanks for your kindness, help, and understanding during the recent loss of our dear mother, Elizabeth Fraser Carlow. The beautiful flowers, cards, and letters expressing your sympathy were greatly appreciated and will always be remembered by us.
The Carlow Family

We wish to express sincere gratitude to the many friends, neighbours and relatives who gave their kindness, sympathy, floral gifts, memorials to charity, cards and letters on the death of our beloved husband and father H. G. (Pat) Patterson. Phyllis, Trudine and Penneth and Dave.

309 IN MEMORIAM

HALLAM — In living memory of our Dad, Donald R. Hallam passed away August 19th, 1977.

—Meta, Grace, Etta and Kay.

SOVENKO — Ruth Doreen, August 19, 1977.
Her loving face I hope to see again,
Though the days have passed away,
Sleep on, dear wife, and take your rest,
They miss you most who loved you best,
Sunshine passes, shadows fall,
Love's remembrance outlasts all,
And tough the years be many or few,
They are filled with remembrance,
dear of you.
—Sadly missed by her husband Matt, daughter Debra, son Peter, Christie, brothers Gerald, Gordon, Donald, and sister Jean, all of Montreal, also by her mother-in-law, Mrs. Pauline Holak, and sister-in-law, Phyllis Herbert, both of Victoria.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
WITH GRATITUDE. SANDS

Streets of Prague Empty In Memory

By MARKETTA KOPINSKI
The Guardian

PRAGUE — On a sunny August week-end before the 10th anniversary of the Invasion of Czechoslovakia by Soviet and other Warsaw Pact troops, the streets of Prague are empty.

Only a few tourists gather around the statue of St. Wenceslas, which 10 years ago used to be the focal point of protests against the occupying forces.

Most Prague residents have left the city for vacations. Many of them have been given a friendly but firm warning by the police to stay away the whole month.

A number of intellectuals who for 10 years have been trying in vain to get exit visas for trips to the West, have suddenly been given travel documents for their entire families — on conditions that they don't return before the end of August.

Amidst all this peace and quiet, officials seem increasingly anxious as the crucial anniversay date, Aug. 21, aproaches. At least three "Charter 77" activists, after being questioned and released by police, were grabbed off the street, forced into a waiting car, blindfolded and driven to a forest outside Prague where they were beaten up and left behind.

A number of Western journalists, who contacted dissidents in connection with the anniversary, have been expelled from the country. Many more have been refused entrance visas.

Czechoslovak newspapers have launched an extensive press campaign exonerating the Soviet invasion and attacking Prague Spring politicians and dissidents by name as "right-wing opportunists and revisionists." The party daily, Rude Provo, went so far as to assert that the Dubcek leadership was planning to establish a dictatorship on th model of Hitler's Germany and had worked out a plan to set up concentration camps for political opponents.

Ironically, it is the charter 77 signatories and other dissidents this time that want to avoid any protests that may lead to police reprisals. They have issued an appeal to protest by passive means — specifically by boycotting all public facilities on the anniversary day, including restaurants, theaters and public transit.

"In the present political situation, taking to the steet would be useless. If there are going to be any disturbances during the anniversary, they are almost sure to be caused by the police — either by provocation or by accident," one dissident said.

"They are probably going to use the same method as they did during Brezhnev's visit: a few dozen active dissidents will be arrested for 38 hours, released and arrested again. Other than that, the whole city will be so full of policemen, that you will hardly be able to see anyone else," he added.

Jarvis Target: $50B Tax Slash

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — The leader of California's tax revolt, 75-year-old Howard Jarvis, has launched a campaign to cut U.S. government taxes by $50 billion over the next four years.

Jarvis, a table-thumping, millionaire businessman who campaigned successfully to cut Californian property taxes by $7 billion, made the first stop here on a two-week tour of 10 cities and towns to spread his message across the United States.

Jarvis said his "freedom for taxpayers" plan proposes not only to cut taxes but to persuade the government to cut its spending by $100 billion during the next four years.

Jarvis is linking his campaign to U.S. congressional and state elections in November when Americans will choose a new House of Representatives and a third of the members of the Senate.

"We are appealing to the public to support candidates who favor tax cuts," Jarvis told reporters.

Written Protests, Demos Planned

The Guardian

LONDON — There will be large public demonstrations in London and other Western European capitals Sunday to mark the 10th anniversary of the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia.

And a delegation of British members of Parliament will go to the Czechoslovak embassy here to deliver a written protest against the continuing occupation and repression.

But some of the leading supporters of the "Prague Spring" of the Alexander Dubcek regime, who fled into exile and will be taking part in Sunday's London rally, said in London Friday that they hope their countrymen will resist any urge to stage public protests in Czechoslovakia on the anniversary.

Jiri Pelikan, who was director general of broadcasting in Prague at the time Soviet tanks arrived and who now directs the exile organization known as "Listy" from offices in Rome, said at a news conference in London that any demonstrators who took to the streets in his country this weekend would be risking their liberty and even their lives, to no purpose.

CONCORDE RECORD

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An Air France supersonic Concorde has claimed an official speed record of three hours and 35 minutes between Paris and Washington.

A spokesman for the National Aeronautic Association said there was no existing speed record between the two capitals and the French Concorde was "establishing one for the books" when it set the record Friday.

The time was two hours earlier in Washington when the plane landed than in Paris when it took off.

Witnesses Dispute Ray's Tire-Fix Alibi

WASHINGTON (AP) — House investigators found witnesses five months ago to deflate James Earl Ray's alibi for the murder of Martin Luther King Jr., but kept the secret until Ray himself called for those witnesses to be produced.

Ray claims he was at a service station trying to get a tire fixed at the time King was shot to death.

He had offered the names of two witnesses who could corroborate his story.

But the House assassinations committee, in a day of dramatic and startling developments Friday, produced evidence that both those witnesses had lied when they told a writer they had seen Ray in a Texaco station near the murder scene.

One of the witnesses, Memphis commodities broker Coy Dean Cowden, told the committee he had related the "completely false" corroboration story to Ray's attorney, Mark Lane, in November 1977, and Lane "fell for it, hook, line and sinker."

Cowden testified he told the false story to satisfy Renfro Bates, a Memphis man who had befriended him and who hoped to "make a million dollars" by writing a book on the King assassination.

The other witness Ray had offered was Thomas Wilson, who was quoted along with Cowden in a 1977 National Enquirer article as corroborating Ray's service station story.

Wilson died about two weeks ago, but committee investigator Ernestine Johnson questioned Wilson's co-worker, Harvey Locke, on Aug. 5.

She told the committee that Locke said he and Wilson were leaving their store about the time King was shot and that Wilson could not have been in a service station.

Lane, in his recent book on the King case, had identified a Texaco station at 2nd and Linden streets, about five blocks from the murder scene, as the station Ray says he visited. Ray says he can't remember the name or precise location of the station.

The committee produced Larce McFall and his son Phillip who owned and operated the station at the time of the murder. Both swore they remembered the day well and said Ray had not come into the station that afternoon or evening.

"We had this back in February or March," the source said. "We were just waiting for Mr. Lane to bring it up, and when he did, we just sat back and thought 'Keep going, keep going.' "

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast
Sunday, August 20

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): Pieces fall into place; ideas click. Take initiative. Utilize natural, pioneering instincts. Be aggressive in taking lead. Lunar cycle high — trust your own judgment, follow through on hunch. Libra — and another Aries — could figure prominently. You end one relationship — and you meet an exciting person.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Walk where you feared to walk. Prohibitions are lifted. One confined to home or hospital has a story to tell — and you'll be stronger as result of listening. Light bathes areas that were dark. Leo, Aquarius figure in scenario.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A "serious" relationship does exist — and it is good for you. Some of your romantic dreams can be fulfilled. Accent on desire, collection evaluation, determining what should be kept, what discarded. You will know what to do!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Spotlight on authority, putting out "feelers," opening dialogue with professional superiors. You're invited to meeting — or social — which brings desirable results. Gemini, Aries and Sagittarius persons figure prominently.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be meticulous in making long-range plans. In explaining position, be frank, specific. Opportunity opens for you to express, distribute, communicate. Your actions, works "interest" people. Scale of recognition broadens.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Mystery intrigues; romantic haze surrounds actions. Key is to leave hard facts for another day. Now is for meditating, perceiving potential, grasping "vibratory rate" of what's happening. Money, leases, rentals, taxes, financial status of partner or mate — these command attention, too.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You reach decision concerning home situation. This could result n greater harmony. Accent on partnership, marital status, legal affairs. In dealing with people, be diplomatic. You actually gain by being receptive. Leave heavy-handed methods for another time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Obtain valuable hint from Libra message. Find new ways to insure service, safety. Give yourself credit for creativity, originality. Leo, Aquarius persons figure in scenatio. Co-worker, one who shares your interests will look like a "new person."

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Spotlight on creativity, change, variety, children, speculative venture. Emotional involvement is serious. Know it and act accordingly. Capricorn, Aries, Cancer figure prominently — so does the number 8.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You can complete assignment, close transaction. Sense of security is enhanced. Accent on relations with older individual, how and where you live. Reach beyond what other people tell you is the limit.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Travel, exchange of ideas with relatives, green light for article or assignment is "on the way." Forces tend to be scattered. See people as they are — don't create problems where none exist. Discard rumors. Your own concepts will prove valid.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Accent on making the most of what you have — money and material are involved. Cancer, Aquarius persons figure in scenario. You'll get legitimate offer and it should be seriously considered. Sense of security is enhanced.

IF AUGUST 20 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are sensitive, moody, have some digestive problems; you are loyal, affectionate, perceptive and you usually know where the bodies are buried. Cancer, Capricorn persons play key roles in your life. September could be your most important month of 1978, a year of productivity, investment, responsibility, intensified relationships.

Monday, August 21

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): Golden opportunity exists to make headway in new direction, on project — independent course now is most desirable. Leo, Aquarius persons figure in important ways. Move ahead, take lead, stress pioneering aspects.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Cycle high — slight delay should be viewed in proper perspective. Follow through on hunch. You learn by sharing, teaching. Study bylaws of club, organization. Aid you seek is available — and you will find proper channels.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent on getting what you want, making valuable contacts. Social life is active, desires are fulfilled. Pleasure principle is emphasized. Save details for another day. Perceive potential. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Sagittarian is in picture.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): you learn details of business transaction. You have authority, but cash may be temporarily limited. Key is to maintain steady pace, to avoid sensationalism, to eschew extravagant claims. Aquarius, Taurus persons figure prominently.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Movement, travel, change, exciting encounters are featured. Write, publish, distribute — take long-range view. Many seek you counsel. Throw aside pretense. Say what you know, sans embellishment. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons figure prominently.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You get appraisals — you find out what is worth investing in where time, money and emotions are concerned. Accent on hidden values, finances affecting partner or mate. Family member makes major concession.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Spotlight on public response to your efforts, services, products. One close to you wants to understand your needs. Know it and co-operate. Low key approach is best — something is going on behind the scenes and you don't have all the facts. Play waiting game and you could win.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): organize material, bring priorities into focus, accept more responsibility. Capricorn, Cancer figure in your personal scenario. Accent on service, employment, diet. Older individual is willing to share, if you so permit.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Creative abilities are activated. You break out of rut, emotional or otherwise, ideas intrigue and you get green light to proceed. You could receive advance on royalties to move ahead with manuscript. You definitely are headed along road leading to wider recognition.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): new deal enables you to extricate yourself from "tight" situation. What was a "white elephant" can actually be utilized, perhaps sold at a profit. Know it, cheer up, reinforce safety measures, stick to rules, regulations.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Emphasis on dealing with relative who feels need of apology — from you. Be kind, diplomatic but don't throw aside principles. Intuitive flash provides answers which could resolve dilemma. You're going to be rewarded for something you look took for granted.

PISCES (FEB. 19-Mar. 20): You get "inside data" which can be transformed into tax-cutting method, profit. Accent on finances, valuables, collections, personal possessions. Money management procedures are emphasized. Gemini, Virgo persons figure prominently.

IF AUGUST 21 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have weight problem but no problem where magnetic appeal, charisma, attractiveness are concerned. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life. You are perceptive, could succeed in writing, advertising, publishing, in the travel industry and as an entertainment director. You make new start, make new friends and could fall in love — in October.

CAUSEWAY CEREMONY HONORS TUG PIONEER

His son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Gardner of Seattle, were among those attending to see a bronze plaque honoring Capt. W.E. (Will) Gardner unveiled by acting mayor Bill Tindall.

Capt. Gardner was born in Louisbourg, N.S. in 1870 and first went to sea at the age of 12. He came to Victoria in 1890 and bought his first tug, the Fern, in 1905.

As the years went by he increased his fleet of tugs and scows, selling them to Island Tug and Barge Ltd. in 1926.

In 1928 he bought the Turple Marine Railways Ltd., renaming it Point Hope Marine Railway Ltd. In 1938 he sold this company to Island Tug and Barge Ltd.

Another Victoria pioneer mariner was honored at the ceremony with a plaque depicting the sidewheeler tug Isabel. She was built in Victoria for Capt. Edward Stamp in 1866. Among those at the ceremony was one of his descendants Capt. Gordon Mesley.

Two other plaques were also unveiled. One honors John Guzzwell, the man who single-handedly circumnavigated the world in his sailboat Trekka. The other marks the arrival of the city's first black settlers in 1858.

Begin Would Aid Working Poor

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister Monique Begin wants to start supplementing the incomes of families earning low wages despite the government's commitment to reduce expenditures.

In a speech prepared for delivery Friday night to a Liberal party gathering in North River, P.E.I., Miss Begin said Canadians must do more for the working poor.

She described the effects of poverty in Canada as the "massacre of the innocents" and said this situation can be tolerated no longer.

"I believe we should have an income supplementation program which would provide a benefit for low-income families," the speech said.

"This would be most likely in what is now called a negative income tax."

Miss Begin's plea to help "the hundreds of thousands of working poor" came only two days after Robert Andras, minister responsible for the treasury board, announced that various departments have agreed to reduce their expenditures by $1.5 billion and that additional cuts of $1 billion will be announced in a few weeks.

Treasury Board officials said Thursday the second round of cuts will include programs administered by Miss Begin, who has clashed with cabinet colleagues on previous occasions because of her desire to provide more social assistance to the nation's needy.

"Too many old people, particularly widows, are living in poverty, loneliness and despair. The toll taken among children is appalling.

"There are 1.6 million children in 420,000 poor families who set out in life without anything like a fair chance at doing well. They get sick more often and die earlier; they get less schooling and earn less money; they are much more likely to get in scrapes with the law."

Hua Trip Rattles Russians

BUCHAREST (UPI) — Chinese Chairman Hua Kuo-feng today visits a port on the Soviet Union's "swimming pool," where China hopes to establish a consulate in Romania that has apparently brought sharp warnings from Moscow.

The latest leg of Hua's five-day trip to Romania takes him early to Constanza, on the strategically sensitive Black Sea — domain of the Soviet naval fleet.

The 58-year-old Chinese leader spent Friday night in the Carpathian mountain resort of Timis, 108 miles north of Bucharest and deep in the land of the fabled vampire Count Dracula.

Romanian officials said "it is unlikely" that bell boys at the Timis guest house had tried to frighten Hua as they often have other tourists — by donning bloodstained "fangs" and jumping out from behind doors.

In Constanza, Hua's itenerary included a visit to the shipyards and a night tour of the Black Sea coast.

During Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu's visit to Peking last May, arrangements were made for a Chinese consulate to be opened in Constanza in exchange for a Romanian office in Shanghai.

Western diplomats said they believed the Soviets had "given Ceausescu the word that a Chinese consulate in Constanza would be straining their tolerance to the breaking point."

"A Chinese presence there could be construed by Moscow as a strategic threat — it would give the Chinese too good a view of Russian naval movements on the Black Sea."

The diplomats said they believed Ceausescu had asked Hua to delay the official establishment of the Constanza consulate until a more opportune moment.

"Ceausescu doesn't kowtow to the Russians but he's smart enough to work within the limits of their tolerance," one diplomat said. "When he goes too far the Russians come breathing over his shoulder and he takes a step backwards."

'. . .But What About Our Field?'

MISEREY, France (AP) — "We were delighted to have the balloon land on our farm, but frankly — how can I put this nicely — we would hope to have some compensation for our wheat field,' said Rachel Coquerel.

There was little left of her 3½ acres of harvest-ripe grain after the U.S.-crewed trans-Atlantic balloon Double Eagle II landed in the field Thursday. Thousands of cheering Frenchmen and women swarmed from a nearby highway into the waving wheat to greet the three heros.

The elderly grandmother welcomed the news that balloonist Larry Newman said in Paris the trio had always planned to pay compensation for any damage caused by their landing.

"We are right in the middle of the harvest and we were due to do that field in a couple of days," said Mrs. Coquerel.

"And the helicopters landed in the potato field alongside," she said, adding with a giggle: "I heard some of the people took potatoes as souvenirs."

Mrs. Coquerel and some of the family saw the landing from their house 500 metres from the field — "Incredible!" she said, "I've never seen so many people" — and walked over to the balloon.

"We didn't get to meet the balloonists, there was such a crush," she said.

Balloonist Larry Newman said they will be going back to collect possessions they left in the gondola in the excitement of landing — some gear was stolen — and said he "assumed we'll get to meet the farmer and his family."

Divided French have blissful union

By JIM BROWNING

PARIS — The French are famous for their individuality.

Charles de Gaulle used to lament that it was impossible to organize anything in a country that produces 300 different kinds of cheese, and politicians complain that there are as many different political parties as there are voters.

Every year, however, these individualists can be counted on to do one thing in blissful unison. They leave on vacation at the same time, in the same direction, and on the same roads.

In no other country, with the possible exception of Belgium, is the month-long summer vacation such a national institution. This year, a record 3 million cars hit the roads July 1, which was not only the first day of the summer season but also the first day of school vacation, and the first Saturday of the month. Most of them headed southwest toward Spain and the Atlantic Ocean, southeast to the Riviera, or northwest to Brittany.

For the first time, however, police reported that major traffic jams and tie-ups had been avoided. A new traffic planning system, inaugurated two years ago, had its first major success in persuading people to leave either before or after the Saturday morning rush, and to take alternate routes.

One foreigner was shaken to be informed that in his apartment building in Paris the hot water is turned off in August, because everyone but him would be away. The landlord, surprised that the foreigner was in town, finally agreed to install a separate water heater in his apartment.

The French government has no illusions about ending the summer vacation tradition. But in the face of reports from planners that the roads and beaches are being overwhelmed, officials have stepped up efforts to manage the situation by:

- Staggering vacations.
- Traffic planning. Planners discovered that three-quarters of vacationers decide the day and hour of their departure months in advance. They launched an extensive radio campaign telling people when not to leave and even arranged to let children out of school on Friday, June 30, if their parents would leave that day.
- Auto route construction. The first sections of an ambitious new superhighway system, aimed both at improving travel speed and developing France's long-neglected regions, are being completed. With the completion of an auto route across the Pyrenees Mountains to Spain, it now is possible to drive from Denmark to Barcelona without a stop light.

After braving the traffic, therefore, millions of eager vacationers will be found lying shoulder-to-shoulder on the beaches in July and August avidly tanning themselves and getting sand in the works of the summer's best-selling authors.

One of the thrills of a Queenstown visit is an air view of New Zealand's Southern Alps — and the pilot's guiding of the small craft between the peaks.

New Zealand promise

By JOHN PINKERMAN

QUEENSTOWN, New Zealand — Some visitors will say that there is more to do and see in and around this southern lakeside city of New Zealand's South Island than in every other place in New Zealand combined.

They may be right. More than that, the people of this friendly resort alongside Lake Wakatipu, will keep you busy. If, for instance, after a long day of sight-seeing you decide to stroll along the lake, watch the ducks, the gulls and the trout, then sit on a lakeside bench to reflect on the wonders you have seen during the day — beware.

The chances are that while you're gazing at the snowcapped Remarkables (mountains) to the east, a Queenstowner will come along — somebody like Mr. and Mrs. Bill Elliott — and mistake your quiet contemplation for loneliness. They will urge you, a complete stranger, to go home with them for evening tea.

However, when you are not being delunged with such displays of simple hospitality, there are varied attractions to see.

There is the ski plane trip to a glacier. And the thrilling air trip to Milford Sound to the west. The tiny plane will thread its way between peaks of the Southern Alps, giving you a spectacular view of hundreds of fiords to match anything you might have seen in Norway.

If the weather is right — and it switches from clear to foggy by the minute — you will land on a spit at remote Milford Sound Hotel. You can stay there overnight if you wish, but the sights from aloft are so breathaking that you may want to get along with the return trip immediately. The Remarkables are remarkable, but the Southern Alps are sensational.

There are other things to do here, too. The bus trip to Coronet Peak, at 5,413 feet, offers a panoramic view of several sheep stations (ranches) below, thousands of sheep grazing peacefully on the ultra-green grasses that are a part of New Zealand.

There is an all-day van ride, also, to a remote grove along the Shotover River, that may rattle your bones a bit but is a true experience in the outdoors. The trip takes you to what the tourism people call "Skipper's and Beyond."

You will see long-abandoned gold mines, explored soon after the California Gold Rush in the mid-19th century.

There still are miners scratching out a living, panning in the Shotover, and there are spectacular rock formations. Deep into the boondocks is a suspension bridge over the river, and you wonder how anybody ever lugged the steel so far into no-man's-land.

At "Beyond," you pause half an hour or more for tea and cookies. Your driver, Kevin Pitfield, will gather wood from nearby, start a fire, take water from the Shotover, and boil "Billy tea" in the blackest pot you've ever seen. However, the tea will be the best you've ever tasted, and the friendliness generated as you sit on tree stumps or logs and exchange ohs and ahs about the scenery will make for a delightful experience.

On your trip back you may see tourists shooting the rapids on the Shotover, you will get another view of Coronet Peak and you will be weary on arriving back in Queenstown.

There are more things to do on the morrow. There is a boat ride to Walter Peak Sheep Station. At Walter Pea, a ranch of 64,000 acres, you will see some of the 6,500 sheep and 3,500 cattle there, and watch dogs maneouver sheep with great skill.

Back in Queenstown there are half a dozen more excursions you can plan for the next day, or stroll the few streets of the city, encountering more of New Zealand's friendly people.

Cuisine wins recognition

The Miller Howe Hotel, in an idyllic setting overlooking Lake Windermere, is famous for its fine food. This year, it has accomplished the rare feat of being the only establishment to be given three distinctions in The Good Food Guide, 1978.

The Miller Howe, expertly run by John Tovey, has achieved its distinctions for "unusual skill, imagination and energy in a chef or team"; for having a well-kept table and being a hotel where it is a pleasure to stay more than a night or two"; and for a "wine list and service out of the usual run."

John Tovey, whose 13-bedroom hotel has a 70-seat dining room, is not open for lunch, and does not give his guests a choice at dinner — at least, not until the puddings. Dinner guests in the dining room above the lake are confronted with a five-course bill of fare, at around $18 excluding wines, and there are very few complaints from the customers from many lands. French onion tart, cheese and herb pate in puff pastry cornet, tomato and orange salad with burgundy and cranberry sauce, and damson farmhouse pie are among the items guests are likely to greet enthusiastically.
